Public Invited To June 10th FmHA Meeting

The Farmers Home Administration, in connection with Garrett County Community Action, Housing Division, will meet in the Garrett County Commissioners' Meeting Room, Garrett County Courthouse, on Wednesday, June 10, at 1:30 p.m.

The purpose of the meeting is to inform low-income families of the possibility of FmHA providing financing for them to purchase a home. Interest credits can be granted, enabling mortgage payments to be as low as one percent (normally $149.00 per month) on a $50,000.00 home.

A reasonable, dependable income, a family budget showing repayment ability, and a good credit history are the basic eligibility requirements, according to Timothy Taylor, local FmHA director.

There is no cost in obtaining FmHA services, other than a $23.00 credit bureau fee, which is collected at the time of application is filed, Taylor said.

Loans can be approved for existing housing as well as new construction. Recent changes have permitted manufactured housing (mobile homes) as well.

Persons who have any questions before the meeting or

Area Master's Nursing Program Being Considered

A meeting to determine local interest in a Cumberland-based University of Maryland Outreach Program for a master's degree in nursing will be held Thursday, June 4, at the Memorial Hospital Auditorium, Cumberland, at 7 p.m. Dr. Helen Kohler, director of Outreach programs for the University, will conduct the meeting.

Jane Jenkins, R.N., B.S.N., at Memorial Hospital is serving as the local liaison with the University. According to Jenkins, the University will sponsor the Cumberland Outreach program if 30 B.S.N. nurses are interested in the degree. The decision to offer the Outreach program in Cumberland will be based on the attendance at the informational meeting. Jenkins urges anyone interested in the degree program but unable to attend, to call her.

The establishment of the Outreach program for a master's degree in nursing is supported by the Cumberland Area Health Education Center. The Cumberland AHEC currently provides classroom facilities and library services for the University's bachelor of science in nursing program offered in the region. The advanced degree course based in Cumberland would allow local nurses to attend classes without a work stoppage or extensive traveling.

Questions about the meeting can be directed to Jane Jenkins at 777-4044 or 759-4900, or to the Cumberland Area Health Education Center at 777-9150.

The Garrett
Lakes Arts Festival

Plus information of all major festivals and events scheduled for the summer of 1987 in Garrett County!

The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival

The idea for the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival began with Garrett Countians, who had cherished the hope of rekindling the Mountain Chautauqua spirit that is part of Garrett County's heritage. Other people wanted to see cultural activities broadened and to see the arts become a contribution to regional economic development. The result is a series of 19 performances with 10 separate programs.

A group of interested citizens has formed a steering committee that has been working since January to bring the Arts Festival to Garrett County. The steering committee welcomes volunteers who would like to join the working group.

The Arts Festival is funded in part by the Garrett County Arts Council and by the Maryland States Arts Council.

Except for some free events, tickets for all performances will be $5 for adults and $2 for children. Season tickets are now on sale for $45 for 10 performances. Tickets for Garrett's Greats — the Arts Festival Benefit Performance set for June 19 will cost $10 per person. Members of the United States Whitewater team, leaving to compete for the world championship in France, will also be honored at the Garrett's Great benefit.

Connie Margison is serving as ticket sales coordinator. She can be reached at 334-9211.

Persons may also become a Founder of the GLAF by contributing at least $500 to the GLAF Committee. Other donation categories include: Patron, $250-$499; Associate, $100-$249; Friend, $50-$99; and Contributor, $25-$49.

A second fireworks display will be held Saturday, June 27, and will be sponsored by Grantsville Foodland.

Also new this year will be a garden tractor pulling contest on Saturday, June 27, which will be coordinated by members of the Grantsville Fire Department. Again this year there will be live bluegrass music on Saturday with Dick Yoder of WFRB radio serving as master of ceremonies. There will be a square dance demonstration by the Cumberland Belles 'N Beaux on Saturday night, followed by the Perry Kamp and Company band. Savor A Taste Of Scotland With A Night Of Highland Pipe And Dance

by Pam Ashby

If your heart is in the Highlands wherever you go, then you won't want to miss the night of Highland Pipe and Dancing on July 29, at Garrett Community College at 8 p.m.

The program, which is one of the many slated performances for the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, will feature two award-winning Highland pipers and a young, talented Highland dancer.

SANDY JONES

Sandy Jones, one of the Highland pipers slated to perform, is a director of the North American Academy of Piping, director of piping at The Citadel, Columbia, S.C., and is a retired pipe major of the United States Air Force Pipe Band.

Mr. Jones, originally from Spokane, Washington, served with the United States Air Force Pipe Band in Washington, D.C., and was pipe major of the organization for eight years. As a member of the unit, he often performed for presidents, heads of state and dignitaries of foreign nations.

He also traveled and performed throughout the United States, Canada, Europe, the Far East and many of our neighboring islands, representing the nation.

In 1970, he and the late John MacFadyen of Busby, Scotland, co-founded The North American Academy of Piping, which has proven to be an excellent source of instruction on the bagpipe.

Mr. Jones is the author of the bagpipe tutor "Beginning the Bagpipe," and is currently employed at The Citadel in Charleston, S.C., as their director of the pipe band. He is on the advisory council and judges panel for The Eastern United States Pipe Band Association.

No stranger to Garrett County, Mr. Jones has instructed bagpiping at Camp Hickory for several summers and has been instrumental in introducing bagpiping to the area.

HAMILTON WORKMAN

The other performing piper will be Hamilton Workman, instructor for the North American Academy of Piping, retired pipe major of the Highland Light Infantry, Scottish Regiment, and personal piper to the late Earl of Mountbatten.

Before immigrating to the United States in 1964, Mr. Workman served with Scotland's famous Highland Light Infantry Regiment Pipe Band. While in the organization, he was selected to attend the Pipe Major's Course under the direction of Pipe Major William Ross at Edinburgh Castle, HIGHLAND DANCER, Martha Jane Barr, 13-year-old award-winning competitor, will be one of the performers this summer at the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. Miss Barr has won many competitions throughout Canada. She is a student at the Scottish Dance School, Queens University, Kingston, Ontario. Performing also on July 29, at Garrett Community College, will be renowned pipers, Sandy Jones and Hamilton Workman.

thus becoming the youngest pipe major in the British Army.

After leaving the Army and in an effort to continue his studies in the playing of Piobaireachd, he then received instruction from William MacLean and Iain MacPherson.

Summer Sensations '87

Scotland, he was also piper to the late Earl of Mountbatten.

Mr. Workman is one of the select few, through an apprenticeship, who has learned the art of making bagpipes.

He is on the panel of judges for the Eastern United States Pipe Band Association and is also past president of that organization.

As Scottish poet John Keats so aptly wrote, these pipers will be "forever piping songs, forever new" for your enjoyment on July 29.

MARTHA JANE BARR

Martha Jane Barr, a 13-year-old award-winning Highland dancer from Sudbury, Ontario, Canada, will touch the hearts of all (in the Highlands or elsewhere) as she entertains and captivates.

Even at her tender age, Martha Jane holds the gold medal for the Scottish Board from Scottish Dance Teachers Alliance National Dances.

As a competitor in the advanced intermediate level, she has won competitions in Barrie, Ontario; Maxville, Ontario; and North Bay, Ontario.

She is currently a student at the Scottish Dance School, Queens University, Kingston, Ontario.

Martha Jane will feel at home in the highlands of Garrett County as she is the niece of Fred and Diane Thayer, Turkey Neck.

If your heart is not in the Highlands before you attend this performance, it certainly will be after you see it.

Keith Roberts To Perform In Festival Benefit

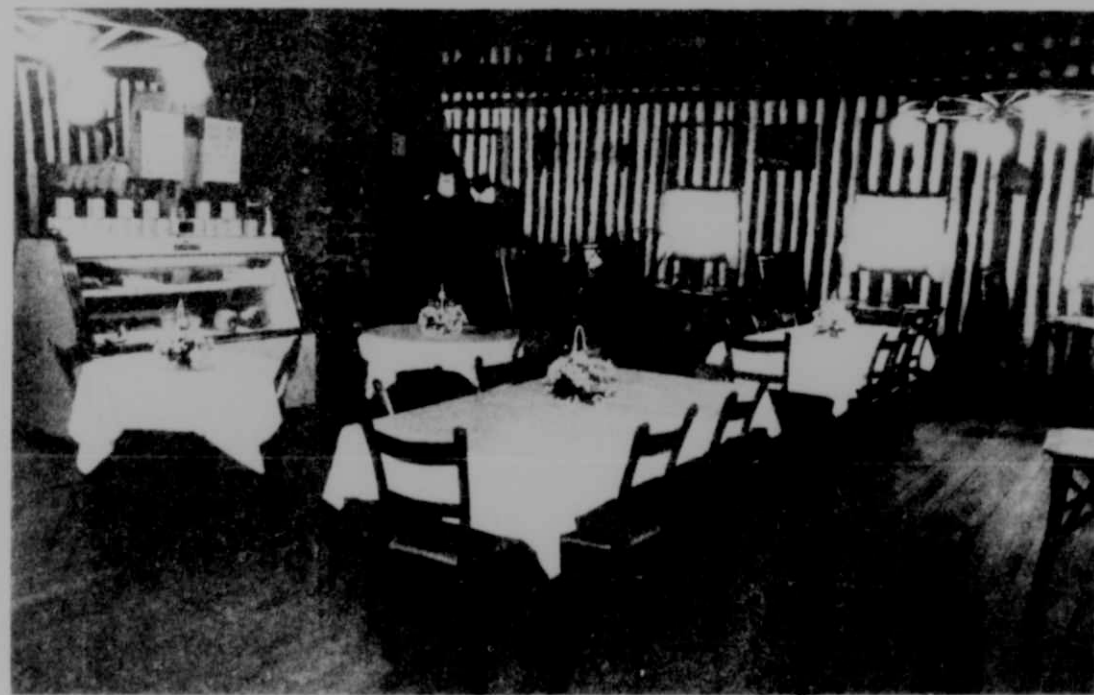

Among those slated to perform in the June 19 Garrett Greats Benefit for the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival will be local singer, Keith Roberts.

By the age of 10, Roberts was playing guitar in dance bands. He moved on to mid-60's rock and roll in his teens and sang harmonies. After playing electric lead guitar for four years in Cleveland-area bands, Roberts went to college and became interested in acoustic music.

He planned in a three-piece group, got a degree in conservation, and then moved to his grandparents' farm in Western Maryland. Roberts picked up the five-string banjo while playing in the Deep Creek Lake recreational area and met Rob Smith. Smith and Roberts produced an album, Buffalo Run on RainTree records, and expanded their audience to include the southeastern states.

In over 25 years of guitar playing, Roberts has developed a style that is a unique mixture of the older electric leads and acoustic flatpicking. His individual touch on the five-string combines picking and frailing and his hospitable style has been seen in many areas for many years.

At the benefit, Roberts will play mostly original songs that accent Garrett County's Appalachian heritage.

The Chimney Corner

A step into history, plus some fantastic food, awaits those who choose The Chimney Corner in Red House for breakfast, lunch, or dinner.

Built in 1932 along historic U.S. Route 50, or North-western Turnpike, Chimney Corner is built entirely of solid chestnut logs. An enormous fireplace, constructed of 35 tons of stone, is located inside and the tables are made of chestnut lumber trimmed with silver birch.

Owners/managers Frank and Bernadette Arnett take great pride and put considerable effort into providing a good variety of food and plentiful portions all for an extremely reasonable price.

Chimney Corner has long been known for its own raised buckwheat cakes and hickory smoked sausage which thousands have enjoyed not only for breakfast, but for dinner as well. Mrs. Arnett and company also offer a wide selection of specials throughout the week (the roast pork dinner is out of this world!). Steaks, ten different seafood dinners, hickory smoked ham and honey dipped chicken are among the main courses. Quick, friendly service, a trip to a complete salad bar, plus homemade bread and applebutter, are included with every dinner.

There are also children's platters available at half price.

Six-Foot Rabbit To Be Featured On GCC Stage

Harvey. A rabbit by any other name would not be the same. Certainly, it would not conjure up the same images.

"Harvey," a comedy in three acts, will be performed as part of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival this summer. Each performance will be held at 8 p.m. on July 10, 11, 12, 18, and 20 at Garrett Community College.

Directed by Jane Avery and Ben Sincell, with technical design by Ben Sincell, try-outs for the play will be held June 1 and 2 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the college where rehearsals will also be held. Acting experience is preferred but not necessary.

The play was written by Mary Chase in 1943 under the title "The White Rabbit" and produced by Brock Pemberton at the 48th Street Theatre, New York City, in 1944.

The film version starred James Stewart as the misunderstood, sweet, oblivious Elwood P. Dowd who believed and confided in Harvey, his make-believe (?) six-foot tall friend in the form of a rabbit.

When Elwood becomes an embarrassment and social disgrace to his family, his sister finally decides that he must be "committed." The play leaves the audience wondering just who really is crazy.

Jane Avery and Ben Sincell encourage any local residents who are interested to participate in try-outs for the play. Additional information can be obtained by calling 334-2878.

HORSE SHOWS are scheduled throughout the summer at the Garrett County Fairgrounds, and host competition in pony, English, western, youth and game classes. The shows will be held on June 7 and September 13, beginning at 11 a.m. Sponsored by the Mt. Top Saddle Club; the public is welcome with no admission charge.

Nationally-Known Puppet Company To Present "Peter And The Wolf"

Bob Brown was not one of those young boys who dreamed of and practiced baseball incessantly and then grew up to become a record-breaking ace pitcher. Nor was he a boy who practiced acting in front of the mirror day and night and grew up to become a world-renowned actor.

The story goes more like this.

Bob Brown's fourth-grade teacher announced that puppet-building would be the next class project and Bob responded with, "No way! I wouldn't be caught dead playing with dolls!" He then grew up to become a nationally famous, award-winning puppeteer, forming his own company now known as Bob Brown Puppet Productions, Inc.

The company will be performing "Peter and the Wolf" this summer at the first Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. Two performances will be held at Garrett Community College, one on July 31 at 8 p.m. and one on August 1 at 10 a.m.

"Peter and the Wolf" is adapted to the stage by Bob Brown Puppet Productions, utilizing life-size marionettes. The first portion of the two-part adventure story begins with an introduction to the characters, their musical themes, and their identifying instruments. This scripted version gives a delightful visual representation to Prokofiev's music.

The story is followed by a narrated variety sequence, with large, colorful creatures performing to a wide range of classical selections. From the high-kicking fun of "Gaiete Parisienne," danced by a chorus line of Can-Can Cats, to the eerie spookiness of "Hall of the Mountain King," depicted with a host of ghosts and goblins, to the graceful beauty of "Skater's Waltz," the changing moods, music and marionettes will enthrall audiences of all ages.

Peter . . .

Puppetry is perhaps the most unique of all art forms. It incorporates aspects of both the visual and performing arts — from music and dance, to painting and sculpture, to theatre and mime — yet it remains a distinct art form unto itself.

Based in Washington, D.C. for the past 10 years, the Bob Brown Puppet Productions, Inc. has performed at the White House at the special invitation of the Nixon, Ford and Carter administrations.

The company has also made many appearances at the Kennedy Center, the Detroit Youththeatre, Lincoln Center, Brooklyn Academy of Music and the National and Baltimore Symphonies. Young people recognize this company for their many television appearances on "Mr. Roger's Neighborhood" and "The Workshop."

Recognized as a leader in the field of puppetry, Bob Brown has also established a reputation as an excellent teacher, from teaching six-year-olds how to make puppets from plastic bottles to teaching colleagues his original "Felt and Styrofoam construction" techniques.

After graduating from the New York School of Visual Arts, Bob became involved with several national puppet touring companies and produced "The Wizard of Oz" during that time. He also taught puppetry at several universities and was a regular on the television series, "Poochi's Playhouse."

He then joined the world-famous Bill Baird Marionettes and toured with them to such places as India, Afghanistan, Nepal, and the Soviet Union.

Bob later joined Jim Henson's Muppet Company and, with them, performed regularly on the Ed Sullivan Show, in specials with Arthur Godfrey and Perry Como, and in numerous commercials.

In 1968, upon request of the Smithsonian Institution, Bob moved to Washington, D.C. to found the Smithsonian Resident Puppet Theatre. In the 10 years following, his company performed to more than two million children and adults.

In 1978, he was asked to become artistic director of the newly-formed non-profit organization, Bob Brown Puppet Productions, Inc. Formed by a group of concerned citizens who did not want Bob's unique talents to be another victim of inflation and a tight economy, this organization now supports and produces his threatened educational and public service activities.

The company has designed and created films and special programs for the National Park Service, Children's Hospital, Friends of the National Zoo, American Cancer Society, Food and Drug Administration, Muscular Dystrophy Foundation, and many more.

Age-old fairy tales take on a brand new appearance under the guidance of the company's award-winning playwright/director Judy Brown. Injected with large doses

AN ATMOSPHERE OF FANTASY AND ENCHANTMENT is created by Bob Brown, "master puppeteer," with his bright, colorful, nearly life-size puppets. Bob Brown's distinctive style of puppetry can be experienced at two performances of "Peter and the Wolf" which will be presented July 31 at 8 p.m. and August 1 at 10 a.m. at the Garrett Community College auditorium. The performances are part of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival. Shown above is Bob Brown, artistic director of Bob Brown Puppet Productions, Inc., Judy Brown, award-winning playwright and director with the company and two of Bob's visually exciting creations.

Four-Day Music Event To Highlight Arts Festival

One of the real highlights of the first Garrett Lakes Arts Festival will be a four-day music festival, featuring not only some outstanding local talent, but also world-renowned performers, in particular violinist Erick Friedman, who has carved for himself a career of international dimensions, having appeared as guest soloist with most of the world's great orchestras.

Through the efforts of Friedman and Kathryn Sincell, a native of Mtn Lake Park, the first Garrett Lakes Music Festival of Maryland has been scheduled for July 23-26 at Garrett Community College. The event will feature not only Friedman as music director and conductor and Ms. Sincell, who is a lyric soprano, but also James Stern, violinist, and Constance Moore, pianist, whose careers and fame are rising at a rapid pace.

Thirteen other noted professional musicians, from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Texas, Georgia, Ohio, Maryland, and West Virginia, will compose the remainder of the orchestra.

Friedman, who has soloed with the New York Philharmonic, the National Symphony, Berlin Philharmonic, Orchestra de Paris, and the orchestras of New Orleans, Pittsburgh, Miami, Detroit, and Indianapolis, has come to be known as "the American violin virtuoso." Karajan, Stokowski, Steinberg, Leinsdorf, Previn, Ozawa and Pretre are among the internationally celebrated conductors with whom he has collaborated in recent years. He has recorded for RCA with the Boston Symphony, Chicago Symphony and London Symphony. His recordings of the Bach Sonatas for Violin and Harpsichord and the Franck and Debussy Sonatas won Grammy Award nominations.

Donal Henahan, of The New York Times, said, "The number of violinists who play the instrument as sonorously as Erick Friedman belong to the Fingers of One Hand Club, meaning you do not have to count very high to run out of members. . . He is not only a master violinist, but also one with a distinctly personal and identifiable style of playing."

Friedman is currently an artist in residence at Southern Methodist University, Dallas.

Ms. Sincell, lyric soprano, who completed her graduate study at Southern Methodist University in 1986, is a vocal student of the eminent Thomas Hayward, a former tenor of the Metropolitan Opera in New York City. She was graduated magna cum laude from Frostburg State College and received the prestigious Meadows Artistic Achievement Scholarship Award from SMU, an award granted only to a student "evidencing the most promise and ability for the future."

Her activities include a tour of the Far East, featuring guest appearances at the noted Seoul Festival in Korea and featured artist at the Monomoy Festival in Cape Cod, Mass. This summer, she will for the second year in a row be a guest soloist at the Arcady Music Festival in Maine and will appear as a guest artist with the resident orchestra at the Southern Methodist University Summer Conservatory Series in Dallas.

Acclaimed music critic Robert Newall described Ms. Sincell as "a bright young talent. . . whose voice has a splendid texture. Poised and attractive, she obviously has a strong potential that must be nurtured."

Ms. Sincell is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park.

James Stern's activities as a recitalist and chamber musician have taken him throughout the United States. His performances of both the standard and contemporary chamber music repertoire have been heard in major New York halls, including Carnegie Hall and Alice Tully Hall. An alumnus of Juilliard School, he has been the leader of many orchestras and has been involved in a number of world premiere performances of leading young composers.

Among his awards and honors are the Lincoln Center Scholarship, as well as the Norfolk and Bowdoin Summer Music Festival scholarships. His far-ranging activities in music have included not only appearances on national television as a violinist, but also performances as a pianist at the Juilliard! Stern, who will serve as concert master at the Garrett Festival, will be joining the prestigious faculty of Cleveland Institute of Music this fall.

Erick Friedman first heard Stern as a participant at the noted

United States Artistic Ambassador Auditions at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C. Friedman, who was a member of the jury, said that Stern was, in his mind, the winner of the event, noting his "poignant musicianship and scintillating violinism."

Constance Moore, who like Stern is from New York City, was heard by Friedman several months ago. Friedman said her "varied and protean activities as a soloist and chamber musician make her name one to watch."

Ms. Moore has been associated with the Cincinnati Chamber Soloists, the Louisville Trio, the Louisville Orchestra, and varied ensembles of the Juilliard, Mannes and University of Louisville Schools of Music. She has also had a number of concert appearances in New York, Ohio, Kentucky, and the Delaware Art Museum in Wilmington. Her training includes such names as Lee Luvisi and Samuel Sanders, a pianist who has been closely associated for many years with violinist Itzak Perlman.

The other musicians slated to perform in the festival are: Dale Stuckenbruck, violinist, Hicksville, N.J.; An Li Huang, violinist, Pittsburgh (native of China); Tom McDavid, violinist, Atlanta; Yvonne Creanga, violinist, New York City; Randy Fisher, violinist, Flushing, N.Y.; William Skidmore, cellist, professor of cello, West Virginia University; Gabriel Morales, cellist, Passaic, N.J.; John Babich, bass, New York City; Anthony M. Valerio, French horn, Annapolis; Stephen Totter, French horn, Centerville, Ohio; Marcia Butler, oboe, Jersey City, N.J.; Nancy Ranger, oboe, New York City; and 14-year-old Mariko Inaba, violinist, Dallas, Tex., who will perform the solo in Vivaldi's Four Seasons.

There will be two separate programs, each of which will be performed twice over the four-day festival. The first program will be strictly for piano (Ms. Moore), violin (Stern) and voice (Ms. Sincell), while the second program will be entirely orchestral.

The first program will include a piano and violin pieces by Stravinsky, "Suite to Italiane," and Sonata by Franck in A Major. Ms. Moore and Stern will then accompany Ms. Sincell on four pieces by Schubert, followed by violin pieces by Rorem and piano/violin pieces by Wieniawski.

The orchestral program will feature the popular "Four Seasons" by Vivaldi, with the violin solo by Ms. Inaba, who is a student of Friedman. Following that will be "Exultate Jubilate" by Mozart and Piano Concerto No. 14 K. 449, also by Mozart.

Program I will be presented Thursday, July 23, and Sunday, July 26. Program II will be presented Friday, July 24, and Saturday, July 25. Also tentatively scheduled is a Mozart and Performance seminar, presented by Friedman on July 25.

A STEP INTO THE COLORFUL PAST of Mountain Lake Park is provided during the annual Mountain Lake Park Days, scheduled this year for July 16-18. The festival features events and activities that take participants back to the turn of the century when the Chautauqua program was thriving in this small, unique Western Maryland town. Tours of restored Victorian homes, an antique auto show, antique toy show, and an old-fashioned, Mtn. Lake Park boarding house dinner are among the activities. Mountain Lake Park Days is sponsored by the Friends of Mountain Lake Park.

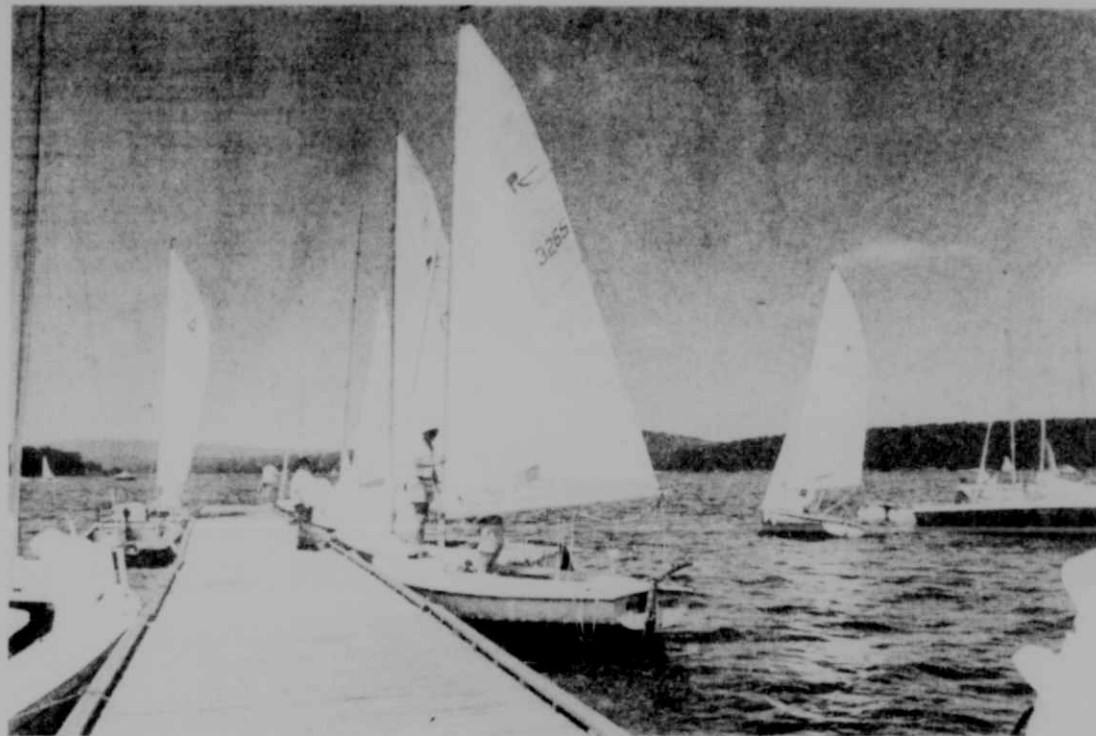

TWO LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS scheduled to perform during the Garrett Greats Benefit Performance of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival are the Garrett Highlander Pipe Band and the Garrett Choral Society. The local pipers have performed extensively in the tri-state area and have earned a number of awards for their efforts. Judge Fred A. Thayer is the pipe master. The Choral Society, under the direction of Nancy Learey, has presented dozens of concerts over the past decade or so, not to mention five major musicals. Dr. David Sheets, piano accompanist for the Choral Society, will also be featured at the Benefit Performance, as will Keith Roberts, who plays guitar and sings original folk pieces that accent Garrett County's Appalachian heritage; the Mennonite A Capella Choir led by Lowell Bender; a reader's theatre by Jane Avery, English and drama instructor at Southern High School; and a presentation of hammers and strings dulcimer music by Betty Mattingly. The Magical Mime Company, featuring Ben Sincell and Greg Carrico will perform and also provide comic interludes throughout the program. Tentatively scheduled to be present are the members of the U.S. Whitewater Team. The Garrett Greats Benefit will be held June 19, 7:30 p.m., at Garrett Community College, McHenry. Tickets are $10 per person.

WINDSURFING TOURNAMENT — Windsurfing is gaining in popularity on Deep Creek Lake. This summer the Triangle Race will be held at McHenry Cove at the Water Sports Center, beginning at 1 p.m.

SAILING ON DEEP CREEK LAKE is a favorite activity of thousands of year round and summer residents, and various regattas are held from Memorial Day to Labor Day. The first will be the Fred Steiding Memorial Regatta, slated for this Saturday, May 30. Races are held every weekend on the southern portion of the lake, beginning at noon Saturdays and 1 p.m. Sundays. Other special regattas include the Firecracker Regatta, July 4-6; the Invitational Regatta in August; and the Commodore's Cup over the Labor Day weekend, Sept. 5-7.

Think Safety First When You Go Boating

Millions of Americans will be on the water this year, fishing, water skiing, or just plain cruising. Here are a few tips from the Yamaha Outboards Information Service to help keep your boating season more enjoyable:

•Keep a safety lanyard, which is probably the most essential piece of equipment on a boat, secured to the skipper. If for some reason he leaves the helm, the safety lanyard will stop the motor immediately. Most outboards feature a safety lanyard.

•Realize that just wearing a life preserver is not being safe enough, although the life preserver has been accepted by most boatmen and anglers as essential gear. Unless it is properly fitted, and worn properly zipped or belted, it cannot provide the maximum safety needed. All passengers, from babies through adults, should have a properly fitted personal flotation device for more boating enjoyment.

•Keep a small first-aid kit on-board — which responsible skippers consider as mandatory equipment, to take care of minor problems. Make certain a sun block is included, and offered to all passengers when first boarding for a sunny day of boating.

•Store as much gear as possible in dry storage and rod lockers inside the boat. The less gear adrift in the boat means more footroom inside, and less chance of tripping, or having valuable equipment such, as a fishing rod, stepped on and ruined.

•Tape or fasten down all ice chest lids, minnow bucket tops, and tackle box lids. A lid dislodged by wind or rough water, can distract the driver.

•When you're water skiing, make certain the skiing observer is seated in the boat, rather than standing while watching the skier to prevent accidents inside the boat as well as being aware of the skier behind the boat.

•Make a fire extinguisher a mandatory piece of safety equipment on your boat, whether yours is required to have one by the U.S. Coast Guard or not. Keep it in easy reach and fully charged so that it will be ready if you need to help someone else.

•If you go fishing at night, make certain you use a stern light. Although you may be able to see an approaching boat, don't assume that the other driver can see you.

•Few things are more embarrassing in boating than running aground. Use a depth finder so that you will always know the depth of water in which you are running. Most depth finders have audible alarms you can set to go off at pre-determined depths. Then, you'll be able to slow your boat down as you approach shallow water.

Magical Mime Company — A Unique Blend Of Magic, Mime And Comedy

How long has magic been with us?

"Since the beginning of man," is the answer offered by local performers Ben Sincell and Greg Carrico.

How magic has played a part throughout the ages of man, from the early ages to 1987, will be the theme of an all-new show to be performed by the Magical Mime Company — comprised of Sincell and Carrico — August 28-30 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Garrett Community College, McHenry.

The show, designed to entertain the entire family, will blend comedy, magic and mime in Sincell's and Carrico's unique style. Traditional magic, vaudeville routines and juggling, as well as highlights of the work of some of the world's greatest magicians, will also be featured in the show.

"I believe audiences will be entertained by our show and will also learn something about how magic has influenced man and been shaped by man through the ages," commented Sincell.

Both Sincell and Carrico are well-known in the tri-state region

ZANY, FASCINATING, AND MYSTERIOUS are among the descriptions of the Magical Mime Company, featuring Ben Sincell and Greg Carrico, as the duo combines magic, mime, music, dance, comedy, drama, and even juggling, to produce a unique, entertaining evening for the entire family. Magical Mime is scheduled to perform August 28-30, beginning at 8 p.m. each evening, at the Garrett Community College auditorium, McHenry. The Magical Mime Company was hand-picked by Robert Shields, of the famous Shields and Yarnell mime duo, to perform at the 1984 International Mime and Clown Festival. "The Magical Mime Company has some of the best ideas I have seen," Shields stated, after seeing their performance.

Sincell has been an entertainer for 19 years, performing both traditional magic as well as mime and drama. He holds a bachelor's degree in theatre arts from West Virginia Wesleyan College and has had additional training in mime, jazz dance, modern dance and ballet. He currently is an instructor of speech and theatre at Garrett Community College.

Carrico has been an entertainer for over 10 years, both performing with Sincell and with other theatrical groups. For the past few years, Carrico has performed in his magic-juggling show, "Watch Closely." He is an accomplished juggler and has had additional training in mime, jazz dance and ballet.

Cornish Manor

Cornish Manor Restaurant, owned and hosted by Bob and Patty Bobo, located one-half mile off Route 219 on Memorial Drive, is a delightful country place reminiscent of Colonial Williamsburg.

Fine dining with home-made fare is offered for lunch and dinner at the serene Cornish Manor which is rich in history.

The house, located on 7 acres of land covered with 200 large, sturdy oak trees, is comprised of 18 rooms and three large halls.

The Victorian home was built in 1868 by Judge Lambert of Washington, D.C. It was later purchased by L.L. Loar who named it "Ethelhurst" for his daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cornish then purchased it, thereby establishing its present name.

Lunch begins at Cornish Manor at 11 a.m. where there's always a tempting luncheon special. They are famous for their Bobo burger, served with grilled onions on toasted home-made bread, as well as their homemade soup du jour, select sandwich menu and luncheon platters and fresh salads.

Dinners are served from 4-10 p.m. which delight the lightest to the heartiest palates.

A luscious offering of appetizers like oysters on the half-shell and escargot are available at Cornish Manor. Then, it's on to the dinner fare including treasures from the sea, seasonal seafood delicacies, beef and reef, surf and turf, and all-time favorites like juicy steaks, ham, pork chops, lamb chops, chicken and the unbeatable fresh-roasted Maryland turkey. Lighter side meals are offered.

Homemade desserts, baked daily, top off an already perfect meal at Cornish Manor. Their own Cornish Pudding is not to be missed.

Cocktails and after-dinner drinks are also served by Cornish Manor's friendly waitresses.

The Affordable & Quiet Alternative: Homes For All Seasons & Alpine Lake

A unique opportunity exists for you to own a custom built vacation/retirement home in Alpine Lake this year. The combination of low interest rates, reasonable lot prices, stable material prices, and the availability of good craftsmen has made it possible for us to offer a completely stick-built home for under $50,000.00. These homes are NOT condominiums but single family homes, each on its own spacious (about 1/2 acre) wooded lot, built one at a time, very carefully.

Alpine Lake was started almost twenty years ago as a combined resort and residential development. It has become a quiet, peaceful and secure retreat for people who are more fond of sailing than motor boating; bicycling than motor-biking; birding than bar-hopping. Many families live here all or part of the year, attracted by the low taxes, low amenity fees and the 24-hour security that allows them to leave their home without fear of vandalism.

There is a spring-fed lake for fishing, sailing, canoeing, and swimming without the noise and danger of speedboats. You and your family can golf on a beautifully-maintained and uncrowded course for $210.00 per year. For an annual fee of $50.00 you may park and use your cart instead of renting a club cart.

The Alpine Lodge has a well-known restaurant, a heated indoor olympic pool, sauna, hot tubs, and a lounge for dancing.

There are miles of private roads for walking, biking or jogging — but no public roads! The public road ends at the entrance, which is guarded twenty-four hours a day. Residential areas are patrolled day and night, and the roads are regularly cleared of snow in winter.

With the exception of the Lodge and golf course areas, only single family homes are allowed, and no home may be built until the plans are approved by Alpine's Environmental Committee, which is comprised of fellow members of this community. No mature trees can be removed without their permission. No trailers, double-wides, or offensive buildings are permitted. The use of stains, sidings and roof colors that blend with the natural setting is encouraged. These guidelines help protect the value of your investment, and Homes For All Seasons is happy to build under these restrictions.

No one can deny that winters in Alpine Lake are cold enough for skiing, but the same altitude gives it the greatest of summers. The cool nights are a good excuse for a cozy fire in the fireplace. Air conditioning is simply not needed. The altitude happily makes rare some lowland pests such as mosquitoes and poison ivy. Our water comes from Artesian wells, sweet and cold — you actually enjoy drinking it. The air is clear and fresh. In short, the setting for the perfect vacation in all seasons.

We chose to live here because of the quiet natural surroundings. This is not just a collection of houses; it's a community with friendly neighbors and a "What's the rush?" life style. When you buy a home in Alpine, you become a part owner of your own community.

What would it cost for your family to own a home and enjoy all the facilities at Alpine Lake? Assuming you buy a $40,000.00 home in 1987, real estate taxes would be about $240.00, Alpine Lake Property Owners Assessment, $345.00 per year. Full club membership, which provides for the use of all facilities and no greens fees, is $210.00 per year. Monthly water and sewer charges run $16.60 when you're here and $5.00 when you're away.

As you know, interest rates today are very reasonable, and many local banks are offering loans on vacation/retirement homes. Since we keep informed of the local rates and terms, we can give you an idea of the monthly payments based on your home cost and down payment. We can also help arrange your financing with the bank of your choice.

Because Alpine Lake is such an exceptional vacation spot, many homeowners rent their house for part of the year. This income makes a substantial contribution toward their mortgage payments, and your guests can use most Alpine facilities for a reasonable fee. Rental agents are available to rent, clean and inspect your home.

Homes For All Seasons is a small family business, more interested in quality than quantity. While we have built many homes in Virginia and West Virginia in the past twenty-five years, we have confined our activities to Alpine Lake for the last two years.

Our homes are deliberately designed to be compact and affordable, but the materials and construction are identical if not better than those found in larger, more expensive homes. They are also positioned on the lot to allow for you or us to add a garage or a large master suite. The roof may be pitched to provide for a finished loft. With the exception of the front door, which should be painted every five years, all exposed exterior parts of our homes are natural cedar, redwood, or Wolmanized treated pine. No maintenance is required, although some buyers have preferred a sealer to preserve a particular wood tone.

The roof is 25-year Class A and not the usual 20-year Class C. We use double-heavy felt under the roofing. The porch and deck are of Wolmanized lumber guaranteed for forty years. The windows are Andersen double-glazed, the exterior doors are insulated, and the patio door is of extra-heavy construction with a thermal break. All joints and seams have been sealed to prevent air infiltration. The plumbing is designed for cold winters to minimize the risk of frozen pipes. If you have followed our suggestions, we will fix any pipe that freezes at no charge!

To further conserve energy and maximize sturdiness, all outside walls are 2x6 sixteen inch on center with double top plate and full six inch (R-19) insulation with vapor barrier. Beamed cathedral ceilings have R-32 insulation, and ceilings over bedrooms rate R-38. Floors are insulated a full six inches, and all crawl spaces are well ventilated and the ground covered with a vapor barrier. All floor and ceiling joists and rafters are sixteen inch on center and oversized. We use no prefabricated parts. The subfloor is 3/4 inch tongue and groove, glued and nailed to the joists. You may choose cherry or other hardwood, wall-to-wall carpet, or vinyl for your finished floors.

The Great Room is paneled with 1/4 inch minimum real wood with built-up cedar beams on the cathedral ceiling, which may be either paneled or drywalled. Other walls are 1/2 inch drywall, which is fully finished with two coats of high-quality paint, and ceilings are texture-painted. Trim in the Great Room is all-natural cedar. In the other rooms, we offer cedar or pine woodwork. Interior doors may be Luan, Birch, or Colonial.

An energy-efficient Superior or Heatilator fireplace is included in the base price of all our homes. Individually-controlled electric baseboard heat in each room is also included. We in West Virginia enjoy one of America's lowest electric rates, which, when coupled with our energy-conscious construction, make electric heating comfortably affordable. A circulation fan in the ceiling of the Great Room helps distribute heat from the fireplace or baseboard heaters.

The electrical system is a full 200 AMP service with circuit breakers and ground fault breakers. There is room for future expanded service. Some added touches are — extra receptacles in the Great Room and bedrooms, smoke detectors, exterior receptacles, and bathroom exhaust fan. We include as standard features lighting over sinks, on bedroom ceilings, in attics and crawl spaces, and at the front and rear entrances. We also install telephone wiring and jacks throughout the house.

The plumbing system provides for 3/4 inch service to each outlet. You don't have to worry about loss of pressure when taking a shower. We use CPVC Plastic tubing, because we believe it better withstands cold and shows less heat loss and condensation. We install only American-made stainless steel sinks and faucets. The forty gallon (fifty-two gallon in larger homes) quick-recovery water heater is foam-insulated, which can save up to $60.00 a year in energy costs. The tank is glass-lined and carries a five-year warranty. Outside faucets and shutoffs are also standard.

Appliances included in our base price are a full-sized thirty-inch electric range, a fourteen cubic foot refrigerator and a good quality disposal. The kitchen also comes complete with a Formica counter top and quality hardwood cabinets.

We do not budget for shrubbery, seeding or plants in our price, because almost every lot is wooded, and we disturb as little ground as possible. Trees that are within the homesite are cut and stacked for your use as firewood and the brush removed.

To sum it up, what we offer is a sturdy, energy-efficient, comfortable home for all seasons. Homes For All Seasons pays all construction and land costs. Your lot will have been recently surveyed with all corners marked. You won't have any unpleasant surprises after you move in. All you will need is linens, pots and pans and furniture!

Thank you for taking the time to read our letter. We know we've gone into lengthy detail, but, when you're considering a purchase as important as your vacation/retirement home, it pays to read the fine print.

Because of privacy restrictions in the residential areas, appointments and Visitor Passes are necessary for you to view our homes and community. Please call us to arrange your tour, and bring your clubs, rackets, swimsuits, and picnic basket.

Storytelling, An Age-Old Art, Comes To Summer Festival

Storytelling is an age-old art which has been used since time began to convey tales of the past to those living in the present, to create a picture of what life might be like in the future, to teach morals, to provide fantasies and to add excitement to our lives.

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival will feature three prominent storytellers this summer, Dr. Gail Herman, Linda Marchisio, and Barbara Reed. The three will focus on family storytelling, using chant, mime, movement, and song to entice the audience and bring the stories alive.

In our fast-paced lives, with our cultural addiction to television, storytelling has nearly been lost to this generation of children. The storytellers featured, sometimes known as "organic storytellers," let their stories change and grow with each new audience, enticing the members of the audience to use their mind's eye to help shape each folktale with actions, images and fantasies so that stories truly become "tales of the folk."

Family storytelling will begin on August 21 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Garrett Community College, with Dr. Herman centering on mischief and magic with "Tales of Mischievous Martha" and Tales of Magical Mini-creatures."

The following morning, August 22, at 10, Dr. Herman, Marchisio, and Reed will teach a storytelling workshop titled "How to Tell African Stories: Techniques and Resources." The workshop will discuss vocal and physical characterization, techniques in the art of classical mime, kinetic communication, and kinetic energy in the arts, relating art and sound to movement.

The three will combine their talents again that evening at 8 for a rendition of "The Sun is a Golden Earring: When Myth Meets Magic."

On August 23, at noon, Dr. Herman will hold a storysharing circle, and that evening at 8 will conclude the series with "Folk Tales from Around the World."

Dr. Gail Herman, who now resides in Garrett County, worked for many years with Traveling Artists and Performers Company (TAPCO) and the Creative Arts in Education Program at the Eugene O'Neill Theater Center in Waterford, Connecticut. She received a PhD in curriculum and instruction at the University of Connecticut; a master's in education degree from the University of Massachusetts; and a BA degree in elementary education from Paterson State College.

She has a wide background in college teaching in the areas of creative expression in early childhood, creative dramatics, creative movement, behavior management, and using storytelling as a vehicle to motivate reading in grades one through four. She has worked as a consultant for grants to be used for learning disabled and gifted students, and a consultant to advisory boards for development of Gifted Arts Programs in several states.

She is the author of books and articles on storytelling and audience participation storytelling. She was a 1982 prize winner at the Sandwich, MA, Storytelling Festival; has received several fellowships, one from the U.S. Office of the Gifted and Talented and another from the Jessie Smith Noyes Foundation; and is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Phi Delta Kappa, and Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Linda Marchisio, of Ellington, CT, graduated from Eastern Connecticut State University in 1973 with a major in education.

She has taught children's classes in creative movement and creative drama and movement assisted storytelling, and was a dance-drama director for Renbrook Summer Adventure.

Marchisio conducted a storytelling performance/lecture series in Connecticut schools, and has taught "spoken dance" throughout Connecticut. She is a member of the National Association for the Preservation and Perpetuation of Storytelling and the Manchester Community College Speakers Bureau.

She is a conscientious and enthusiastic creator of original programs who enjoys working with both adults and children.

Storyteller Barbara Reed is from Guilford, Connecticut, and graduated from Vassar with a BA in Drama. She studied drama with Mme. Daykarhanova, creative drama with Brian Way, and storytelling with Mara Cappy and Laura Simms.

She is currently the director/administrator of the Annual Connecticut Storytelling Festival at Connecticut College, and the director of Connecticut Storytelling Center at Connecticut College.

Reed is a free-lance storyteller performing widely in Connecticut and New England, in libraries, schools, churches, parks, museums, and festivals.

She was the recipient of the 1985 Faith Hektoen Award of the Children's Services Section of the Connecticut Library Association.

The "Family Storytelling" series, offered by Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, will provide hours of memorable entertainment for the whole family.

Summer Stock Theatre Returns To Blue Barn

Summer stock theatre is returning to The Blue Barn on Beckman's Peninsula this summer. The season will start on July 8 with the production of "See How They Run," and continue with "Once Upon A Mattress," which will be featured on July 15 and again on August 5. Also to be featured this season are: "The Importance of Being Earnest" on July 22; a cabaret of great songs from the 1930s and 40s, along with comedy sketches, on July 29; a children's show, "The Red Shoes" on August 12; "The Bad Seed" on August 19; and "Habeas Corpus" on August 26.

This summer season is following a long, exciting series of summer stock seasons produced by Gene Yell and the company that started the tradition in the 1950s. At that time, Mr. Yell, a professor of theater at the University of New Mexico, traveled each summer to beautiful Deep Creek Lake with an entourage of enthusiastic drama students and professionals. Summer after summer, his productions delighted Garrett countians, cottage owners, and visitors to the lake.

Hoping to continue the tradition for another 30 summers, the new company is composed of many of the same elements. The producer/director is Michael Hartman. Mr. Hartman teaches at the University of Maryland, where he is currently working on a PhD in theatre. He has taught theatre in college and has developed per-

Gordon Douglass Boat Company

Garrett County and Deep Creek Lake are the home of the Gordon Douglass Boat Company, builders of the Flying Scot. The company builds a large roomy day-sailer, a boat suited for racing as well as for quiet daysailing. There are many moods to the Flying Scot. It has drawn thousands of newcomers to the sport of sailing, and brought pleasure to them and to avid racing sailors as well.

The Flying Scot was designed by Sandy Douglass, pictured (left) sailing his boat No. 3000. From now until fall, one can find individual Scots on the lake every day of the week, and large fleets of them racing on weekends and holidays.

The Flying Scot has earned a reputation for quality: quality of design, quality of construction and finish, quality of performance. This reputation has made it a national-class boat, with some 4,245 active boats in the water. The Flying Scot is known far beyond the confines of Deep Creek Lake.

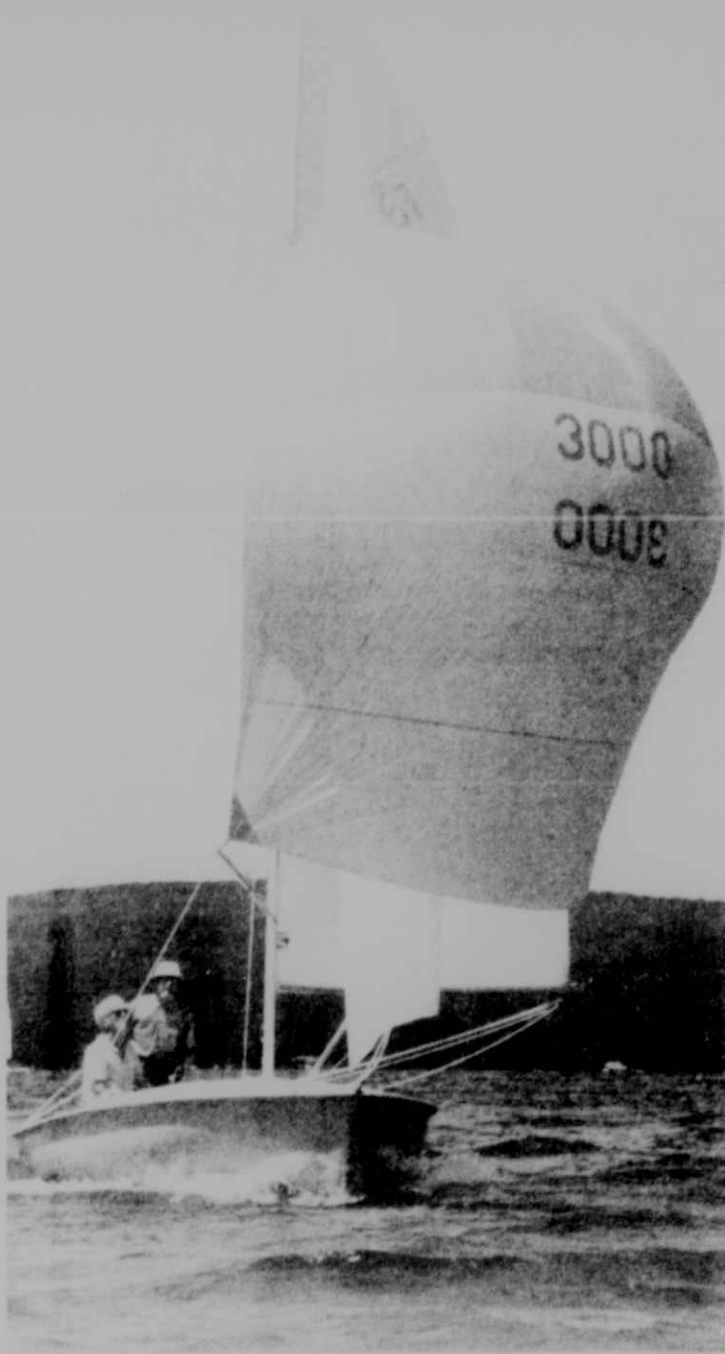

How does one become a Flying Scot sailor? Begin by visiting the shop in Deer Park to see how the boats are built. Attend the Gordon Douglass sailing school and learn to sail. Most find sailing to be great fun, easy to learn, and a skill they never lose.

Too many people think that to sail, a person must be a rich athlete. You need to be neither. The Flying Scot is easy to sail, whether you are 10, 95, or in between. And a good sailboat does not lose its value, and the wind is free.

You will love sailing and the company's approach to it. There is no better way to enjoy the quiet beauty of Deep Creek Lake, than in a Flying Scot.

Boom!

That was the starting gun. What you see is only about one-fourth of the fleet which started in this race. Start something great, start sailing a Flying Scot. We build sailboats, Flying Scot sailboats, the best.

Bold, colorful puppets in Bob

Brown's distinctive cartoon-like style enhance an atmosphere of fantasy and enchantment. Lavish scenery, careful attention to detail and special lighting effects hook audiences from the start and keep them enthralled to the end.

The lively, fast-paced production provides a uniquely enjoyable theatrical experience. Teachers' Guides are also available. In addition, they offer a wide variety of workshops designed for grades kindergarten through sixth grade and adults.

Very few people possess the unique combination of talent, creativity and expertise — as performers, technicians, designers and builders — to earn the title "Master Puppeteer." Bob Brown is one of them.

Rosella Miner was the coordinator of the event and Karen Maust arranged the music and decorations. Some 20 different outfits were modeled, including five wedding gowns, four of which are pictured here. Above left, Karen Maust, L.P.N., models her gown of Chantilly lace with satin ribbon, ruffles, and a V-shaped neckline. Her hat and veil were handmade by her mother, Phyllis. Above right is Carrie Will, wearing the gown of her sister, Rosella Miner, who was married 26 years ago. The gown has a blue scooped V-neck in the back with a flared skirt of satin, net, and lace, plus a satin midriff. Below left is Beverly Miner, daughter of Rosella Miner, wearing the wedding gown of Doris McKenzie (1957). The gown has a blue flared strapless top, and is made of silk lace and net ruffles, and includes a lace jacket. Below right, Una Schaefer, a nurse's aid at Goodwill, models the 1946 gown of Esther Kolb, who works in the business office at the home. The gown is made of satin and has a sweetheart neckline. The veil was made by Mrs. Kolb's mother and was held in place with a garland of mums.

Preston Electric To Be Purchased By Mon Power

Monongahela Power, a sister company to Potomac Edison and subsidiary of the Allegheny Power System, plans to purchase the electric distribution system of Preston Electric. The acquisition of Preston Electric, a Mon Power wholesale customer, will be complete once state and federal regulatory approvals are obtained.

Preston Electric, a subsidiary of ALLTEL corporation, serves approximately 4,500 customers in a 70-square mile area of Preston and Monongahela counties in West Virginia. Mon Power serves about 317,000 customers in northern West Virginia and southeastern Ohio, including most of Monongahela and Preston counties.

Preston does not generate its own power, but as a wholesale customer of Mon Power's, buys electricity from the utility and resells it to customers through its own distribution system.

Preston Electric was chartered in the early 1900s by the Preston County Development Co. of Cascade to furnish electric light and power to Mason-town, Kingwood and Morgantown. It became Preston County Light and Power and continued to serve the areas of Mason-town, Arthurdale and Reeds-ville after Monongahela Power began providing electricity to the surrounding area.

The purchase will enable Mon Power — which currently sells electricity wholesale for Preston to resell to its customers — to now serve Preston's retail customers directly, according to a company spokesman. "The sale makes economic sense for ALLTEL, because it will enable the company to concentrate on its primary purpose by eliminating a secondary operation," the spokesman said.

SOIL AND WATER STEWARDSHIP WEEK — No Courthouse office seemed appropriate for the proclamation of "Soil and Water Stewardship Week," so the Garrett County Commissioners met with the Garrett Soil Conservation District Board of Supervisors on the rolling farmland just outside of Oakland to hold the ceremony. The national observation of Soil and Water Stewardship Week, May 24-31, is to show full appreciation of the value of soil and water resources to the public welfare, and to honor all who protect those resources. Pictured,

HELP, HOPE, HEALING Soil & Water Stewardship Week May 24-31, 1987

"America's strength comes from its people helping people."

"The survival and well-being of America's farmers is a matter of deep concern to our nation."

"The national welfare depends on careful stewardship of our national resources."

Help, Hope, Healing Is Theme Of Soil & Water Stewardship Week

This week, May 24-31, is the observance of the 33rd annual Soil and Water Stewardship Week across the nation. The program is designed to remind all Americans that soil, water and related natural resources are vital, and must be of deep concern to the nation's people, as well as a concern for the survival and well-being of the soil's primary custodians — the nation's farmers and ranchers. This year's theme, "Help, Hope, Healing," emphasizes that the basic motivation for the conservation and orderly development of natural resources is man's recognition of his responsibility under God to protect and use wisely his gifts of soil, water and the myriad of related elements making up the environment.

Five tons of topsoil spread over an acre is as thick as a dime.

Soil scientists have identified over 70,000 kinds of soil in the United States.

Soil Conservation Program Has Long History In State

The soil conservation program in Maryland was authorized by the Soil Conservation District Law passed in 1937, with the first district formed in 1938. There are now 24 districts. They occupy the same boundaries as the counties except in Frederick County where there are two districts.

The Soil Conservation District Law also established the State Soil Conservation Committee (SSCC) as the state agency responsible for organizing, advising and assisting soil conservation districts. The Committee became a part of the Maryland Department of Agriculture on January 1, 1973.

The current membership of the SSCC includes representatives of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, Maryland Department of Natural Resources, the University of Maryland, the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station, and the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. Each soil conservation district is managed by a five-member board of supervisors. Four of the supervisors are appointed by the SSCC. The fifth is appointed by the county government. Under the Soil Conservation District Law, each board of supervisors is responsible for carrying out a soil and water conservation program to "provide for the conservation of the soil, water, and related resources of the state and for the control and prevention of soil erosion in order to preserve natural resources, control floods, prevent impairment of dams and reservoirs, assist in maintaining the navigability of rivers and harbors, preserve wildlife, protect the tax base, protect the public lands, protect and promote the health, safety, and general welfare of the people of the state, and otherwise enhance their living environment."

Through districts, technical and financial assistance is available to landowners and operators to carry out soil and water conservation practices. Technical assistance is provided primarily by the USDA Soil Conservation Service, supplemented by assistance from state and local governments. The Maryland Forest Service and Maryland Department of Natural Resources also assist landowners.

The soil conservation districts program provides a means and opportunity for all agencies and organizations working in conservation to join together and discuss mutual concerns and problems. The supervisors, as key local leaders, weigh the attitudes and needs of local people in the consideration of proposed programs and solutions to problems. Coordination is then carried beyond the meeting table to the public who benefits from assistance of many agencies simply by going through one local organization — their soil conservation district.

Garrett Soil Conservation District, What Is It And What Does It Do?

The Garrett Soil Conservation District (GSCD) is an independent unit of Maryland government organized according to the Soil Conservation District Act of 1937. Thus the GSCD, as any soil conservation district in Maryland, is neither a state nor county agency. The GSCD is governed by a board of five local supervisors or directors. The Garrett District board of supervisors currently are: Chairman George Bishoff; Vice Chairman Harry Hummel; Treasurer Claude Wagner, Jr.; Member Harley Brenneman; Member Marvin Kolb; Associate Member David Thomas; Associate Member W. Brooks Hamilton.

Employees of the district are: District Manager Shaun Sanders; Secretary Wanda Foley; Technician David Bardsley; Technician Cheston Miller; Planner Charles Hayes.

Working very closely with the district is the Soil Conservation Service (SCS). SCS is an agency of the United States Department of Agriculture and is primarily responsible for providing technical assistance to the district. The SCS employees in the office are: District Conservationist James Schlossnagle; and Conservation Technician Kim A. Meyers.

Other agencies assisting the Garrett District are: USDA, Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, University of Maryland, Cooperative Extension Service, and the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

Also, the district has formal agreements called "memorandum of understanding" with various other local, state, and federal organizations which assist in the planning and implementation of the conservation program.

In broad terms, the GSCD is "charged with the job of assisting in the prevention and control of soil erosion and proper land use. This results in the preservation of natural resources, control of floods, prevention of siltation in streams and reservoirs, preservation of wildlife and the protection and promotion of the health, safety and general welfare of the people of the state."

The district provides assistance to landowners and users who are interested in installing conservation measures. Some of these measures include: advice and information on minimum and no-till, contour strips

A Bushel Of Soil For A Bushel Of Corn? SCS Says "Yes"

Public information by the Soil Conservation Service about soil losses expressed in tons does not make much of an impression. Who knows what a ton of soil looks like? But many farmers may be shocked when soil losses are presented in another way. For example, the SCS asks, "Do you believe this: If a moderately sloping field loses six tons of soil per year while producing a 100 bushel corn yield, the farmer is permanently exchanging more than a bushel of soil for every bushel of corn harvested. It's true."

The SCS proves this by explaining that the weight of a cubic foot of southern cropland soil is about 90 pounds. (This varies, depending on organic content and other factors, but this is an average.) Therefore, 2,000 divided by 90 equals 22.2 cubic feet per ton. There are 1.24 cubic feet in a bushel. Therefore, 22.2 cubic feet per ton divided by 1.24 cubic feet per bushel equals 17.9 bushels of soil per ton. Hence, tons of soil lost can be multiplied by 17.9 to come up with the bushels of soil lost in any given situation. In the example above, 17.9 bushels of soil per ton multiplied by six tons of soil lost per acre equals 107.4 bushels of soil lost to produce 100 bushels of corn.

The SCS invites farmers to try this on other crops for some surprising answers about soil loss.

"Maryland — With Pride" Logo Unveiled By Governor Schaefer

Governor William Donald Schaefer unveiled the "Maryland — With Pride" logo on Friday, May 15. This logo will be used by Maryland enterprises in promoting all things grown, processed, or made in Maryland.

Unveiling the new symbol at a brunch co-sponsored by the governor's office, the state Department of Agriculture, the Department of Economic and Community Development, the World Trade Center Institute, Governor Schaefer said, "I am delighted to present the state's diverse business community with such a striking symbol of quality."

"This is the kind of thing we should be doing in Maryland. It makes me proud to be able to launch this logo and encourage every business in the state to use it," the governor continued. "We should all be promoting Maryland in every way we can. Let's show the rest of the world just how proud we are of Maryland, its products, and its people."

The colorful logo, a pennant emblazoned with the historic heraldry of the Maryland state flag, can be reproduced for use on all things made in Maryland, processed in Maryland, and grown in Maryland.

Six prominent Maryland businesses will be the first to utilize "Maryland — With Pride" on their products. Representing a variety of enterprises, they are: Giant Food, Inc., of Landover; Byrd's Seafood, Inc., of Crisfield; Mid-Atlantic Coca-Cola Company of Silver Spring; Avalon Hill, a toy and game company of Baltimore; D.R.J. Exercise Equipment, Inc., of Denton; and Rinehart Orchards of Smithsburg.

During the ceremony at the World Trade Center, before an audience of Maryland business and industry leaders, Governor Schaefer encouraged all Maryland businesses to join the "Maryland — With Pride" team. Products from the six companies carrying the logo were on display.

Businesses interested in obtaining copies of the logo should write: "Maryland — With Pride" Promotion, Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401.

Land Is Varied In Maryland's Five Conservation Regions

Maryland stretches from the waters of the Atlantic to the mountains of Appalachia. The land is varied. Naturally, then, soil conservation district's programs and planning must be designed to meet their varying needs.

The five basic "conservation regions" are: Western Maryland, Piedmont, Southern Maryland, Urban Corridor, and Eastern Shore. Four of them are geographic, resulting from the natural variations of the earth's surface. The other region is the man-made urban and suburban corridor from Washington, D.C., to Wilmington, Delaware.

The Eastern Shore, the land area east of the Chesapeake Bay, lies wholly within the Atlantic Coastal Plain. The land, mostly level, is well suited to large, mechanized farming operations. Woodlands, game and wildlife, and recreation areas are plentiful. Rivers are enormous, water is abundant and often close to the surface. The growing season averages 180 days. Water and soil management needs vary considerably from the lower to the upper portions of the shore.

Southern Maryland is also part of the Atlantic Coastal Plain. However, unlike the Eastern Shore, Southern Maryland is mostly rolling upland, attaining in places four times the elevation (460 feet) of the low-lying Shore. The soils were developed in the sand, silt, and clay sediments typical of the Coastal Plain. Higher elevations, steepness of slopes, the rolling contour of the land, and 300 years of intensively cultivated crops, make soil erosion the major conservation problem in this region.

The Piedmont region starts at the "Fall Line," where the landscape begins to rise up from the Coastal Plain. This region includes all of central Maryland, roughly 2,500 square miles, ending at the Catoctin Soil Conservation District in western Frederick County. From the Fall Line west and north the Piedmont surface increases in elevation in a broad undulating landscape.

The region includes some of Maryland's most fertile farmland. The state's dairy and livestock industries are concentrated there, and over half of the region is farmed. The rolling hills, medium-textured soils, and increasing urbanization in some sections contribute to soil erosion, the principal conservation problem of this region.

REGIONAL FFA WINNERS — Garrett County FFA Chapters will be well represented in the State Extemporaneous Speaking Contest and the State Creed Contest competitions to be held during the FFA State Convention in Hagerstown on June 17 and 18. Winning in the regional contest, which involves three FFA chapters, North Garrett, Oakland and Flintstone, and was held recently at Northern High School, were: (pictured left to right)

John Miller, of the North Garrett Chapter, first place senior extemporaneous public speaking contest winner; Mike Kepple, of the Oakland Chapter, first place junior extemporaneous public speaking contest winner; Richard McCrobie, of the Oakland Chapter, first place in the creed contest for freshmen; and Paul Miller, second place in the creed contest for freshmen. All four boys will compete in the state contest next month.

Report Is In On Average National Farmland Values

The USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service reports that the average value per acre of farmland and buildings, for selected states, has continued to decline in 1987.

In four Mid-Atlantic states, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland, the following changes were reported: A 36-percent increase in land values were reported in New Jersey, with average price per acre rising from $2,947 in 1980 to $5,321 in 1987. Likewise, an increase in land values was seen in Pennsylvania (19 percent), with average per-acre values in 1980 ($1,464) increasing to $1,725 in 1987. Delaware saw a slight (one percent) increase, with land values of $1,798 in 1980 rising to $1,775 in 1987.

Maryland, on the other hand, saw land values continue to decline since 1980 when the average value per acre of land and buildings was $2,238, to 1987's value of $1,831 per acre. This is

U.S. figures show a minus-eight-percent increase since 1980. Land values in the 48 continental states fell from $737 per acre in 1980 to $548 per acre in 1987.

Reports show that in some sections of the nation which have been hardest hit by falling land values, however, a cautious turn-around is taking place.

Farmland values stabilized in much of the Midwest in the first quarter of 1987 — a marked contrast to the steep slide that had prevailed since 1981. The results of a survey of 525 agricultural bankers in five Midwestern states were an encouraging sign for farmers looking for a rebound from financial distress, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

The Chicago Fed, however, said special factors may account for some of the gains, adding that "future trends in farmland values remain uncertain."

As reported in a recent Associated Press release, farmland values rose an average 0.4 percent in the first three months of the year in the district made up of Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin. This was the first rise since a modest increase in the first and second quarter of 1983.

In contrast, from 1981 to the end of last year, land values in the district had plummeted by 50 percent as measured by the Chicago Fed. But even with the slight gain in the first quarter of 1987, values in the survey results were down by eight percent from a year earlier.

Weather Was Near Normal In April

Monthly temperatures averaged 52.5 degrees F. (normal, 53.6 degrees F.) for Maryland. Last year, monthly temperatures averaged 53.5 degrees F. in Maryland.

Monthly precipitations averaged 3.44 inches (normal, 3.44 inches) for Maryland. Last year, monthly precipitation averaged 2.44 inches for Maryland. Heaviest total precipitation for Maryland was found mostly in the three western counties.

Measurable snowfall occurred in Northern Maryland. Oakland reported 16.5 inches while in Carroll County as much as 8.8 inches was reported.

Non-discrimination of Employment

BIDDERS ON THIS WORK WILL BE REQUIRED TO COMPLY WITH THE PRESIDENT'S EXECUTIVE ORDER NO. 11246. THE REQUIREMENTS FOR BIDDERS AND CONTRACTORS UNDER THIS ORDER ARE EXPLAINED IN THE SPECIFICATIONS AND INSTRUCTIONS.

Notice of Requirement

For Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities

Bidders and offerors are cautioned as follows: By signing this bid or offer, the bidder or offeror will be deemed to have signed and agreed to the provisions of the "Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities" in this solicitation. The certification provides that the bidder or offeror does not maintain or provide for his employees facilities which are segregated on a basis of race, creed, color, or national origin, whether such facilities are segregated by directive or on a de facto basis. The certification also provides that he will not maintain such segregated facilities. Failure of a bidder or offeror to agree to the Certification of Nonsegregated facilities will render his bid or offer nonresponsive to the terms of solicitations involving awards or contracts exceeding $10,000 which are not exempt from the provisions of the Equal Opportunity clause.

The attention of prospective bidders is directed to the Agreement Section of the Contract, wherein the requirements for compliance with certain Federal Laws and Regulations on this project are specifically set forth. Among the requirements are those pertaining to the payment of prevailing wages to be paid as established by the U.S. Department of Labor, employment of local labor and non discrimination in employment.

Any contract awarded under this invitation to bid is expected to be funded in part by a grant from the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA). Neither the United States nor any of its departments, agencies or employees is or will be a party to this invitation to bid or any resulting contract. The procurement will be subject to regulations contained in 48 CFR part 33 or its successors and the EPA Policy and goal regarding the increased use of Minority Business Enterprise (MBE). The policy as well as the cited regulations are contained in the specifications.

The contract shall be subject to the applicable compliance standards and procedures of 40 CFR Part 8, Equal Employment Opportunity Under EPA Contracts and EPA Assisted Construction Contracts.

As part of the procedure for determining the ability of contractors to comply with the Equal Opportunity clause, prospective bidders may be required to attend the meeting scheduled by the Environmental Protection Agency prior to opening of bids where they will be instructed in the equal employment opportunities of the agency.

Time For Completion

The successful bidder will be required to fully complete all contract work within three hundred sixty (360) consecutive calendar days from and including the date of receipt from the Owner of a formal notice to proceed.

Award of Contract

The award of any contract will be made by the Owner.

The Owner reserves the right to reject any proposal for failure to comply with all requirements of this notice or of any of the Contract Documents; however, it may waive any minor defects or informalities at its discretion.

The Owner further reserves the right to reject all proposals, or to award a contract or Contracts which in its judgment is in the best interest of the Owner.

County's First Rabies Case Of Year Confirmed

Garrett County Environmental Health Officer Rodney Giotfelty reported the county's first confirmed case of rabies for the 1987 season this week.

Giotfelty reported that a dog belonging to Charles and Sharon Teets, who live off of Sanders Lane near Hutton, apparently killed an animal, which later proved to be a raccoon, on May 25. The dead raccoon was found in the Teets' yard on May 26, and the couple called the Health Department on May 27. The raccoon was taken to the lab and tests proved positive to rabies.

The dog, which had a rabies vaccination, was re-vaccinated and will be restrained for three months.

Giotfelty stated that the department is planning more rabies clinics for the week of June 22 for those who missed the May clinics. More information on the June clinic will be released on a later date.

B&E. Theft Results In Over $4,000 Loss

A breaking and entering and theft that occurred sometime between May 22 and 23 resulted in a $4000 loss for the Deep Creek Lions Club.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department is investigating the incident that took place on Bumble Bee Road at the McHenry Community Center where a John Deere 16 horsepower garden tractor was taken.

According to police reports, entry was gained through a wooden panel of a garage door.

Deputy L.E. Gnegy is investigating.

The theft of a Winchester model, 9422M, .22 magnum rifle was reported by Gilroy A. Bowser. Accident, that occurred sometime between May 25 and 26 at Friend's Stockyard, located near Accident.

According to Bowser, the rifle was taken from his 1969 Chevrolet pick-up truck parked there.

The rifle was equipped with a Tasco scope and leather sling, and is valued at $450.

In other news from the Sheriff's Department, a criminal summons was served to Mark J. Harvey, Kitzmiller, charging him with battery.

The charge was filed by Darvin C. Moon, Deer Park, following a May 23 incident at Backbone Mtn. Inn, Table Rock.

Deputy Russell Drenning served the summons.

A criminal summons was also served to Michael P. Shannon, Oakland, charging him with wanton trespassing and malicious destruction of property.

Carolyn Hegeman, also of Oakland, filed the charges following a May 8 incident at her residence.

Deputy Drenning served the summons.

GOING AIRBORNE in the long jump is this unidentified youngster who was among scores of local fourth and fifth graders who participated in the first elementary school Track and Field Day on Monday at the Southern High School Track. The eight-event, non-competitive meet involved students from six southern Garrett County elementary schools and was coordinated by physical education teachers and the Southern track coaching staff. Assisting with the effort were members of the Southern track teams. At left is Alden Perando, a member of the Southern boys team.

Local Groups Pool Resources For Housing

1987 has been designated by the United Nations as the International Year of Shelter for the Homeless. The purpose of the year is to raise consciousness concerning the lack of adequate housing in the world.

In support of the year, Garrett County Community Action, Garrett County Habitat for Humanity, and the Friendsville United Methodist Church have pooled their resources in a creative spirit of partnership to help meet a need of a local family.

According to a Habitat spokesman, Carrie Sines and her son, John, have been living in a small two-room house without plumbing for almost 30 years. The house is about 12 feet wide and 15 feet long. Over the years the heavy snows have caused the roof to sag and sink. In the kitchen, the floor has dropped away from the wall, letting in the cold air and "uninvited creatures."

"All of that is about to change," the spokesman said.

The Garrett County Community Action Agency will loan Mrs. Sines the money for materials to build a new house. The loan will also include a salary for a construction foreman.

Garrett County Habitat for Humanity has provided the house design and the co-ordination of the project. Volunteers will come from the Friendsville United Methodist Church to do the construction.

Other cooperative partnerships are being planned by the Community Action Agency, Habitat for Humanity and other local churches.

State Foresters To Hold Session On Gypsy Moth

The gypsy moth is spreading a destructive path through western Maryland forests with heavy infestations and subsequent damage to the timber and other natural resources. To address the gypsy moth epidemic in state forests, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources' Forest, Park and Wildlife Service will hold a public informational meeting on Saturday, June 13. The meeting, featuring a panel of forest managers, scientists and educators, will begin at 10 a.m. in the multi-media unit at Allegany Community College in Cumberland.

The insect was first reported in the U.S. in 1869; since 1969 the moth has multiplied and spread through the eastern states. The DNR says the forest lands of western Maryland are particularly vulnerable and are now heavily infested. "The state-owned forests of Green Ridge, Savage River and Potomac/Garrett may lose thousands of acres of healthy timber," a DNR spokesman said. "The devastation of the forests will create a serious impact on the forest product industries within the state."

State Forester James Roberts will lead the panel of speakers. The panel will also present the timber harvest plans for the next five years.

There is no charge for the informational session which is open to the public. Discussion will focus on silvicultural and aerial spray strategies required to minimize the adverse effects of the gypsy moth.

Three Injured Wednesday In Glendale Road Vehicle Mishaps

Two accidents that occurred yesterday on Glendale Road, noteworthy for its dangerous curves, resulted in three local persons being transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Two Swanton teenagers escaped serious injury yesterday morning when their 1987 Pontiac 6000 LE hit a tree at 15 feet off the ground, overturned and rolled down an embankment.

The car then became airborne, hitting the tree.

Both she and her passenger, Bernadette Fousek, 17, according to State Police records, was traveling westbound on an apparent high rate of speed when she lost control of the vehicle, crossed the center line, came back into the westbound lane and ran off the right side of the road, striking a fence.

The accident occurred at approximately 8 a.m. near Beachy Road.

The D.G. Riggelman investigating the accident.

An Oakland man remains a patient at Garrett Memorial Hospital in "satisfactory" condition following the second accident that occurred at 10:46 p.m. just east of Toothpick Road.

Patrick L. Gregg, 25, was operating a 1986 Ford Taurus westbound when he failed to negotiate a curve, traveling off the right side of the road and colliding with a group of trees.

According to Gregg, the accident occurred when he swerved to avoid hitting an unidentified vehicle traveling eastbound in the middle of the road.

He was taken to the hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad. An Oakland man escaped serious injury.

Canadian Police Apprehend Youths Monday

Three youths involved in the beating and robbing of a Salisbury, Pa. man last week have since been apprehended by police in Canada.

According to Maryland State Police officer, Sgt. Robert E. Friend, the three, a 17-year-old male, an 18-year-old male and a 14-year-old female, were apprehended Monday along with a 1980 AMC Eagle. They had stolen the vehicle from Robert F. Beal Jr., May 22 when he stopped at their disabled vehicle near Keyser's Ridge to see if they needed assistance.

Beal was then taken over an embankment where he was beaten over the head with a blunt object and the youths fled, stealing his vehicle and credit cards. They returned a short time later and beat him a second time, this time removing the registration plates and keys from their car.

Those charged with the robbery/assault are Chad A. Hanson, 18, Harrington, Del. and Bernie J. Emery, 17, Lutherville, Emery is being charged and will be tried as an adult.

The 14-year-old female from Wyoming, Del. will be turned over to juvenile authorities. The charges filed against Hanson and Emery, by Sgt. Friend, are robbery with a deadly weapon, assault with intent to murder, assault with intent to commit robbery, carrying a dangerous or deadly weapon, theft and assault and

Governor Signs County Liquor Law; Press Conference Held By Sponsor

Governor William Donald Schaefer signed into law Tuesday a bill which was the subject of a press conference, Monday, in the Garrett County Commissioners' meeting room.

Signed into law by the governor was House Bill 658, calling for the establishment of a standard fee structure rather than a 10 percent surcharge, and eliminating the position of Liquor Control Board administrator.

Calling the press conference was bill sponsor Delegate George C. Edwards. Also present were Commissioners Elwood L. Groves II and John G. Braskey. Del. Edwards explained to news media representatives that Senator John N. Bamabus regretted not being able to attend because of a previous commitment. He said, however, that the senator confirmed in a phone conversation that he concurred with the statement Del. Edwards intended to make.

In review, Edwards said that after HB-658 had passed this session of the legislature, quite a few comments had been made in the newspapers by the Liquor Control Board, some not quite accurate. "I think we've been quiet long enough in responding to comments of the Liquor Board," Edwards said.

As background information, Edwards said the bill had come about after he had been presented with a proposal by people in the liquor business. The delegate said his next step was to contact people, including the Garrett County Commissioners, by cover letter asking them to look at the proposal and decide if they could support it as it appeared, or with amendments. Edwards stressed that nothing was drafted at that time.

Edwards received a letter, signed by the three commissioners, stating that they

Another Pilot Escapes Injury In Plane Crash

A pilot escaped serious injury Sunday when the second airplane in a little over three weeks, spraying for gypsy moths, crashed.

Pilot Kent J. Niese, 21, Ottawa, Ohio, walked away from the 1980 Ayres Thrush single-engine aircraft after it crashed at Poplar Link in the Savage River Forest.

On May 8, a Canadian pilot escaped injury when the turbo-thrust airplane he was flying crashed near Rt. 48 in LaVale. He had also been spraying for gypsy moths when the aircraft hit a high-tension cable wire.

The more recent crash occurred when the propeller of Niese's plane struck a power line and became tangled in it. According to Maryland State Police, McHenry detachment, the impact with the 200-foot-high wire caused the propeller to become unbalanced.

The engine then stalled and the plane hit some near-by trees and crashed to the ground.

Northern Rescue and the State Police Medevac helicopter, along with state forest personnel, responded to the accident.

had looked closely at the fiscal impact the proposal would have on the county, had their staff do a thorough analysis of the proposal and determined that it was "relatively revenue neutral."

The bill was then drafted and introduced in the House of Delegates. The commissioners continued to offer input and technical changes throughout the process of the bill, said

Commissioners Strongly Respond To LCB Claims

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners at a press conference Tuesday strongly responded to the most recent contention of the License Commission Board that the county would stand to lose $100,000 with House Bill 658. That bill was introduced by Delegate George Edwards and endorsed by the county commissioners. (See separate story for explanation of bill and Del. Edwards comments made at a separate press conference Tuesday.)

"The county will not incur a $100,000 loss as a result of this legislation," stated Commissioner Elwood Groves II. "The License Commission Board simply refuses to admit the intent of this legislation."

Groves said that the LCB misinterpreted the opinion of Attorney General Joseph Curran regarding H.B. 658.

"We feel it's time for the LCB to do its job and abide by the new legislation," said Commissioner John Braskey. "If they can't do that, then they need to determine if they should continue to serve in that capacity."

When asked if they (county commissioners) planned to ask members of the LCB to step down from their posts, the commissioners explained that they did not have the authority to do that. The LCB is an autonomous board, appointed by the county delegate, although they are the only board sitting in the county which receives county benefits.

The commissioners said that the county attorney also agreed with the opinion of the attorney general "which only served to substantiate the figures arrived at in determining that H.B. 658 was relatively revenue neutral."

"We stand by our original fiscal analysis of that bill and we are tired of our credibility being questioned because of the LCB's political opposition to the bill and because, we suspect, they are trying to protect the enjoy the bush that he planted, along with all the other trees on his property, along the Accident-Bittinger Road. According to Mr. Alexander, the bush is eight feet tall in the center. Next to him is Cecelia Brant, his health care attendant and housekeeper.

ANOTHER MEMORIAL DAY was observed in various towns in Garrett County last Friday, with parades, prayers, music, speeches, wreath laying, and special dedications. Above, the color guard leads the procession into the Oakland Cemetery, where Senator John Bambacus gave the main address. Members of the American Legion, Vietnam Veterans of America, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Knights of Pythias, Disabled American Veterans, Elks Lodge, various auxiliaries, scouting groups, and the Southern High School band participated. At right, World War I veteran Richard Maroney, Oakland, lays a wreath on the grave of the unknown soldier. Following the ceremonies at the cemetery, a special program was held on the Garrett County Courthouse plaza to unveil and dedicate the Vietnam Memorial Plaque, which bears the names of Garrett County soldiers who were killed in that war. The plaque was a project of Garrett County Chapter 245, Vietnam Veterans of America. Below, members of various veterans groups present a rifle salute.

SINCERE THANKS

I would like to thank the Love, Caring and Sharing Group from the United Methodist Bloomington Charge and my friends and neighbors for the re-building of my garage last Saturday. My garage recently burned to the ground and this fine group of Christian people got together early Saturday morning and completely constructed a new one in its place.

May God bless each and every one of the people that took time from their families to help me.

Garage Sale To Benefit Heart

Transplant Patient: Items Needed

An article which appeared last month in The Republican about former Garrett County resident Neil Woods, who is awaiting heart transplant surgery at Presbyterian University Hospital in Pittsburgh, Pa., prompted friends of Mr. and Mrs. Woods to plan a benefit garage sale to help the Woods family with their finances.

Sharon King and Linda Shank Riley, both of Deer Park, will hold a garage sale Saturday, June 27, beginning at 9 a.m., at the Deer Park Volunteer Fire Hall.

Good re-sellable items are needed for the garage sale. Those with items to donate should call King, after 5 p.m., at 334-8579 to arrange to have the donated items picked up or drop them off at her residence in Deer Park.

Anyone wishing to make a cash donation should make checks payable to Loretta Woods and mail them to Sharon King, Route 4, Box 10, Deer Park, MD 21550. All money from donations and garage sale proceeds will be given to the Woods family.

Mr. Woods is a 1949 graduate from the Oakland High School, served in the United States Army in 1954-56, and is married to the former Loretta Wolfe of the Red House area. The couple has five children.

King and Riley say that any and all contributions will be greatly appreciated, and stress, "Have a heart, and help!"

Habitat Seeks Offerings From Local Churches

Garrett County Habitat for Humanity, Inc., a non-denominational housing ministry, is calling upon the congregations of Garrett County churches to consider taking a special offering this Sunday, June 7 (Pentecost Sunday), to benefit Habitat. Many local churches have done so the past three years.

According to a spokesman for Habitat, the goal of this special effort is $20,000, enough to build one house for a local needy family. He noted that 1987 has been declared the International Year of Shelter for the Homeless.

Bloodmobile To Visit Friendsville

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit the Friendsville Fire Hall on Friday, June 12. Blood will be collected from 1 to 7 p.m. Donors must be at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds, and be in generally good health.

Local blood program chairmen stress that the need for blood is always the greatest during the summer months, so they urge all to consider donating.

Friendsville Man "Stable" After Tuesday Mishap

Numerous accidents were investigated this past week by the Maryland State Police, one resulting in a Friendsville man being hospitalized.

DeForest Johnston, 61, is listed in "stable" condition in the medical surgical unit at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, following injuries he received Tuesday afternoon in a one-car accident.

Johnston was operating his 1979 Chevrolet Silverado north on Rt. 42 when the vehicle ran off the right side of the road, striking a large rock. The car re-entered the roadway, overturned and ejected Johnston.

Tfc. G.R. Chaney investigated.

A 14-year-old Keyser, W.Va. girl remains a patient at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, in "stable" condition following injuries she received last Thursday in a one-car accident.

Leandra Smith was a passenger in a 1975 Ford F-150 driven by Michael R. Shugars, 17, Westernport, W.Va.

Eric M. Clay, 13, Piedmont, W.Va., another passenger, was also admitted to the hospital as a result of injuries received in the accident and has since been released.

Two other passengers, Brian Westfall, 15, Piedmont, and Kelly Barber, 16, Keyser, were treated and released.

The accident occurred at midnight when Shugars was traveling eastbound on Savage River Road two miles west of Md. Rt. 135 and, failing to negotiate a curve in the roadway, traveled across the center and struck a rock wall on the left-hand side. Another passenger in the vehicle, Danny M. Cook, 22, Westernport, was apparently not injured.

Tfc. D.W. Broadwater investigated the accident.

The Maryland State Police Medevac helicopter and the Tri-Towns Rescue Squad transported the injured passengers.

Two youths were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where they were treated for injuries and released following an accident that occurred Sunday at 2:30 p.m. on private property off Sang Run Road.

Joseph T. Spiker, 14, McHenry, and David A. Baiata, 13, Kingsville, were both injured when the 1986 Polara 250 Baiata was operating flipped over backwards while ascending a hill. The four-wheeler landed on the youths.

Tfc. L. Rosage investigated the accident.

Another accident involving a four-wheel recreational vehicle occurred when a 15-year-old McHenry youth was operating a 1987 Suzuki LT 300 across Rt. 50, failing to grant the right of way to a 1983 Chrysler New Yorker traveling westbound.

The second vehicle was operated by Howard T. Snider, 64, Fairmont, W.Va. Kathleen D. Snider, 61, also of Fairmont, was a passenger in the vehicle at the time.

According to the investigating officer's report, the youth and Snider were both injured but there was no indication on the report that they were treated for injuries.

The McHenry youth was charged by Tfc. D.G. Riggelman with driving an unregistered and uninsured vehicle, being an unlicensed driver and failure to stop at the entrance to a through highway.

An 18-year-old Gaithersburg man was taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where he was treated for injuries and released following a one-car accident Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

Matthew D. Taylor, 18, was operating a 1978 Ford Mustang eastbound on Rt. 48 when he lost control of the vehicle and struck an embankment. The vehicle then overturned.

The vehicle continued back onto the roadway and across the road, again running off the right side, striking an embankment and overturning before it came to rest.

Taylor was charged by Tpr. Paul R. Brown with failure to drive in a single lane and being an unlicensed driver.

An accident that occurred last Thursday at 10 p.m. resulted in a Pennsylvania man being treated for injuries at Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, and released.

John V. Morosky, Richeyville, was traveling westbound on Rt. 48 on a 1980 Harley Davidson motorcycle when he was struck from the rear by a 1972 Ford Pinto operated by Rickey L. Baker, 38, Toronto, Ohio.

According to police reports, Baker, who was also traveling westbound, was changing lanes when he struck the motorcycle.

Morosky was thrown from the motorcycle on impact and the bike continued on for 150 feet before coming to a rest.

Tpr. Paul R. Brown charged Baker with driving while intoxicated and failure to drive in a single lane.

Jason R. Jacobs, 18, Frostburg, was treated for injuries at Sacred Heart Hospital and released following injuries he received in a one-car accident last Wednesday, May 27, at 3 p.m.

Jacobs was operating a 1980 Chevrolet Blazer northbound on Savage River Road when he lost control of the vehicle and ran off the right side of the road.

The vehicle continued traveling for 75 feet before striking a ditch, then traveled another 20 feet before it finally struck a tree where it came to rest.

Tpr. Brown investigated.

Michael D. Vance, 16, Mtn.

Lake Park, was treated for injuries at Garrett County Memorial Hospital and released following injuries he received in an accident Sunday at 9 a.m.

Vance was operating a 1987 Dodge Omni southbound on Old U.S. Rt. 219 when he lost control of the vehicle, went off the right side of the road and struck an embankment. The vehicle then overturned.

Tfc. D.G. Riggelman investigated.

New Events To Be Featured At Grantsville Days

Several new events have been scheduled for the 10th annual Grantsville Days, slated for June 26-28, according to Gerry Beachy, chairman.

Among the new events are a tractor pulling contest, and three- and four-wheeler pulling contest, and a horse pulling contest. The first two events will be held Saturday, June 27, and the horse pulling contest will be held Sunday, June 28, beginning at 2 p.m.

In the horse pulling event there will be two classes: lightweight (under 3,200 lbs.) and heavyweight (over 3,200).

The horses will be weighed from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Grantsville Livestock barn along Route 669 north of Grantsville. Prize money will be awarded following the pull and trophies will be awarded to the first-place team in each class.

The contest is being sponsored by local businesses and the public is invited to watch. For further information, persons may contact Dave Warnick, 245-4406, or Leo Miller, 895-5865.

The pulling contests will be held on land recently acquired by the Grantsville Lions, adjacent to the ball fields just north of the present park boundary.

A three-day tennis tournament will begin on Friday, June 26, with the finals set for Sunday. This event is being coordinated by Tom Vent and persons may contact him for more information.

Also this year, instead of one fireworks display, there will be two displays, both being sponsored by local businesses. The Friday night display is being sponsored by Kelly's Furniture and Appliances and the Saturday night display is being sponsored by Grantsville Foodland/Ben Franklin.

Groups or individuals desiring to operate a booth during Grantsville Days and persons wishing to participate in Sunday's Christian music program are asked to contact Gerry Beachy, chairman, at Beachy's Pharmacy, 895-5177.

Grantsville Lions Vote To Support Quest Program

The Grantsville Lions Club had as their guest on Thursday, May 22, Lowell Jackman, chairman of the Alcoholism and Drug Awareness Committee of Lions District 22W. Jackman explained the Quest Program which has been accepted by the Allegany and Garrett County boards of education to be taught in the Middle Schools next fall.

The program is totally funded by District 22W Lions clubs through various fundraisers and individual donations. The cost to begin the program will be about $30,000 for both counties. Teachers from the Middle Schools have been sent to a three-day seminar to learn about the Quest Program. Books and workbooks for the student and a workbook for the parents will also be purchased. The program teaches the child to say "NO" to drugs, but also teaches them how to deal with peer pressure and the changes that occur during puberty.

Linda Youmans, teacher, and Jack Settle, guidance counselor, at Northern Middle School attended the Quest Seminar and were also guests at the meeting. They said they were both "very enthusiastic" about the program and feel that it should be an important part of Middle School Education.

Also attending the meeting were members of the Friendsville and Lonaconing Lions Clubs who presented donations from their clubs to Jackman for the Quest Program. The Grantsville Lions Club met after the presentation and decided to donate $1,000 to the Quest Program.

One Major Point . . .

There has been considerable feuding going on lately between the Garrett County Liquor Control Board, the Garrett County Commissioners, and Delegate George Edwards concerning House Bill 658, which was signed into law Tuesday by Governor Schaefer. The bill eliminates a 10 percent county surcharge on alcoholic beverage sales, creates an initial license fee for new businesses, and increases a set, annual license fee.

The Liquor Control Board has been staunchly opposed to this legislation, maintaining all along that its passage will result in a $100,000 loss to the county. The law also does away with the position of the Board administrator. Delegate Edwards, with the support of the commissioners, believes that the law will have a relatively neutral effect on revenue and will, in the long run, enhance local business.

In examining both sides of the issue, we tend to support Delegate Edwards and the commissioners on this matter. We sense that the Liquor Control Board is being motivated on this issue not primarily for economic reasons, but for political and personal reasons.

The present local surcharge was decreased from 20 to 10 percent several years ago, a move that, using the rationale of the Board, would also cut county revenues by $100,000. But there was no similar outcry from the Board at that time.

We could go on and on stating reasons why we tend to support this new law, but there is just one major point that we would like to make at this time.

We believe strongly that the responsibility of the members of Liquor Control Board does not include the making of county law. Their job is to simply enforce the laws that are made by our elected officials, who are the only legitimate lawmakers. As individual citizens, the members of the Board have as much right to testify for or against any legislation, but we believe it is outside their realm of responsibility, and not part of their oath of office, to do so as representatives of the Board. If they feel they cannot support and carry out their jobs according to the guidelines established by our legislators, then they should resign from the Board.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

On behalf of Whitewater Championships, Inc., I wish to compliment you and your staff for a great piece of work in producing the "Summer Sensations 1987" supplement to The Republican. We particularly appreciate your having highlighted whitewater racing activities which will help to further promote interest in forthcoming whitewater events.

Thank you and The Republican for your continued interest and support of Whitewater World Championship activities.

Very truly yours,
Don Storek
Vice President

To the Editor:

The Town and Community Women of Friendsville, Inc., is the sponsor of the upcoming Friendsville Summer Festival VII, August 1, 1987—the fifth year the organization has sponsored the Festival. This local community service organization is comprised of a small number of women who live in and around Friendsville, a town of 511 persons.

The plan for the 1987 Festival have won the town of Friendsville the honor of being named a "Designated Bicentennial Community" by the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

This writer has for many years hoped that all individuals and organizations, especially in the Friendsville area, would finally realize that this handful of hard-working, dedicated women, assisted by many persons throughout the county, is not producing this annual event as a fund-raising activity for their own benefit. Perhaps the time has come to wash the facts in public. This day-long, admission-free event, which starts with a parade at noon, followed by approximately eight hours of entertainment, ends with a fireworks display, attracts between 4,000-7,000 persons, and does indeed cost money to produce. Some of the professional entertainers will reduce their fees, because it is a free-admission community affairs project. Other items which must be paid for include: dozens of posters, hundreds of brochures, trophies, security personnel, sound equipment and operator, press releases, pott-johns, insurance, fireworks, rental of tents, miscellaneous equipment, etc.

The 1987 Festival budget is $9,000. The organization has received a $1,500 grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and a $1,200 mini-grant from the Maryland Humanities Council. Therefore, the members of the organization, who work on ways and means projects all year long, must raise the additional $6,300. There will be some cash donations from the business and professional community, however, approximately ninety percent of that figure will come from raffles, bake sales, yard sales, booth rentals, door prize tickets, games, and food con-

The 1986 Festival budget was $9,000. Actual receipts were $6,903.15, which included $1,500 grant from the Garrett County Arts Council. Expenses amounted to $7,519.03—a loss of $615.88.

The 1985 budget was $8,000. Actual receipts were $8,598.16, which included a $3,000 grant from the Garrett County Arts Council. Expenses were $8,507.52—a profit of $90.64.

The 1984 Friendsville Summer Festival was a celebration of the 50th birthday of the State of Maryland. Receipts were $14,181, which included grants totaling $5,100 and expenses of $13,452—a profit of $728.

The 1983 receipts totaled $7,264. Expenses amounted to $6,886.

It appears to this writer that some persons don't know what the term "community service" really means, while still others act as if they and theirs have an inalienable right to expect a few dedicated servants to entertain them at community events and make it possible for them to put money into the treasury of their own organization.

The members of the Grantsville Lions Club will be serving barbecue chicken at the 1987 Grantsville Days Celebration, and the newspaper account stated, "the proceeds going to support Grantsville Days." That is what this writer calls organizational involvement and individual community service, and just maybe this has something to do with the fact that Grantsville Days appears to be getting bigger and better each year.

Hopefully the above facts and figures will draw attention to the need for more people to get involved in community projects throughout the county.

President John F. Kennedy said, "Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country." Stop and ask yourself, "What have I done lately to help improve the quality of life in my community?"

Maxine Combs
Friendsville, MD
P.S. This writer wants to especially thank the editor of The Republican and his fine staff and the members of the Garrett County Arts Council for all that they do to serve the people in our lovely county.

To the Editor:

To the graduating class of 1987 from Southern Garrett Senior High School: well, everyone, it's here! All those long, seemingly unending years of homework and schooling is over. You have reached your goal!

Fate sometimes has its own way of playing little unfortunate games, as in my case. That's why I'm not with you all now. As we started school in kindergarten, it was something new and different. We started becoming friends then at that young age and as we finish school we have the same friends from kindergarten plus many more. I was always expecting to be there sitting with all of you on graduation day, and enjoy the feeling of accomplishment with you all.

After graduation day is over and we start into work, college, or whatever, never forget how much everyone meant to us and how our friends were such a helpful part of our life. I wish all of you, my classmates, the best of luck in life! And may all your hopes, dreams and expectations come true!

Congratulations!

Accident Man In "Fair" Condition Following Mishap

A young Accident man is listed in "fair" condition at West Virginia University Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., after he was seriously injured in a three-wheel recreational vehicle accident Saturday near Davis, W.Va. at approximately 8 p.m.

Mike Yoder, 21, son of Kermit and Elaine Yoder, Accident, underwent surgery for the second time after being transported to the hospital.

According to an informed source, Yoder suffered severe facial lacerations and multiple fractures as a result of the accident.

Apparently, Yoder was traveling on a designated trail when he collided with an Army Jeep. It is not known if he remained on the vehicle or was thrown off.

No other details of the accident are available.

Liquor Law

Edwards.

Giving reasons behind the proposed change, Edwards said that Garrett is the only county in the state with any kind of surcharge, and that the Class D license is the only one with a surcharge. "The Liquor Board contended all along that their only reason against the bill was that the county will lose revenue," Edwards said. "The surcharge used to be 20 percent. Then it was reduced to 10 percent. I don't remember an outcry from the Liquor Board that the county would lose money at that time, and there was no outcry when the liquor stamps were repealed."

Edwards reported that one member of the Liquor Control Board, on the telephone, asked him if it might be possible to reduce the surcharge from 10 percent to five percent. "To me, if one takes that approach, of cutting the surcharge in half, they can't be too worried about the county losing revenue," he said.

The legislator noted that at one point, an ad was placed in the local paper by the Board saying that they didn't know about amendments to the bill until March 31. "They knew what the amendments were because they sat right there at the House of Delegates hearing. They knew what they were," Edwards said. At another point of time, said the delegate, the Board's administrator, Joseph Wolfe, offered another amendment. "I thought, fine," Edwards said, "looks like the Liquor Board is going to work to make this a good bill." Later during the Senate hearing, that very amendment was a "bone of contention" to the Liquor Board. "Looking back," Edwards said, "I wonder if the amendment was made as a cooperative effort or for some other reason."

Edwards said that a statement made by the Liquor Board in The Republican and the Cumberland Times said that the proposal was made "in the office of the county commissioners and was political."

In answer to that, Edwards stressed that the only authority the bill takes from the Liquor Control Board is the administrative and legal support that they hire. He explained that under the bill's provisions, those positions must now be filled by the county. "They can be the same people who hold these positions now," Edwards said. "That's a decision the commissioners must make."

A bill review was conducted by the Attorney General's office and a report was issued in a May 25 letter to the governor. The Attorney General's office found the bill to be constitutional. Sections of the letter, however, were contradictory. The Liquor Control Board interpreted it to mean that the county would lose $100,000 if the bill was signed. Delegate Edwards, however, did not read it that way, and asked the Attorney General's office to further clarify the review.

Another letter went out from the Attorney General's office on May 28, with copies going to Del. Edwards and the Liquor Control Board. Signed by Attorney General Joseph Curran Jr., that letter said the office had re-examined their first response and found that they must change it in one major respect. They confirmed that the bill does establish the renewal period as running from June 15 through June 30, with the license to be dated July 1, and further provides that "any license fees paid in advance of July 1 for the upcoming licensing period shall be credited toward the annual fee," the old (lower) fee would not apply.

Edwards concluded by saying, "Everybody knew what the intent of this bill was. It is very encompassing. For the county to lose money is not the intent of the bill. The county reviewed their figures many times, and those figures differ from the Liquor Board's figures. It is the role of county and state government to make these decisions; the Liquor Board should carry them out."

"Our fiscal analysis shows this legislation to be relatively revenue neutral," said Commissioner Groves. He explained that there has been a call for the governor to veto the bill. "Since the passage of this legislation, there has been some confusion of what the legislation would do. The most recent word . . . the Attorney General's letter, substantiates the county and supports our analysis" and we will continue to support the bill.

Commissioner Braskey stated that the revenue picture in the county is stable, and will remain stable with a set fee and no 10 percent surcharge. "If the county would have lost money, we would not have supported the bill," he said.

When asked by the news media if the Liquor Board's approach to the disagreement had been correct, Edwards said, "They were right in bringing it to the forefront as a board, but not their negative approach as time went on."

This was no "attempt to get anybody," Edwards said. "It's been said the little guy will lose money. Well maybe, that's why we grandfathered them in. Adding the additional issuance fee will make businessmen look hard before getting into this business." That is expected to eliminate a need for a cap on the number of licenses issued, which is also questioned in the legislation, explained Edwards.

The commissioners were asked how the county would handle the administration of the Liquor Control Board. They answered by saying that they had investigated several options. The most promising seems to be an inspector-type office for the inspection of junk yards and zoning ordinances.

The Liquor Board administration could be encompassed with that office, the commissioners said.

Following the press conference Monday, Joseph Wolf was asked by a reporter for a statement. He was advised by Liquor Board member Welton Lane, however, to give no comment.

The bill, which became law when the governor signed it, adds an initial issuing fee for all licenses for people going into business, whether it be class A, C, or D. The issuing fee in all cases will be equal to the annual fee paid by those in business. Delegate Edwards said, "In some cases this gets to be a very substantial amount and both must be paid by new businesses. This will make people look more closely when getting into business and work harder after they are in business."

The big thing the bill does is change the special Class D license. Under the law as it stood before the new bill was signed, a businessman paid $800 plus a 10-percent surcharge, but nobody paid less than $1,250 per year. Under the new law, the license is broken down into two types: on-premise sales, where at least 75 percent of the business is consumed on the premises; and off-premise sales, where at least 75 percent of the sales are for off-premises consumption.

The on-premise license issuing fee for a new business is $1,500 and the annual fee is $1,500. An off-premise issuing fee for a new business is $3,000 with an annual fee of $3,000. Those already having a license need not pay an issuing fee.

Until 1995, a person or business with a Class D license prior to July 1 of this year, can opt to pay what they paid during calendar year 1986, but the amount can be no less than $1,250. This "grandfather clause" is in the law to protect the smaller businesses.

The law also says that the Garrett County Commissioners will provide administrative support to the Liquor Board, and that they can no longer supply their own. The same goes for legal council. The county will provide it or give the Board the right to do it.

The law allows off-premise business to sell liquor on election day.

Commissioners

job of Joseph Wolf. His position will be abolished with the new bill," said Groves.

He continued, "I am incensed at this most recent attack by the LCB and I refuse to have my credibility questioned about this situation any longer."

Braskey concluded, "As far as I'm concerned, they (LCB) have abused their authority by releasing misinformation to the public."

County Budget

In other commissioner news, the county budget was discussed for the next fiscal year.

Commissioner Braskey noted that the commissioners were close to a final property tax rate and proposed budget.

"I am confident there will be a decrease in the tax rate, although we won't make the constant yield rate (a rate, used as a guideline, which has been computed from the previous year's actual property tax)," stated Braskey.

The commissioners expect to announce a $0.3 to $0.6 cut in this year's rate, which will be the sixth year the tax rate has dropped.

"It is never easy to exert downward pressure on the tax rate, especially with the state and federal cuts we are experiencing," said Groves, "but by biting the bullet and making the necessary cuts, we have been able to do so yet one more year."

The commissioners all agreed that this has been the "most challenging" budget year they have experienced since taking office. They expect

by Pam Ashby

My five-year-old daughter still proudly carries the blue "blankie" she's had since she was two days old. Over the years, Blankie has given us much joy and pain. Joy when she was cuddled up with it and pain when she couldn't find it at bedtime or sad time.

Although I never had to set a place for Blankie at the dinner table, it has taken on a unique personality. Blankie was once a nice, baby-blue, loose-woven coverlet with a satin binding adorned with dummies and bunnies. The binding was replaced twice since then by my wonderful babysitter. Since my daughter seldom even gave up Blankie for me to wash, I inquired how she accomplished that feat. The all-knowing babysitter replied, "I just sat her on my lap at the sewing machine and we made new 'clothes' for Blankie."

The times my daughter did permit me to wash Blankie, she not only sat forlornly by the washer for what seemed an eternity to her, she also took her little chair out to the clothesline and stood patiently, Blankie in one hand, thumb in mouth, while Blankie dried in the breeze.

Alas, the years have taken their toll on Blankie. Its threads are grey now and are few and far between. The shreds of threads have been tied in various knots to keep the thing in one piece.

Not long ago, my innovative daughter discovered that the shedding threads of Blankie could prove useful in other areas of our lives. I now own a Blankie original necklace, complete with a heart-shaped, colored bead. This is safely hidden away in my jewelry box. One of us will surely wear it on her wedding day.

Other Blankie thread uses have included: a parachute made with Blankie threads and a tissue, a nice ribbon to wrap mommy's little handmade gifts in, tying the hands of a Barbie doll being held hostage, hair ribbons, a toy for the cat, makeshift shoe laces, dental floss for the dog, a noose for the Ken doll who held Barbie hostage, bird nest filler . . . there must be a 101 uses from dear ole' Blankie.

to make a formal announcement of the new tax rate next Tuesday.

By law, the commissioners must conduct a public hearing since they will not be holding the tax rate at the constant yield level. The hearing has been scheduled for Tuesday, June 9, at 11 a.m. at the commissioners' meeting room at the Garrett County Court House.

GCC Faculty, Staff Train For Advising System

The Garrett Community College faculty and staff recently completed two days of training for a new student advising system, according to Dr. Stephen J. Herman, president of GCC.

Beginning this month, new students will receive an average one and one-half hour appointment with a faculty or staff person to cover diverse areas of student concern.

Advisors will review academic and career goals, review programs, assist with financial aid and veteran's benefits and initiate the process for transfer and military credit evaluations. Students will then be escorted on a campus tour and at that time complete their registrations, bill payment and book purchases, said Dr. Herman.

Dr. Herman noted that the new process is part of an effort to make GCC the least bureaucratic college in Maryland. "Each new student will have the opportunity to get to know a faculty or staff person well, right from the beginning," stated Herman.

He said that students now will not have to go from office to office to get help. "GCC's new mission statement says that GCC seeks to 'make itself known as a friendly, open, warm and supportive college that makes every student feel welcome and that supports each individual's aspirations for a better life.' The new advising system is a step in implementing this mission," said the president.

With the new system, students will also be encouraged to take a new course designed for freshmen, entitled "College Seminar: An Introduction to College" which intends to give students practical tips and methods for being a successful student.

The course will cover good study habits, how to read and write effectively, notetaking and test preparation. It will also include a unit on career planning. A career planning test will be administered free of charge and students will receive guidance in interpreting the results.

"GCC's faculty made an extraordinary offer to the College. They have volunteered to work during their summer vacations to make this new advising system a success," said Dr. Herman. "I don't know of any other college faculty that would make an offer of this kind. It says a lot about faculty commitment to student success at GCC."

GCC Trustees Meet To Adopt FY88 Budget

The Garrett Community College Board of Trustees convened at Penn Alps Restaurant in Grantsville yesterday for the purpose of adopting a budget for the coming fiscal year.

The board approved a $2,147,631 budget which represents 483 FTE's. A 10 percent reduction in FTE's is expected because of less activity in the Continuing Education department of the College, according to John Culp, comptroller.

A breakdown of the budget shows a total of $340,037 for student tuition and fees, $1,905,420 in state payments, $792,174 in the county request and $10,000 in interest and miscellaneous income.

Culp indicated that a capital request of $65,000 is also being sought for the relocation of the Continuing Education staff to the McHenry Campus. The Oakland campus, the old Center Street School, is in the process of being auctioned by the Board of Garrett County Commissioners.

Last year's budget request for GCC was $2,084,654, according to Culp. The new budget request will now go to the county commissioners for their approval.

later to give them assistance and was led down an embankment at gunpoint and beaten.

Health Checks Are Offered By Wellness Together

Coordinators of the Wellness Together program, sponsored by Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the Garrett County Health Department, have announced the opportunity for local residents to purchase vouchers for Men's and Women's Health Checks for the second consecutive year.

Men's Health Checks can be purchased for $45 from the Wellness Together office on the first floor of Garrett County Memorial Hospital between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, during the month of June. Vouchers for Women's Health Checks will be available during the same office hours in July for $50.

After a voucher has been purchased, and one may purchase a voucher as a gift, the participant makes an appointment for a complete physical examination and lab work with the participating physician of his/her choice. The men's physical examination includes a thorough medical history, height/weight check, eyes/ears check, heart/lung check, blood pressure/pulse check, rectal exam, current immunizations, colo-rectal cancer screening, and instruction on self-exams for testicular cancer and head/neck cancer.

The men's lab work, as deemed necessary by the physician, may include hemoglobin, hematocrit, blood glucose, cholesterol, triglycerides, HDL cholesterol, BUN, uric acid, and white blood count tests.

Seventy-seven men participated in the Men's Health Check last year, and several had diagnoses of major diseases that had not been discovered until their visit to the physicians, according to Wellness Together coordinators. "The actual cost of all of these services is $125, so the Wellness Together staff is very appreciative of the willingness of local participating physicians and laboratory personnel of Garrett County Memorial Hospital and Garrett County Health Department to absorb the cost of most of their services and allow a very low charge to local residents who desire this exam and lab work," stated a Wellness Together spokesman.

Day Care Providers Must Register With Social Services

Persons providing day care or babysitting for one or more non-related children on a regular basis must register their home with the Garrett County Department of Social Services, according to Robert Shaffer, director. This registration will meet the requirements of the Annotated Code of Maryland Family Law, Article 5-550.

Shaffer said one purpose of the registration is to develop day care services for children in a safe, healthful and home-like environment. Another is to protect the health, safety and welfare of the children.

Shaffer stressed the fact that it is against the law for anyone to care for children on a regular basis who are not related to the caretaker in some way. Anyone violating the law is doing so at the risk of a fine.

The director stated that, although 15 homes in the county are registered with the Social Services Department, there is still a need for additional homes in all areas of the county.

Registration of day care homes is a free service provided by the Social Services Department. Anyone wishing to register must submit character references, be at least 18 years of age, have a recent medical examination completed on all household members, and have no history of child maltreatment. A substitute caretaker must also be available.

The day care home must meet certain physical standards and pass an inspection by the local fire marshal.

Shaffer stated that registered providers may participate in the Federal Day Care Food Program, which reimburses providers for the meals and snacks they prepare for the children. Registered providers may set a private rate for day care services, or may choose to work within the fee scale of the Purchased Day Care Program of the State of Maryland.

A day care home certificate is valid for two years from the date of issuance. However, the provider cannot, at any time, care for more children than the number which appears on the certificate of registration.

Providers cannot care for more than two children less than 24 months of age, nor more than six children at any one time. The provider's own infants will be counted as children served.

Anyone interested in obtaining a copy of the Code of Maryland Regulations or wishing more information on Day Care Registration and Purchased Day Care may call the Department of Social Services at 334-9461.

Day care centers currently licensed in Garrett County include Rambo Cottage, Mtn. Lake Park, Rebecca Friend, director, Kindercare Developmental Learning Center, Accident, Evalena Gron, director, Hug-A-Bunch Care, Grantsville, Susan Hughes, director, and Maple Meadows Child Care, Grantsville, Sharon Yodel, director.

Day care homes now registered include Meenu Bhattacharya, Mtn. Lake Park, Shirley Dragovich, Oakland, Linda Eike, Friendsville, Davindra Magoon, Oakland, Saroj Magoon, Oakland, Eileen McCartney, Mtn. Lake Park, Linda Michaels, Deer Park, Linda Ritchey, Mtn. Child Care Homes And Centers In Garrett County — Are State Regulations Simply Overkill?

by Pam Ashby

Day care in Garrett County has prompted much controversy lately and the big question seems to be, "To be licensed or not to be licensed?"

The question is not so simple, though, because the Annotated Code of Maryland mandates that day care homes and centers must be licensed. No ifs, ands or buts! That's the law. (See separate story on this page.)

With only 15 licensed day care homes and four licensed centers in the county, it is a fact that many caregivers are either ignoring or breaking the law.

Interviews with licensed and non-licensed caregivers and working parents this week (selected at random throughout the county) explain why this law has not been taken seriously. Reportedly, some non-licensed caregivers have been "turned in" and they now face fines or must submit to inspections and regulations mandated by the state — if they decide to continue their services at all.

One licensed caregiver from Friendsville was eager to speak out against the current law. "I think they've gone too far with this thing. I got a license because it was a law, but I've been a caregiver for years and that license didn't make me a better babysitter — not one bit! I've never had trouble getting recommendations and that should speak for itself."

When asked about the licensing process, she expressed her feelings of dismay. "They come into your home and check everything, even the beds! Our whole family had to get physicals which cost $50 and the Health Department tested our water which cost me $20 because they messed up the first test and had to do a second one. There's also way too much paperwork with too many nosey questions to answer. They ask about the working parents' hours and I just don't think that's any of their business."

She continued, "People are trying to stay off welfare and earn an honest living and they're making it more difficult all the time. I think these laws were made for people in the cities. If parents are happy with the babysitter they've chosen, that ought to be good enough. These laws are just ridiculous."

Of the licensed caregivers interviewed, Georgia Dean Wilson and Linda Ritchey, both of the Mtn. Lake Park area, were the only two who did not strongly object to obtaining licenses.

Mrs. Wilson said the licensing process was "very easy" and that she did not mind the inspection nor the physical examinations. "Basically, I think it's a good law and it protects me. I am also eligible for the food services they provide. The state also sends out helpful information which benefits my business."

She did say that a license did not make her a better babysitter and had mixed feelings about it because she had been on "both sides of the fence" in her career.

Mrs. Ritchey, a home caregiver, who plans to open a day care center in the next few days, claims her house is made for caregiving. She feels it is already an ideal location and said she didn't mind the inspections. "They have good reasons for it," she said. "There is a lot of paperwork, though, since I became licensed."

Her response to a license making her a better caregiver was, "No, it doesn't make me a better caregiver. Just about anyone can get a license if they meet the requirements. The choice is up to the working parents."

Linda Michaels, another licensed caregiver in the Mtn. Lake Park area, was unhappy with the licensing process. "Social services was very thorough in checking everything in my home," she said. "I didn't think the fire marshal was very thorough, though. I personally saw to it that the children in my care have fire escape routes. Any good parents or caregiver would see to those details, licensed or not."

She went on to say, "I really don't see where a license protects me except that I get state assistance from low income families that can't afford day care on what they make."

Like many others, Mrs. Michaels complained about the heavy load of paperwork now that she is licensed.

She concluded, "I feel the choice of a babysitter is up to the parents. I don't feel the state has a right to tell them who to choose and that's what it boils down to. As long as a non-licensed caregiver is doing a good job, that should be enough. A license doesn't make a better babysitter. That's for sure!"

Non-Licensed Caregivers Speak

For obvious reasons, the non-licensed caregivers who agreed to be interviewed will not be named, but they did want the opportunity to be heard.

One non-licensed caregiver stated, "This whole thing makes me mad. I raised my children in this home and they survived. I didn't get into the business for the money. I watched kids as a favor for my working friends who worked out of necessity. They pay me what they feel they can afford. I don't set definite fees. I have to wonder how many of these licensed centers give hugs and kisses when the kids need it. How many of them go to school to pick up sick kids they babysit for? How many of them watch the kids an extra hour or two because the parent has to work late? I've even picked up long-distance calls from stranded parents. I love kids — my own and the ones I've cared for over the years. The constant requests I get should be evidence I'm good at what I do. A license won't change that. It would only make me resentful of strangers inspecting my home and invading my privacy. Why is it that a person can drive drunk and not have to take a breathalyzer test, but it is a law that you have to have a license to watch a child who is not yours? It's so ridiculous!"

Another non-licensed caregiver stated, "I'm fed up with regulations and I refuse to get a license. I'm a good babysitter and if my home is good enough for my children, it should be good enough for anyone. How many parents are subject to the same regulations their caregivers have? How many of them have state officials tramping through their homes looking into every nook and cranny. I'll bet my home is cleaner than those officials who would like to look in my closets and under my beds!"

She continued, "Look at all the child abuse we see on the news that happened in licensed day care centers. A license does not guarantee a safe environment for a child. That is why the decision should be up to the parents. They will certainly check out the situation. These laws are unfair and they don't protect anyone."

The Parents Speak

"No one is going to tell me who cares for my child. I have a non-licensed babysitter and she's terrific. We're both forced to break the law, though. I've used licensed and non-licensed day care. There are good and bad in both categories. It has to be my decision, though. A license is just a piece of paper, after all."

Another parent commented, "I can see both sides to this thing. I am able to take advantage of the state assistance programs as a single mother, so it's beneficial to me. The final decision should be up to the parents."

One parent said, "My child receives excellent care in a licensed home, but she and I agree that it's not the license that makes her good. She only got her license so she wouldn't be breaking the law. She doesn't agree with it. If all the non-licensed babysitters in this county were found out, I'm afraid we would have quite a shortage of day care. Then what? Do those parents get aid from Social Services? The government wants us off welfare and food stamps, but in most cases, a one-paycheck home (especially in this county) won't pay the rent or utilities, let alone food and clothing. As usual, the bureaucrats can't see the forest for the trees. Soon they will regulate us out of existence — for our own good!"

One mother of three said, "The state doesn't screen a caregiver who comes to my home. Who's to say he or she won't abuse or neglect my child there. There are just no guarantees."

So the controversy continues. Many parents and caregivers plan to write their legislators regarding change in current regulations. Others hope non-licensed caregivers will comply with the existing law. The reverberations will surely be heard at the other end of the state where laws are made for us all.

Turney Sentences Oakland Man To Over Two Years

During Garrett County District Court proceedings last week, Judge Jack R. Turney sentenced an Oakland man to a total of two years and 60 days in the Garrett County Jail after hearing four separate cases brought against him.

Adam W. Arnold, 23, was found guilty of violation of probation in one case, and a one-year sentence was re-imposed that had been previously suspended.

Arnold had been found guilty of breaking and entering in February of last year following an incident in December, 1985 at Dale's Body Shop, Deer Park, when he entered the establishment and stole several auto parts.

The complainant in that case was Dale E. Broadwater, Deer Park.

In two other cases, Arnold was found guilty of four counts of writing bad checks. Three counts were filed against him by Tommy Ritchie Jr., owner of C.P. Martin and Son, store in Mtn. Lake Park as a result of an incident when Arnold purchased merchandise there with bad checks. The fourth count was filed by Tom Browning, Hometown Market, Oakland, after Arnold wrote a check for cash in the amount of $100 there last June.

Turney sentenced Arnold to one year in each of those cases, to be served consecutively, and suspended the sentences. Arnold was then placed on 24 months supervised probation and fined a total of $50.

In the fourth case, Arnold was found guilty of destruction of property and received a 60-day sentence.

The sentence was then suspended and he was placed on 24 months supervised probation (consecutive with the second and third cases.)

The charge was filed by Riley Lloyd, Mtn. Lake Park, following a February 15 incident when Arnold destroyed the telephone wires leading into Lloyd's apartment.

John R. Toston, public defender, represented Arnold.

In other District Court cases, James L. House, 25, Waynesburg, Ohio, was found guilty of a handgun violation and sentenced to two years in the Maryland Department of Corrections.

The sentence was then suspended, except for time already served, and House was placed on 24 months supervised probation and fined $100.

The charge was filed by Tfc. R.M. Hershberger, Maryland State Police, March 12 after he stopped House along Rt. 42 for driving while intoxicated.

A search of his vehicle led to the discovery of a 9mm PJK semi-automatic pistol.

Defending attorney was Lisa C. Thayer.

Kevin L. DeBerry, 25, Oakland, was found guilty of battery in one case and misdemeanor theft in another and, as a result, received an 18-month suspended sentence, was placed on 24 months supervised probation and fined a total of $150.

According to the complainant in one case, Deputy David Crossland, Garrett County Sheriff's Department, DeBerry conspired with other defendants to steal and forge a check from James Knox September 2.

Charges of forgery and conspiracy were not prosecuted because of a plea agreement.

The charge of battery was filed by Deputy P.K. Buckel following a March 8 incident at Highview Apartments in Oakland when DeBerry assaulted and battered Clarence Stark Jr. there.

A pre-sentence investigation had been ordered in both cases. John R. Toston, public defender, represented DeBerry.

Anita G. Strobel, 47, Mtn. Lake Park, was found guilty of theft and received an 18-month sentence.

The sentence was then suspended, except for 48 hours, and Strobel was placed on 12 months supervised probation and fined $50.

The charge stemmed from a February 5 incident at Browning's Foodland, Oakland, where Strobel stole several items of merchandise.

Daina R. VanMeter, 21, Mtn. Lake Park, was found guilty of battery and given a one year sentence in the Garrett County Jail.

The sentence was then suspended and VanMeter was placed on 12 months supervised probation and fined $50.

The charge was filed by Louisa M. Berkenridge, Terra Alta, W. Va., after VanMeter assaulted and battered her at Joe's Place in Oakland. The incident occurred December 15.

William D. Ford, 31, Mtn. Lake Park, received a 30-day suspended sentence after being found guilty of malicious destruction of property in a November 21 incident.

The charge was filed by Leslie M. Moon, also of Mtn. Lake Park, after Ford damaged her 1981 Datsun 200SX in Oakland.

Ford was placed on one year unsupervised probation and fined $5.

Toston was the defending attorney.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Frank Fraley, 35, Oakland, after he was found guilty of battery and trespassing.

Adam W. Hull, Mtn. Lake Park, filed the charges following a March 20 incident when Fraley entered his private property after having been notified not to do so and assaulted and battered Hull.

Toston defended Fraley.

Stet Docket Cases

Brenda J. Bittinger, 22, Swanton, was charged with battery by David W. Bittinger, also of Swanton, following a May 1 incident there.

Mr. Bittinger declined to testify. The following people were charged with writing bad checks.

Kathryn M. Dilworth, 50, McHenry, was charged by Patti J. Leonard, credit manager at Arrowhead Grocery and Deli after a January 17 incident there.

Doris M. Graham, Oakland, was also charged by Leonard following a January 24 incident there.

Elizabeth L. Kitzmiller, Mtn. Lake Park, was charged by Susan Livengood, Ralph's Richfood, following an April 7 incident there.

Randolph Kitzmiller, 40, Loch Lynn, was charged after a December 22 incident at Browning's Foodland, Oakland.

New Lutheran Synod Formed, Bishop Elected

A new West Virginia-Western Maryland Synod for the newly-merged Evangelical Lutheran Church in America was formed this past weekend at the constituting convention held at Alderson-Broadus College in Phillipi, W.Va. A new bishop was also elected to head the new synod.

The Rev. L. Alex Black, pastor of Edgewood Lutheran Church in Wheeling, W.Va., was elected as bishop on the first ballot. He will officially begin his duties on November 1 of this year.

The Rev. Black was ordained on June 1, 1955, by the Pittsburgh Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America. He chaired the transition team preparing for the new synod, which begins actual operation on January 1, 1988.

Lengthy debates at the convention resulted in the new name for the synod, which was originally to be called the West Virginia Synod. Some delegates suggested the name, "Central Appalachia," which met with much disapproval.

Delegates and pastors attending from Garrett County included: Bittering Parish — Pastor Louise Knotts, Tom O'Brien and Barbara Herbert, St. John's, Meadow Mountain; Pete Buckel and Martha Giotfelly, Emmanuel, Bittering; Floyd Baker, Zion, Jennings; Aurora-Red House Parish — Pastor Daniel Nascembeni, Don and Elaine Roth, St. John's, Red House; Frances and Gary Roth, St. Paul's, Aurora, W.Va.; Accident Parish — Pastor Stephen Yelovich, Charles Strauss and Ellinor Hamilton, St. Paul's, Accident; Roy Deniker and Margaret Beadle, St. John's, The Cove; Pauline Fawcett and James E. Lininger, Grace, Friendsville; Pastor Ray Ursin, Pam Ashby and Lowell Leitzel, St. Mark's, Oakland.

County residents serving on committees during the convention were: Pam Ashby, reference and counsel committee; Pastor Louise Knotts, Charles Strauss and Ellinor Hamilton, resolutions committee. Locals serving on the various task forces of the transition team included: Don Roth, finance and budget chairman; Pastor Stephen Yelovich, constituting convention member; and Lowell Leitzel, auxiliary member.

Participating in the worship services at the convention were: Pastor Stephen Yelovich, communion assistant, and Lowell Leitzel, lector.

Martha Giotfelly and Don Roth were elected to the new synod as three-year council members. Rachelle Terlizzi from St. Mark's in Oakland was elected youth member to the council. Pastor Louise Knotts was elected clergy member of the education committee and discipline committee. Pauline Fawcett was elected to the Stewardship Committee. Elected to the pastoral support committee was Hannah Sincell, St. Mark's, Oakland. Serving as a clergy member of that same committee will be Pastor Yelovich. Charles Strauss was also elected to the discipline committee.

Aside from the election of officers and committees, members of the historical convention voted on by-laws and budget for the synod.

First Father-Son Banquet Held By Am. Legion Sons

A father-son banquet was held at the Proctor Kildow Post Home on Monday, June 1, in honor of the new Sons of the American Legion (SAL), Squadron 71. The fried chicken dinner, which was prepared by the Proctor Kildow Post 71 Ladies Auxiliary, began at 6:30 p.m.

Following the dinner, Garrett County Commander Ron Friend called the meeting to order. SAL Commander Joe Helbig lead the pledge to the U.S. flag. Commander Friend welcomed the new squadron on behalf of the American Legion Department of Maryland and the sponsoring post, Proctor Kildow 71. American Legion member and president of the Vietnam Veterans of America, Jim Shipe spoke on the importance of getting the squadron off to a good start and challenged the squadron to achieve the highest goals possible.

Commander Friend presented the Squadron Charter to Commander Joe Helbig along with the Charter Member Scroll, commenting on the fact that all 1987 members will be the original charter members of the first SAL Squadron in Garrett County.

Chaplain Tom (J.R.) Cuppett gave the closing prayer and Commander Friend closed the initiation which was followed by the regular SAL monthly meeting. Regular meetings are held the first Monday of each month.

Whoo's News

Public Relations chairman

The Extension Service and County Homemakers would like to welcome Mrs. Betty Wolford as a Home Economics Program assistant. She will fill this position for three months.

The Maryland Cooperative Extension Services are open to all citizens without regard to race, color, sex, handicap, religion, age, or national origin. If you are a young mother or "working" homemaker and would like to belong to a club, consider one of the Homemakers groups.

The Newcomers Club members are exactly that, "new" and young homemakers who meet the first Friday of the month except for the summer months. Their president is Lynn McDaniels of Terra Alta, W.Va. (789-2471). The secretary is Sharon Schwalm (334-9331).

How about the Lunch Bunch. They are a group of ladies who work outside the home. They get together on their lunch break the third Wednesday of every month at the Extension Office between noon and 1 p.m. The chairman of this group invites anyone who works part-time, full-time, or finds this hour to suit them best to join them. Call Faye Bittering at home, 334-4694, or work, 334-1963. Why not take your bag lunch June 17 and check them out?

Another busy group of ladies is the Bittering Club. They just spent the last six months with travel, crafts, workshops, and volunteer work. Ethel Buckel and husband spent one month touring Alaska. The group is anxious to hear about the trip in July.

Loretta Opel and Virginia Hesse spent three weeks in Florida sight seeing, and Ethel Buckel and Fern Beachy enjoyed the Michigan Tulip show.

The State Meeting was attended by Fern Beachy & Beulah Moon.

This club recently lost three of their charter members: Lucille Giotfelly, Emma Giotfelly and Lenora Buckel. The group was also saddened by the death of Bittering Fire Chief "Tip" Yaste.

A guest for April was Sharon Buckel, Community Health Nurse, who presented the program on Home Health Care. Five of their members attended the Spring meeting.

This group meets the fourth Tuesday of every month.

Deer Park Fire Hall was the meeting place for Deer Park Homemakers in May. Fourteen members and one guest were present. Hostesses and "salad makers" for the meeting were Harriett DeBerry and Janet Browning. Their Memorial Service was held on May 30 at the Deer Park Cemetery with Commissioner John Braskey as the guest speaker. Next meeting is June 9.

Mrs. Vera Merrill showed New Germany ladies how to braid rugs in May. Each member took her favorite salad to this meeting. The club met at Zelia Bittering's home this morning (June 4).

In April the Sunnyside Homemakers welcomed two guest speakers. They were Norma Bolding and Kathy Slovak from the Health Department. For the May meeting they all enjoyed individual fruit salad and sandwiches and each one brought her favorite salad.

The club spent the rest of the time playing Garrett County trivia. Next meeting is June 23 at 1 p.m. at the home of Grace White.

Continued from Page 1 non-hostile dictatorship. Although French is the national language, there are also approximately 50 tribal languages among its nearly 40 different ethnic groups.

Giotfelly said that he is awarded a total of 48 days of vacation during his two-year tour and believes he will use most of that time to travel in other areas of Africa.

Goldstein Talks To Bankers Group About Amnesty

After cautioning Maryland bankers about the double-edged sword of foreign debt and foreign investment, and warning them of the potential backlash against automated teller crime, State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein proceeded to give members of the Maryland Bankers Association a preview of the state's upcoming tax amnesty program.

In his June 2nd address to the association at their annual convention at the Greenbriar, in West Virginia, Comptroller Goldstein said, "As you may know, the Maryland Legislature has passed a tax amnesty program, supported strongly by both Governor Schaefer and the Legislature."

"The opportunity for forgiveness of penalty and criminal prosecution is what we might call the carrot in the amnesty program. The stick is the changes in the law that will go into effect after the amnesty program ends, namely increased civil and criminal penalties," Goldstein pointed out.

After amnesty, civil penalties port for the two-month program, which begins September 1, and will apply to individual and corporation income taxes, withholding taxes, retail sales and use taxes, admissions and amusement taxes and boat excise taxes, Goldstein said, "We have to make it easy for people to come forward and pay, to get them into our tax system. This is where you are the key."

"We will have toll free telephone help and information in the libraries, of course. But not everybody goes to the library, and not everybody comes to the state tax offices. But everybody goes to the bank. Everybody comes to you."

"I didn't want to miss the opportunity to enlist your assistance, cooperation, help and support in this effort," the comptroller added, telling the bankers that they could play a vital role in distributing amnesty forms and materials.

"Not only will tax evaders be more likely to be caught; they will also face stiffer penalties after the amnesty. It is this enhanced enforcement that makes the program fair to the vast majority of Maryland's business and individual taxpayers who pay promptly and in full," he said.

SELECTING A FUNERAL HOME

There are a number of important advantages to choosing a funeral home in advance of death. To begin with, it will enable you to find the one that best suits your needs. As with most other professions, there is a whole range to choose from. With a little effort on your part, you can surely find a funeral home that will offer the arrangements you want, at what you feel is a fair price.

Having pre-selected a funeral home can be especially helpful if you or a loved one dies away from home. They can help make arrangements with a funeral home where the death took place. If the place was another country, this is doubly true. Our country's embassy or consulate abroad MUST have the name of a funeral home in the home city in order to ship the body. Having named one will save the survivors from having to investigate and decide upon a funeral home under pressure of haste and grief.

Oakland Opens With Pair Of Wins At Hyndman In Pen Mar

The defending league champions, the Oakland Oaks, opened their 1987 Pen Mar season the same way they ended last year's, by sweeping a pair of games from Hyndman Sunday on the Merchants' diamond. Oakland came from behind to win the first contest, 7-4, and then took the nightcap, 3-1.

Oakland was down 4-1 going into the final inning of the first game, but then erupted for six runs in that frame for the win.

Randy Cirillo led off the top of the seventh for Oakland with a walk and was sent to third on a double by Lawrence Nesselrodt. Phil Caruso followed with a walk to load the bases and former Northern Husky Steve Zumpano stepped up to record a two-run single down the third-base line, to cut the Hyndman lead to 4-3.

Another former Northern high standout, Phil Carr, followed with an RBI single to tie the score and Wayne Brown then singled to plate two more runs.

Carr led Oakland's hitting with a pair of singles, while Grant Crawford rapped two for Hyndman.

Mike Brady started on the mound for Oakland, but got into trouble in the third inning because of some fielding miscues. Hyndman scored all four of their runs in that inning. Stan Fitzwater, pitcher of the year in 1985, relieved Brady and tossed three and one-third strong innings to pick up the win. Keith Cain pitched the seventh inning to earn a save.

Steve Mohr held the Pennsylvanians to just one run through five innings of the nightcap to record the win. Southern High standout Bo Butler pitched the final two innings for the save.

With the score knotted at 1-1 after five innings, Brown led off the sixth with a double and, two outs later, Cirillo smacked a double to score Brown and break the tie. Terry Helbig followed with another double to send Cirillo home for the final run.

Hyndman led momentarily by scoring their only run in the first inning. Oakland's Ed Wildesen responded in the top of the second with a solo homer.

Jon Reneslacs and Zumpano each finished with two singles for Oakland, while the Merchants were paced by Andy Souders with three singles and Matt Logsdon with a pair of doubles.

OFFICERS INSTALLED — Post 214, Grantsville American Legion's 1987-88 officers were installed following the post's regular meeting on May 12. Garrett County Commander Ron Friend and acting Sergeant at Arms Guy Tuel, both of Oakland Post 71, were in charge of the ceremony. Officers, pictured left to right, are: Harry Bowers, commander; Kenneth Buckel, first vice president; Matthew Stieringer, chaplain; Charles Bender (past department commander) adjutant; Odell Broadwater, historian; William Sipple, finance officer; Wayne Durst, judge advocate; William Miller, service officer; and Paul Durst, color bearer. Not pictured are William Kamp, second vice president, and William Frickey, sergeant at arms.

The Section hopes to stir interest in the project by presenting a program on June 12 that will focus on legal issues affecting the homeless, the legal profession's role in assisting this under-represented group, how this project will work and how similar projects have been operating successfully throughout the nation.

In addition to the program mentioned, the annual meeting will also concentrate on what judges consider when awarding alimony in divorce cases, buying and selling a business after the Tax Reform Act of 1986, and unfair tactics that attorneys should be aware of and avoid in the courtroom.

Jones Discusses New Tax With Town Council

The regular monthly meeting of the Oakland Town Council was held Monday evening with Tom Jones, director of Garrett County Development Corporation, speaking to the group in regard to the new Accommodations Tax.

Jones explained that the tax allows the Garrett County Commissioners to impose a tax of up to three percent on any transient lodging sites and rooms, that is, any establishment that rents for less than a four-month period.

According to Jones, the commissioners are "seriously considering" the imposition of the tax, and added that any money from the tax collected within the municipalities would be used there and not for county purposes. According to Oakland Council officials, the council members had no quarrel with the tax but did not wish that it imposed on the town of Oakland.

Jones also addressed Grantsville Council members, who reacted favorably to the tax being imposed there.

In other Oakland Council news, it was announced at the meeting that the Jack Bell Construction Company, Clearfield, Pa., began laying pipe for the sewerage collection system in Oakland Monday. The company is currently working in the Mitchell Manor area and will then move to Dennett Road.

Also at the meeting, Don Stemple, director of the Center Street Recreation Program, announced his plans to continue with the program this summer but that a new site would be contingent on the pending sale of the Center Street building.

A budget meeting will be held today at 7 p.m. at Oakland City Hall. The major concern will be revenue sharing funds which have now been eliminated, according to a spokesperson for the council.

Social Issues Top Agenda Of State Bar Association

For the second year in a row, adolescent alcohol and drug abuse tops the list of issues to be tackled at the Maryland State Bar Association's Annual Meeting, June 10-13, in Ocean City.

At last year's meeting, the Special Committee on Adolescent Alcohol Addiction and Alcohol and Drug Abuse presented its report, Harmfully Involved: Maryland Youth in Crisis, the result of a year-long study which revealed that drug abuse among Maryland teens far exceeds the national average. In response to its findings, the committee developed 51 recommendations to combat teenage alcohol and drug abuse, one of which is to educate lawyers and the public on how to identify alcohol and drug abuse, how to intervene and assist victims in seeking treatment, and how to help prevent alcohol and drug abuse practices which could lead to abuse and addiction.

These will be the issues addressed during a three and one-half hour program to be held at the 1987 MSBA Annual Meeting on June 11. Experts in the fields of medicine, psychiatry, law, counseling and public health will lead discussions with individuals who have confronted alcohol and drug problems in either an attorney-client relationship or in their families.

"The committee found that many family law cases and cases involving less serious crimes such as shoplifting or driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol hinge on an addiction that is dragging the person down," said Judge Daniel W. Moylan, chair of the special committee. "A lawyer who is aware of these problems is much better able to represent the client and help him or her to get treatment."

Another leading social issue on this year's meeting agenda is the plight of the homeless. Despite the thousands of homeless persons trying to survive in Maryland, little effort has been made by the organized Bar to address the legal situations faced by the homeless, until now, the Association reports. A special steering committee of the MSBA Section on Delivery of Legal Services has developed a new program, The Homeless Persons Representation Project, to help homeless individuals in need of legal services reach attorneys who can help them.

"The project will help homeless people who, for the most part, have no income," said Stanley Herr, co-chair of the project. "Some of the problems homeless persons experience include gaining access to public

New Volunteer Caregivers Are Awarded Pins

Ten persons completed the training program for a volunteer caregiver through Hospice of Garrett County, Inc. and Garrett Community College May 21. They received their pins and shared a covered dish dinner at the St. Peter's Catholic Church Social Hall in Oakland.

Those completing the 10-session training were: Eileen Beitzel, Sara Butler, Sandy Glatfelter, Virginia McCauley, Helene McCauley, Susan Murray, Joe and Lucille Shorb, Janice Stockslager, and the Rev. Daniel Nascembeni.

After the dinner and presentation of pins by Sharon King, director of volunteers, a discussion of "Shared Experiences with Death and Dying" was presented by Rev. Verne Leininger, Rev. Michael Pumphrey, Rev. Nascembeni, Deacon James Comfort and volunteers already in service.

According to Wayne Johnson, executive director of Hospice, one of the interesting facts discovered was that many terminally ill patients need to be given "permission to die" by some member of the family or someone close to the family. This situation has occurred in several cases with the clergy and volunteers, he said.

"Another point made was what to say to one who is grieving," Johnson said. "Many times, just being there, being concerned and comforting is enough. One thing not to say is 'I know how you feel.' Most grieving persons go through feelings of anger, guilt, fear, and depression, but at different stages and in different sequences as we don't really know what their feelings are particularly if we have not been through the experience of losing a loved one."

The hospice volunteer caregivers are there for the family members long after the patient has died, he said, adding that the newly-formed bereavement group may be helpful to anyone having lost a loved one. Anyone having questions about the hospice program may call 334-8111 or 895-3111.

Roda Jane Watring and Paul Edward Sisler were united in marriage on February 28 in a candlelight ceremony at the Maple Spring Church of the

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Watring, Aurora, W.Va. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Sisler, also of Aurora.

Soloists were Mrs. Barbara Bolyard and Miss Brenda Hillery, cousins of the groom. Prelude music, after the mothers were seated, was "Someday — Somewhere." "Ice Castles — Through the Eyes of Love," was the theme played during the ceremony.

Miss Cervi To Wed Mr. Diehl

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Cervi, McHenry, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lee Ann, to Mark C. Diehl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Diehl, Grantsville.

Miss Cervi is a graduate of Northern High School and Tri-State Beauty Academy. She is employed at Shear Delight Styling Salon in Accident.

Mr. Diehl is also a graduate of Northern High School and Frostburg State College. He is employed at Micro-Integration in Friendsville as a computer programmer, and at Diehl's Ford Sales in Grantsville.

The wedding will take place September 12 at Christ Lutheran Church in Grantsville.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a white satin gown with a Queen Anne neckline and a close-fitted bodice, trimmed with Venice lace appliques, simulated pearls and sequins. The gown featured Elizabethan-style sleeves with satin puffs trimmed with appliques of Venice lace with pearls and sequins that dropped, tightly tapered, to the wrist in English net with 10 button and loop closures. The Basque-style waistline was set off by strands of pearls and pearls that hung loosely from the pointed waist. The back plunged just to above the waist with the full yoke in English net trimmed with Venice lace. The full skirt dropped into an extended Cathedral train, edged and adorned with Venice lace appliques and highlighted with pearls and sequins.

The heart-shaped headpiece draped the bride's forehead and was trimmed in pearls. It featured a pearl and flower cluster on the side and was completed with a fingertip veil with a pouf and a blusher.

The gown was fashioned by the bride and sewn by Mrs. Mary Shaffer, Aurora, W.Va.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of red silk roses with white mini-carnations, accented with baby's breath and a white pearl trim throughout. The bouquet was adorned with a large bow of white lace and red satin.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Debbie Shaffer, Aurora, sister of the groom. She wore a floor-length, figure-hugging gown of black satin with red satin trim. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Carolyn Knotts, Leadmine, W.Va., cousin of the bride; Miss Sandy Moats, Aurora, friend of the bride; and Miss Carole Baker, cousin of the groom. They wore tea-length gowns similar to that of the matron of honor. The attendants carried nosegays of red and white carnations, trimmed in red, black and white ribbons. Each wore a pair of black and white earrings and matching black bead necklaces, gifts from the bride.

Flower girl was Miss Jaime Lynn Knotts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Knotts, Leadmine. She wore a gown styled like the matron's of honor and carried a white wicker basket with red satin ribbon trim.

The bride's mother was attired in a white polyester gown, draped in black satin. The groom's mother also wore a white polyester gown, trimmed in red satin. Each wore a corsage of red roses.

All the wedding silks were a gift to the bride and groom from the matron of honor, who also made all the attendants' and mothers' gowns.

A reception followed the ceremony and was given by the groom's parents as a gift to the couple. The reception was held at the Aurora Fire Hall and the buffet-style dinner was catered by the Aurora Fire Department Auxiliary.

Guestbook attendant was Mrs. Tammy Louie, Deep Creek Lake, and gift table attendant was Miss Lanita Tinney, Aurora.

The wedding cake, a four-tiered white cake trimmed in red roses, featured candles on the sides with red roses in a stair-step effect. It was baked and decorated by Iris Myers, Aurora. Serving the cake were Mrs. Ellen Baker, Aurora, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Sue Sharp, Aurora, friend of the bride.

An arrangement of white carnations, yellow daffodils, peach daisies, baby's breath and greens adorned the lighted candelabra.

The fingertip veil, also appliqued with galloon lace, was attached to a satin headpiece, appliqued with lace and pearls. The gown and veil were made by the bride's mother.

She wore a white picture hat and carried a bouquet of white carnations, yellow daffodils, peach daisies, baby's breath and greens, with peach and white streamers. Her gown was also made by the bride's mother.

Paul Shillingburg, Deer Park, brother of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Jack Snyder Jr. and Alan Snyder, brothers of the bride.

Good Food and how to prepare it!

June is Dairy Month

"June Dairy Month" has been celebrated since 1937 when it was launched with the theme, "Keep Young — Drink Milk." Every year this month-long salute to the dairy industry is observed in homes and restaurants, in supermarkets and stores and wherever dairy foods are sold. It has become the accepted time of the year to extend a special "thanks" to the dairy families of America who produce the milk we drink and consume in dairy products.

At a time when Americans are more concerned than ever about health and fitness, dairy foods are especially important to consumers. They fit well with today's busy lifestyles because they're convenient, nutritious and a good buy, when the cost of other food items is considered.

Food editors help extend this message and join in the celebration each year by spotlighting dairy products in their weekly columns. Recipe suggestions for using milk and milk products, and stories about specific products will fill The Republican's food pages. We encourage everyone to submit their favorite recipes using dairy products to be printed on the food pages during the month of June.

Osteoporosis: Spread The Word On Prevention

by Monica Olsen

Dairy Council Media Coordinator

Osteoporosis, it's commonly known as the "brittle bone" disease and afflicts 15-20 million Americans. Probably most of us have seen an elderly woman suffering from a severe form of this disease in which the spine crumbles, resulting in a "dowager's hump." Osteoporosis is a disease in which the bone mass is decreased to the extent that there are fractures, usually of the wrist, spine and hip.

Calcium figures prominently in the prevention and treatment of this disease, as 99 percent of the body's calcium is stored in the bones. Without calcium, the bones wouldn't be hard and strong.

Do Your Friends and Neighbors Talk About Osteoporosis?

As osteoporosis has become a public health problem of epidemic proportions, people have all sorts of questions about it. What can you tell your friends and neighbors when osteoporosis is being discussed? Let's take a look at some common concerns:

Who is most likely to get osteoporosis?

Women are eight times more likely to develop osteoporosis than are men. Women typically have smaller, less dense skeletons than men, and, therefore, have less bone to lose. Also, girls and women frequently fall far short of taking in the Recommended Dietary Allowance for calcium. Men tend to more closely meet their dietary calcium needs.

The postmenopausal state with its subsequent estrogen deficiency is one of the primary factors that contributes to the risk of osteoporosis. Estrogen is protective against bone loss.

An inadequate calcium intake is also high on the list of risk factors. Building a denser peak adult bone mass is thought to be protective against osteoporosis. Calcium helps in building bones denser and stronger.

A low level of physical activity is another important factor associated with osteoporosis. The stress that weight-bearing exercise, such as walking, puts on the bones aids in bone formation.

Caucasian and Oriental women are more likely to develop osteoporosis than are black women. Blacks tend to have a greater bone density than whites or Orientals throughout life.

Other risk factors for osteoporosis include cigarette smoking, heavy alcohol consumption, and heavy caffeine consumption.

Are there any steps people can take to prevent this disease?

Fortunately, many of the risk factors are ones over which each person has some control. Assuring an adequate calcium intake throughout life is one important preventive measure that the public can take. Unfortunately, many Americans don't consume the recommended amounts of calcium.

The present Recommended Dietary Allowance (RDA) for calcium is 800 mg. (for adults). Some research studies show that this is actually inadequate in maintaining calcium balance in some people. A recent National Institutes of Health panel noted that some studies indicate a daily requirement of about 1,000 mg. of calcium for premenopausal and estrogen-treated women. Postmenopausal women who are not treated with estrogen require about 1,500 mg. daily for calcium balance.

Dairy products are the major source of dietary calcium. Foods in the milk group provide about 72 percent of the available calcium in the American diet. Keep in mind, though, that a variety of foods are needed in the diet for overall health and well-being. Servings are needed daily from the meat group, fruit and vegetable group, and grain group, in addition to foods in the milk group.

Vitamin D needs a special mention as it helps the body absorb calcium. We get vitamin D by being exposed to sunlight and through diet. Vitamin D is found in vitamin D fortified milk, eggs, liver, mackerel and swordfish.

Moderation in intake is important as some nutrients and substances can impair the way in which calcium is absorbed or used in the body. Excessive amounts of protein, fiber, alcohol or caffeine can affect the body's calcium status.

Weight-bearing exercise helps to maintain bone density, so try adding more regular physical activity into your daily routine. Walking and jogging are examples of weight-bearing exercise. It's always a good idea to check with your physician before starting a new exercise program.

Smokers are more likely to develop osteoporosis than are non-smokers. If you smoke, here's another good reason to quit.

With the loss of estrogen that accompanies menopause, women rapidly lose calcium from their bones. Therefore, estrogen supplements are prescribed by some physicians. However, serious side effects have been associated with its use. It's advisable for the risks and benefits of estrogen use to be weighed on an individual basis.

The body's ability to absorb calcium is impaired by some medications. Cortisone, and some antiacids and laxatives can have this effect. Ask your doctor whether medications you take may be impairing calcium absorption.

* Source: National Dairy Council, "The All-American Guide to Calcium-Rich Foods"

 The current Recommended Dietary Allowance for calcium for adults and children is 800 mg.; for teenagers, pregnant and lactating women, 1,200 mg.

Can anything be done once a person has osteoporosis?

There is no cure for osteoporosis, however, its progress may be slowed down. People suffering from osteoporosis are commonly treated with supplemental calcium, sometimes in conjunction with vitamin D, fluoride, or estrogen. Those who already have the disease should also follow the suggestions mentioned previously. Getting a good supply of calcium-rich foods in the diet is extremely important.

How can lactose-intolerant people get calcium in their diets?

Many people with lactose intolerance can actually consume normal servings of dairy products without experiencing the symptoms of abdominal discomfort, gas, or diarrhea. If discomfort does develop, smaller, more frequent servings may be tolerated. Lactose intolerant people may want to use low-lactose milk or add Lact-Aid, an enzyme preparation, to their food. Also, hard cheese, yogurt, buttermilk, and non-dairy food sources are frequently well-tolerated by lactose intolerant individuals.

Do young people need to be concerned about osteoporosis?

Yes, because the key to preventing osteoporosis is to build a peak bone mass and to slow down the rate of bone loss in later years. Loss of some bone tissue is an inevitable part of aging. Unfortunately, as bone mass is being increased to its peak between the ages of 15 and 35, many people are not taking in enough calcium. Dr. Charles Chesnut, professor of medicine and radiology at the University of Washington School of Medicine reports that "the latest federal statistics (U.S. Health and Nutrition Survey, 1976-1980) indicate that calcium consumption begins to drop off for females starting at about age 11. For many women, this low calcium intake continues through life." The habit of consuming calcium-rich foods needs to be established early in life.

Is there any advantage to getting calcium from dietary sources instead of from supplements?

The American Society for Bone and Mineral Research recommends dietary sources of calcium as the preferred method of obtaining adequate calcium intakes. Nutrients in milk and other dairy foods, such as lactose and vitamin D (if the milk is fortified), help to absorb calcium. A calcium supplement doesn't have this advantage. Also, taking calcium supplements as a means of increasing calcium intake doesn't encourage healthful eating habits. Dietary sources of calcium also contain many nutrients in addition to the calcium. Calcium supplements may be recommended as a last resort for those people who can't consume milk and milk products.

Will the Real Dairy Product Please Stand Up?

Smart shoppers learn as much as they can about what they're buying. This holds true whether they're selecting a car, a camera or crystal. It's especially important to ones lifestyle and well-being when the purchase is food.

The wide variety of foods available today is counted as one of our country's greatest blessings. Yet with so many different types of foods, ingredients and processing methods, this diversity has also brought confusion.

The dairy case is a good example. Despite the name, not everything sold there is a dairy product (and that doesn't mean just refrigerated biscuits, either). And, not every real dairy product is sold in the dairy case. To learn which ones are not, as well as some other facts about foods, take the quiz below. It will help you assess your shopping savvy and hopefully make you a more informed purchaser, especially of dairy products.

1. Which of the following are real dairy products?

- a. cheese
- b. ice milk
- c. milk
- d. half and half
- e. sour cream

If you said, "All of the above," you're right. Being made from milk is what makes a dairy product a dairy product.

2. True or False:

Exact standards are set by the government for the composition, ingredients and preparation methods of real dairy foods.

True. Called "standards of identity," they are established by the Food and Drug Administration and some state government agencies to assure uniformity, value and wholesomeness of all milk and real dairy foods. Standards regulate such characteristics as milkfat and moisture content of cheese and weight per gallon of ice cream.

3. Now a little harder question. Which of these are real dairy products?

- a. Pasteurized process cheese
- b. Nonfat dry milk
- c. Sweetened condensed milk
- d. Evaporated milk
- e. Sour half and half

Again, all of them are real dairy foods, even if they all aren't found in the dairy case. This is because they are all made from milk, not vegetable fat or vegetable protein. Pasteurized process cheese is natural cheese that has been ground, melted and pasteurized by high temperatures, with emulsifiers added to prevent separation of milkfat. Often other food ingredients are included for flavor and texture, for example, vinegar, salt and spices.

Nonfat dry milk is simply skim milk with most of the water removed. It can be used "as is," in cooking, or reconstituted, in exactly the same ways you use skim milk. Evaporated and sweetened condensed milks are fluid milk with approximately 60 percent of the water removed. To prevent spoilage, evaporated milk is sterilized and sweetened condensed milk has a sweetener, such as sucrose, added. Sour half and half is like sour cream, but contains 10.5 to 18 percent milkfat as compared to sour cream's 18 percent or more.

4. How can I be sure I am buying a real dairy product?

- a. Read the ingredients list
- b. Look for the "REAL" Seal

Both answers are correct. With real and imitation dairy foods packaged in look alike containers, sometimes it's difficult to be sure what you are getting. The fastest and simplest way is to look for the "REAL" Seal. This symbol, a stylized drop of milk encircling the word "REAL," can be displayed only on genuine dairy foods meeting federal and state standards. American Dairy Association assures that the contents of a package with the Seal are genuine dairy products.

Some real dairy foods do not display the Seal. If you don't see it on the container, that doesn't mean there is not a real dairy food inside. Reading the ingredients list will tell you whether or not the contents are a dairy product. The base material of the product must be 100 percent milk or cream.

Both the ingredients list and the "REAL" Seal help you know what you're buying before you buy it, so you can continue to get the value you're paying for, which is the real goal of smart shoppers.

Light's Effects On Milk Bring About Introduction Of New Containers

Much has been written about the ways that light (both natural and fluorescent) affects milk. Milk's flavor and nutritional value are changed if it is exposed to light over a period of time. The fact that light causes a change in the flavor of milk was first reported in Europe in 1890 and has been reinforced many times since.

However, the problems of light exposure have changed dramatically in recent years. Formerly, milk was left for a relatively short period of time on doorsteps in glass bottles; currently, most milk is purchased from stores where exposure to fluorescent light over a period of time becomes a significant problem. In addition, the convenience of clear plastic jugs has increased their usage markedly and thus resulted in more light related problems. Translucent plastic simply does not block out light as effectively as printed paperboard.

In 1964, 30 percent of all milk was sold in glass bottles, 64 percent in paperboard and only three percent in blow-molded plastic (plastic jugs). By 1974, this had changed to only three percent in glass, 70 percent in paperboard and 27 percent in plastic jugs. In one survey of 58,973 milk samples in 105 supermarkets, 58 percent remained in fluorescent lighted cases 24 hours before sale. The average light intensity in these dairy cases was 200 foot-candles.

A 1975 study reported that homogenized milk packaged in polyethylene containers (plastic jugs) exposed to fluorescent lights showed both flavor and vitamin deterioration. The noted "off-flavor" development began within two to four hours after exposure to a lighting system simulating commercial display cases. The researchers reported that the detection of light-induced flavor was slight, medium and strong after four, seven and 24 hours of exposure, respectively.

A 1981 research study drew similar conclusions. Milk in plastic jugs was exposed to fluorescent light of varying intensities and angles of incidence. Pronounced light-induced oxidized flavor detected at six hours in most samples.

In addition to the serious flavor problem, researchers have demonstrated the light-induced destruction of Vitamin B2 (riboflavin), Vitamin C and tryptophan, and significant nutritional losses.

Vitamin A, of which milk is a good source, is also particularly susceptible to destruction by exposure to light. Fortified Vitamin A is even more sensitive to light than natural vitamin A. In one test, whole milk in translucent plastic containers lost 18 percent of its added Vitamin A under fluorescent light in only two hours, low-fat milk lost up to 28 percent in only two hours.

Since light-induced oxidized flavor and vitamin deterioration have been repeatedly and clearly found to be a function of the amount of radiant energy at the milk surface and the length of exposure, protective light-filtering packaging is an obvious answer. Only recently, however, has the technology become available to provide plastic jugs with the needed light-filtering properties.

A Cumberland-based dairy is the first in the area to introduce yellow jugs which block out the harmful sunlight and fluorescent light rays much the same as paper cartons. The colored ingredient blended into the plastic has been approved for this use by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration.

Milk is perishable and needs refrigeration at less than 40 degrees F. Covering milk will prevent absorption of other flavors. Never pour milk that has been at room temperature back into its original container.

Opened butter should be kept in a covered dish and refrigerated in the butter compartment. Unopened butter may be kept at 40 degrees F. or lower for several weeks or six to nine months in the freezer at 0 degrees F. or lower. It should be wrapped in foil or plastic wrap.

Some Things Never Change.

Estimated Tax Payments May Need Recalculated

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein reminded the state's 180,000 individuals who make quarterly estimated income tax payments that they may need to recalculate those payments.

"Taxpayers should recalculate their 1987 state and local income tax liability in light of the changes in the law enacted by the 1987 session of the General Assembly," Goldstein said. "Estimated taxpayers can adjust their payments beginning with the second quarterly installment due Monday, June 15."

Under state law, taxpayers must pay, during the year, the lesser of either their actual previous year's tax liability or 80% of their current year's state and local income tax liability. Those payments must come from employer withholding or estimated tax payments.

Goldstein noted that, while every taxpayer's situation is different, estimated taxpayers should recalculate their 1987 liability taking into account the new Maryland personal exemption, standard deduction, and provisions for capital gains and earned income credits. Those changes are listed below:

1. Personal Exemptions — Old Law, $800; New Law, $1,000. Tax Years 1987 & 1988; New Law, $1,100. Tax Years 1989 and following.
2. Standard Deduction — Old Law, 13% to maximum of $1,500 single and $3,000 married. New Law, 15% with $1,000 minimum and $2,000 maximum for single, married filing separately and married filing combined separate; $2,000 minimum and $4,000 maximum for joint, head of household and qualifying widow(er); Extra $800 for blind and elderly; head of household eligible for "joint" minimum and maximum.

3. Earned Income Credit — One-half of the amount of the federal earned income tax credit is allowed as a credit to eligible state taxpayers. This credit is provided to households with earned income below a certain level and with one or more dependent children.

4. Capital Gains — a subtraction modification excludes 40% of net capital gains. The amount excluded is considered tax preference income.

"Estimated taxpayers can make adjustments in the second quarterly installment and the other two installments remaining on 1987 tax liabilities," Goldstein said. "This way they will be less likely to incur a penalty or receive an unusually large refund."

Love scenes no problem for heartthrob Joe Penny

By Toni D'Amato

I'm crazy about Joe Penny and I've really missed him since "Riptide" was taken off the air. Can you tell me what he's doing? — G.G., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Joe Penny

Penny recently appeared in the CBS miniseries "Roses Are for the Rich." Before that, he co-starred with Melissa Gilbert in the NBC movie "Blood Vows: The Story of a Mafia Wife." In 1981 Penny starred in the short-lived NBC series "Gangster Chronicles." He went on to star in "Riptide" from 1984 to 1986. Penny will be in a new CBS series next season called "Jake and the Fatman," co-starring William Conrad.

Penny says that he had no problems playing a romantic character, especially opposite Lisa Hartman in "Roses Are for the Rich." In the film, their characters fall in love. "If you've seen Lisa you know I had no problem with that," says Penny. "The first day it was not as though I had a half page of 'Hi, how are you?' It was three pages of heavy-duty love scenes and I didn't even know Lisa."

Before filming began, Penny visited the set to talk to Hartman. "I wanted to let her get to know me and to know that I was there to do a job, nothing else. I told her to picture me in her mind as the one guy she's always wanted to be with."

Do any Joe Penny fans have a problem with that?

I'd like to know how tall "Hunter" is. Fred Dryer is. He seems to tower over everyone else in the show. — T.K., St. Louis, Mo.

Dryer, who plays Sgt. Rick Hunter, is an ex-NFL defensive end. He's 6 feet 6 inches tall and that great build is really his. No padding there.

Bill Cosby is a very funny guy. I'd like to know where to write to him. — S.K., Portsmouth, R.I.

Send mail to him at his TV studio. The address is 1268 E. 14th Street, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11230.

New media therapist comes to Lifetime TV

By Connie Passalacqua

Forget about the primness and measured tones of Dr. Joyce Brothers. "Dr. Dan" (as he calls himself) Kiley, a hyper-charismatic Chicago-based psychologist and author of two best sellers, "The Peter Pan Syndrome" and "The Wendy Dilemma," is about to enter — and become a formidable upstart — in the media therapist derby. His daily half-hour "People in Crisis" debuts Monday, June 8 on Lifetime.

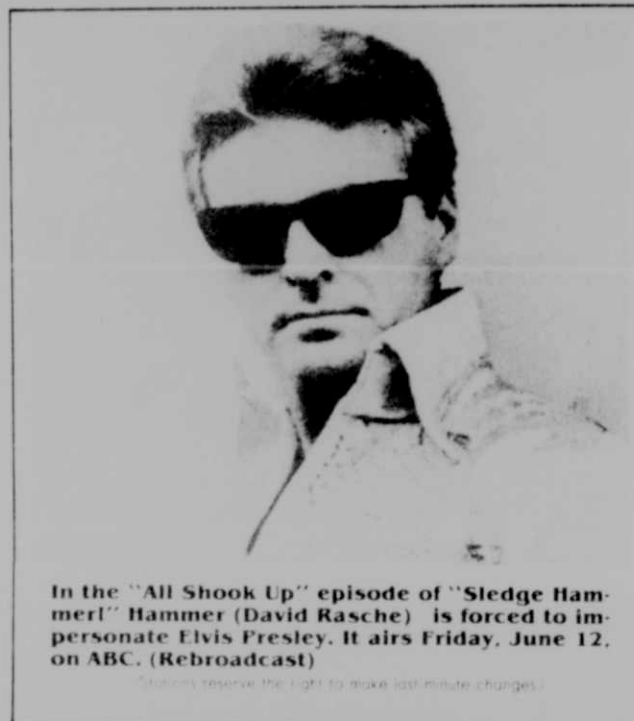

Dr. Dan Kiley

And what a frisky upstart is Dr. Dan! He'll counsel real people on real problems (such as marital stress, child rearing and sexual harassment) in front of a participatory audience a la Donahue and Oprah Winfrey. "Only there's a big difference!" says Kiley. "A lot of times on Oprah and Phil you'll see a conflict spelled out between two people, and the audience comments on it and that's where it stops. I'm going to take it a step further. I'm going to make a proposed resolution. Of course, I don't intend to make a final conclusion on something that's only been discussed for 12 minutes. But I will try to take a first step."

Kiley, who tends to talk in quotable "sound bites," is direct about his own approach to media therapy. "I call it 'the three E's: Ethics — to give people information that is directly taken from recent research. Education — to give the viewer an empathic experience with some information that he or she can use. And Entertainment — to make even high-powered psychology fun, without making it silly."

Kiley, who has been a guest on more than 1,000 radio and TV shows since 1972, feels his show will be different because the content will always be unpredictable. Asked what issues he'll be confronting on his first few shows he says: "Even the producers won't know the exact issue until Dr. Dan starts doing his thing. We've got one show coming up where a guy claims he is the classic Peter Pan (a man who refuses to grow up). I don't know. I'll ask him some questions and maybe it'll turn out that's not the case. Then we'll be dealing with a totally different idea. Who knows where it'll go?"

In the "All Shook Up" episode of "Sledge Hammer!" Hammer (David Rasche) is forced to impersonate Elvis Presley. It airs Friday, June 12, on ABC. (Rebroadcast)

BEHIND THE SCENES

Our favorite TV ads: Or are they really?

By Evan Levine

The answer to the question, "What is the most outstanding TV commercial you have seen in the past four weeks?" provides some interesting food for thought. Make that raisins and light beer for thought, because those products were among the responses given by consumers in a campaign to determine America's favorite commercials. Video Storyboard Tests, an advertising research firm, has polled 30,000 people a year for nine years.

Max Headroom

The four top recent winners: Coke, McDonald's, The California Raisin Board and Miller Lite. Many of these commercials tend towards a brash originality. The use of the hip Max Headroom was a departure for Coke, whose hallmark — was good — old American values, and the California Raisins came from nowhere to capture the No.

3 spot with their dance moves set to "I Heard it Through the Grapevine." The flip side is that the traditional images presented by McDonald's also ranked high. As one ad insider claims, "A lot of it is luck. No one knows what makes a great ad."

The winners do reveal certain trends in advertising. A "follow the leader" pattern could be seen among certain products that try to capitalize on the success of the product leader. (Can you really separate Bud commercials from Miller?) Also prevalent: A recurring theme of character, evidenced by the Bud Light ads where the joke is the same, but the players change. And finally, the prevalence of celebrities toutting everything from pudding to garbage bags. Jim McMahon alone turned up in three ads.

But the choice of the commercials also raises some questions. Since many commercials do look alike, consumers are likely to cite the right product but the wrong brand. Viewers may also say they've seen a McDonald's commercial even if they're not sure when they've seen it. Recall of specific commercials, studies show, is not very high. And this poll doesn't tell how well the products sold — just which ones were recalled on the spur of the moment. Even that method, it appears, is flawed. So what works? In this poll, one thing is certain. Appeal to our taste buds, because we're a generation of hungry Americans.

Jerry Stiller in 'Pursuit' Carson nabbed by design

By Cindy Adams

Jerry Stiller is in the new flick "Hot Pursuit." He got the role via nepotism. Jerry's son Ben was in it and the producer needed someone to play his father, so the kid suggested pa-assuming Robin Leach of "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" is living with a lady. She's actress Judith Leach, who's done shots on "The A-Team" and "Dallas." And why is he crazy about her? "Because of her initials," said Robin. "See, my first wife was also named Judith. Same I.L. initials. This way I didn't have to change the towels." And when's the wedding? "Oh, never. No, no, no, I'll never get married."

Robin Leach

On hiatus from "L.A. Law," Corbin Bernsen, who was filming the movie "Hello Again" in New York, said, "I'm going back to the series after I finish this. The show made me. I love it. I'll stick in it forever. I'll never get too big for it." Is he getting any bigger? "Well, I do have to keep changing my phone number, but I don't torture myself with the growth. When things become difficult, I just go inward." How about marriage? "Look, I'm only fresh from obscurity to notoriety. Sounds terrible, but I haven't time for a relationship. The career takes too much energy."

SOAP OPERA WEEK

Real-life pregnancy written into script

By Kimberly Redmond

I'd like to know if Kim Zimmer, who plays Reva Shayne Lewis on "Guiding Light," is pregnant in real life. Also, could I have her address? — A.B., Strong, Maine.

Kim Zimmer

Although the character of Reva was still pregnant at this writing, in real life, Zimmer had already given birth to a son, Maxwell Tyler Weary. You can write to Zimmer c/o "GL," CBS-TV, 51 W. 52nd Street, New York, NY 10019.

Can you tell me whether Stephen Nichols, who plays Steve Patch Johnson on "Days of Our Lives," has to wear an eye patch in real life? — A.G., Portage, Pa.

Nichols' eyesight is perfect. His character needs the eye patch because of an injury he suffered several years ago during a fight with his one-time best friend, Bo Brady (played by Peter Beckell)

I always liked Taylor Miller as Nina Warner on "All My Children," but it's been hard to keep track of the character since Miller left the role a couple of years ago, returned several months ago for a short period, left again, and then recently reappeared. Can you tell me why Miller left in the first place? — N.L., Atlanta, Ga.

Miller originally left "AMC" to look for work in California. A year later she did a stint on "Another World" as Sally Frame, then returned to "AMC" under a short-term agreement. She recently returned after signing another, longer contract with "AMC."

New producer takes on the Tonys

By Frank Lovece

The state of the American theater may be in question, but the state of the best-known theater awards — the Tony Awards — is as solid as ever. Don Mischer, a first-time producer of CBS' 41st annual Tony Awards telecast, airing Sunday, June 7, and hosted by Angela Lansbury, isn't exuberating when he calls the annual ceremony "the classiest awards show on television."

Don Mischer

"The awards ceremony, since its inception, has been handled by Alex Cohen and Hildy Parks," says Mischer, referring to the well-known theatrical producers. "And very well. I might add. It's strange to take over, but I think I share with them the notion that there's something wonderful about the theatrical community, something that ironically makes the Tonys less 'show-biz' than the Oscars or the Emmys."

Mischer is someone who understands what show-biz is. His credits include everything from directing nine "Kennedy Center Honors" specials to producing and directing "Motown 25: Yesterday, Today and Forever" and "The Pointer Sisters: Up All Night." With the Tony Awards, he realizes that "we have to keep the focus on the theater. This doesn't mean that we ignore our responsibility to good television, just that we don't lose scope — a criticism justly leveled at most Oscar and Emmy shows.

Mischer comes from Texas, where he recently returned to shoot "Willie Nelson: Texas Style" for CBS broadcast this fall. He began directing television with the acclaimed PBS magazine series "The Great American Dream Machine." The series, which boasted the talents of Chevy Chase, Studs Turkel and others, had a cult following and people still remember the show. Unfortunately, Mischer reports, "I've asked about where the tapes are, and no one seems to know."

Mischer went on to win five Emmy Awards in his directing and producing career. Yet it wasn't until the 1983 Motown anniversary show that he scored a major ratings hit. Armed with that clout, Mischer intends to stretch the boundaries of the Tony telecast. "Theater is run as a business, and is subject to the pressures of business," he acknowledges, "and that's fostered a kind of 'circus spectacular' attitude on Broadway. That's why we want (this telecast) to do something to honor off-Broadway, because that's where some of the most exciting things are happening. It's all theater," says Mischer. "It's important to recognize the whole."

Alan Thicke stars as Dr. Jason Seaver in ABC's "Growing Pains." A rebroadcast of the "Higher Education" episode airs Tuesday, June 9.

GROW OR GO

A large crowd of family and friends had gathered for the celebration of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. The aging couple, dressed in their finest, celebrated the occasion with pomp and pageantry.

When the festivities slackened a bit, I chanced to ask them a question: "How did you make fifty years together?"

They smiled at each other. "Tell him," she said.

He started slowly, deliberately. "The day we married the old minister said to us, 'You have two choices as you try to build a life together: You can GROW or GO. The choice is up to you.'"

A big smile covered the 50-year groom's face. "We decided to GROW. To GO has never been an option for us. Oh, we've had tough times, but we've never been sorry about our decision."

The poet's invitation surfaced as the couple turned to greet more well-wishers:

"Come, GROW old along with me; the best is yet to be."

And so it is. So it is.

On Dean's List

The dean's list for the spring term at Bridgewater College has been announced by Dr. John W. Cooper, Dean for Academic Affairs.

Linda Kay Harvey, a senior majoring in biology, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale C. Harvey, Oakland; and Richard Lee Ridder, a freshman and son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin W. Ridder, Oakland, were among the students on the list. Both are graduates of Southern High School.

Students on the dean's list attained a 3.2 or better quality

Masons To Meet

Oakland Lodge No. 192, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, will have a regular communication on Tuesday, June 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple, 3 South Wilson St. On that evening the Master Mason degree will be conferred on an eligible Fellowcraft. Worshipful Master James Wm. State's Largest Taxpayers Pay $70.3 Million

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein accepted checks totaling $70,299,022 from Baltimore Gas and Electric Company, the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Maryland and Potomac Electric Power Company as payment of the franchise tax on gross receipts of the three public utilities. The payments are due June 1st each year.

"These are among the largest payments ever made in gross receipts taxes," Goldstein said. The payments do not constitute a record because changes resulting from the breakup of AT&T have affected the tax paid by C&P.

Under Maryland law, public utilities pay a tax on their gross receipts instead of a corporation income tax. Therefore, they do not benefit from deductions and credits available under the income tax.

ment of the tax on gross receipts for 1986 and an estimated payment for the gross receipts tax for the first half of 1987.

Vital Records Office Hours Are Extended

The Department of Health and Mental Hygiene has announced the Division of Vital Records is now open for service to the public from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday, effective June 1.

Joseph R. Noll, Sr., director, General Services Administration (DHMH), said the additional hours of service are being established to provide more time for persons to obtain copies of vital records such as birth, death, and marriage certificates.

"Governor William Donald Schaefer and Secretary Adele Wilzack believe increasing the hours of service will more adequately serve the needs of the public," said Noll.

An applicant can now receive a certified copy of a vital record in less than two hours from the Division of Vital Records office in the Herbert R. O'Connor Building, 201 West Preston Street.

Mailed applications for copies of records are processed in three to four weeks.

VA Announces Loan Interest Rate Increase

The Veterans Administration is raising its maximum home loan interest rate from 9.5 percent to 10 percent, effective May 11, 1987.

VA officials said current conditions in the financial marketplace made the increase necessary to ensure that funds would continue to be available to veterans seeking to buy or refinance homes. The last change in VA interest rates occurred on April 13 when it went from 8.5 percent to 9.5 percent.

The VA, effective May 11, also will increase by one-half percent the maximum rates for Graduated Payment Mortgages (GPMs) to 10.25 percent, home improvement loans to 11.5 percent, manufactured home loans to 12.5 percent, manufactured home lot-only loans to 12 percent, and manufactured home and lot loans to 12 percent.

VA home loans may be used to purchase, improve, or refinance a house or condominium, and to purchase or refinance a manufactured home.

Nickel Increase In Gasoline Tax Now In Effect

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says the nickel per gallon fuel tax increase enacted by the 1987 session of the General Assembly became effective at midnight, May 31.

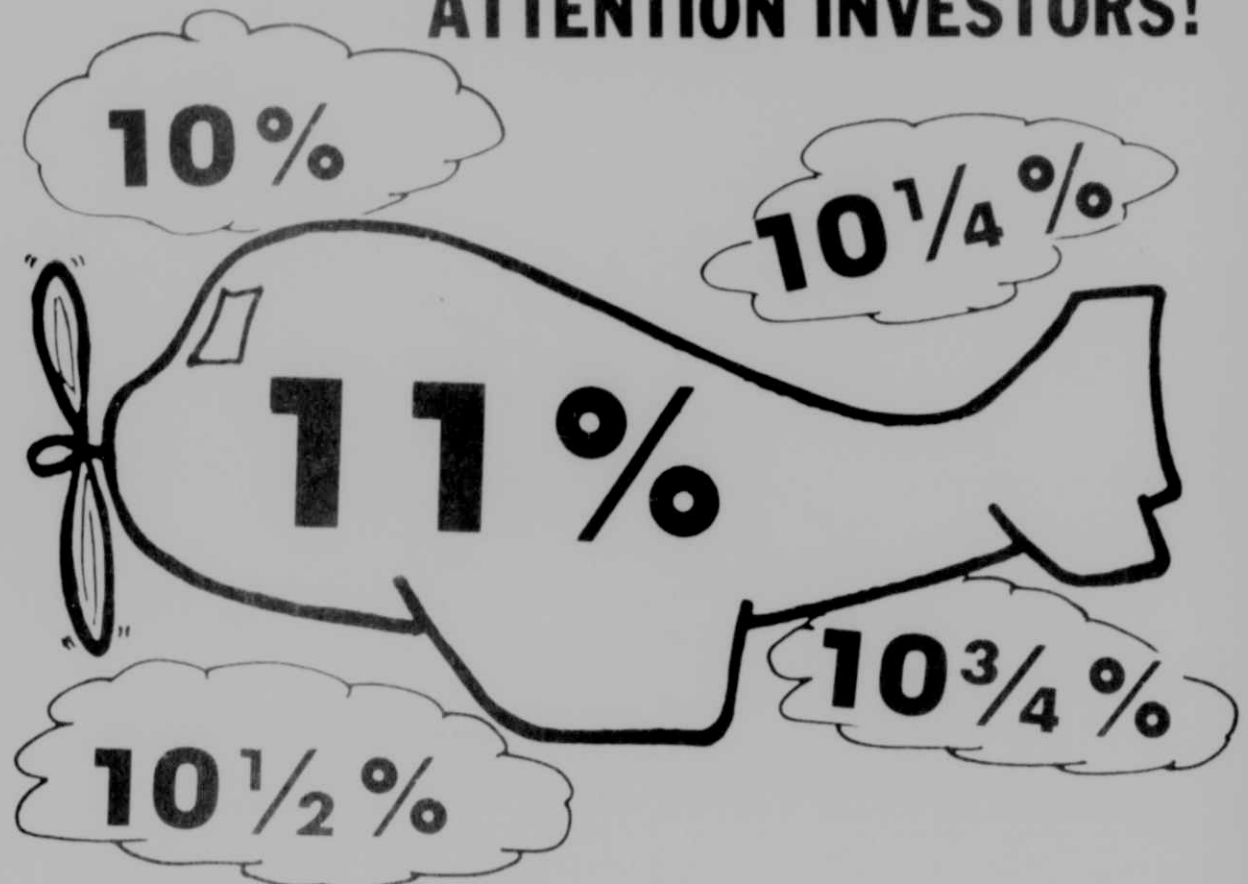

"There has been some confusion about when the tax increase would take effect and when the consumer should begin to see the tax reflected in the retail price," Goldstein said. "Retailers were instructed to pay the additional tax on gasoline and other motor fuel in their storage tanks as of midnight, May 31."

In the case of commodity taxes such as gasoline, cigarette and alcoholic beverage taxes, it is traditional to levy a "floor tax" on the goods in retail inventory at the time the tax rate changes. The state normally collects these taxes at the manufacturing or wholesale level.

Retail service station dealers have 30 days to report their inventory figures and submit the additional tax to the State Comptroller's Office.

"Despite earlier news stories, consumers should not believe they are incorrectly being charged the additional tax immediately after the tax increase takes effect," Goldstein said.

ATTENTION INVESTORS!

Have you been offered

"SKY-HIGH" RATES on non-bank investments?

If so, we suggest you consider these facts before you invest:

Fact #1: Fees

Almost all non-bank investments have charges associated with them. Some of these charges might include: Load fees, Management fees, Sales commissions, Middleman fees, etc.

When you deduct these fees from your rate of return, you may discover your net yield to be much lower than the "sky-high" rate first offered.

Fact #2: Risk

Many non-bank investments can go down in value if interest rates go up, resulting in losing a part of your investment principal. Yields on non-bank investments are generally stated in the past-tense, and have little bearing on future yields.

RESA To Offer Teacher Workshop On Constitution

The Regional Education Service Agency will offer a two-day workshop for social studies teachers, August 5 and 6, on the Allegany Community College campus, Cumberland. A Constitutional Convention Simulation will be presented in celebration of the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution and will provide teachers with first-hand knowledge of the political process involved in a constitutional convention. Each participant in the workshop will receive a stipend and free materials that may be used to present a simulation of a constitutional convention with his or her own students next year.

Participants in the simulation will be assigned the role of delegates to a contemporary national constitutional convention. Each participant will represent a state delegation and will control the delegation's votes at the convention. In addition, each participant will belong to one of six factions seeking to dominate the convention. The most successful participants in the simulation will be those who are able to build a strong coalition of support within the convention.

During the simulation, each participant will have the opportunity to practice skills used in lobbying, negotiating, compromising and putting together a winner caucus. Participants will have the opportunity to debate issues, make speeches and strike bargains.

The workshop is funded under a grant provided by RESA in cooperation with the Cultural Affairs Committee for Western Maryland and is designed for teachers with a particular interest in teaching about the U.S. Constitution.

Teachers wishing to apply for the Constitutional Convention Simulation Workshop should call Barbara Bluebaugh at RESA, 777-3525. A limited number of convention seats is available, so interested persons should call as soon as possible.

Light stays out!

Milk and light just don't mix. Light exposure changes milk's flavor and nutritional value. We're proud to be one of the first dairies in the country to bring added protection to the convenient plastic gallon with our NEW LIGHTSAFE YELLOW JUG — made right here in Cumberland.

Vitamins stay in!

The LIGHTSAFE YELLOW JUG helps keep your Local Cow's vitamin-rich milk intact. It blocks harmful light rays that can destroy Vitamin A, Vitamin B and many important nutrients.

Flavor stays in!

Potomac Farm's new LIGHTSAFE YELLOW JUG is yellow to keep out light from fluorescent fixtures in dairy cases. That's the wavelength that can oxidize proteins and make your milk taste "off-flavor."

Freshness stays in!

Your Local Cow is dedicated to bringing you the freshest, most nutritious dairy products possible. Now you can have the convenience of plastic milk gallons AND lightsafe protection — only from your Potomac Farms Dairy.

ARE YOU A HOME BODY?

Do you love to stay at home? Do you love your home so much that you never even go outside to wash your car, shop for groceries, visit a friend, or go to work?

If you do any of those things, do you think you've ever missed a phone call while you were gone? Sure, we all do that. But, consider this. When it's time to sell your home, you may not make a good "For Sale By Owner" for that very reason.

When you attempt to sell your home by yourself, you'll probably put a For Sale sign in your yard and an advertisement in the newspaper. When qualified buyers want to see your home, they will either knock on your door or give you a call — ONLY ONE TIME! The reason you will only get one chance to talk with them is simple.

There are two types of buyers — motivated (serious) and unmotivated (not serious). The type you want to attract, the ones who are motivated, have already made the decision to buy. They merely need to find the right home. As a result they may attempt to contact you, but will rarely try a second time if you happen not to be there when they call.

One reason those very same, motivated buyers choose to work with a real estate agent is to eliminate the delays caused when home-sellers cannot be reached. Enjoy your home, but when it's time to sell — call your agent!

Understanding real estate dilemmas and their solutions is our business, and we'll happily share our knowledge with you. Why not give us a call at 387-5303 or drop by our office at McHenry Plaza.

RED HOUSE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

by Dorothy W. Spaid, Principal

The Red House School, in its beautiful rural setting, was opened to grades 1-7 in 1932. The red brick structure consisted of two classrooms, two restrooms, a basement in which were a small auditorium, a furnace room and kitchen.

Two additional classrooms were built onto the structure in 1956. In 1960 more remodeling and additions consisted of a classroom, a health room, which is now the office, and an enlarged cafeteria making the school more spacious for the increasing enrollment for grades one through six.

Red House to go to the new Southern Middle School and a kindergarten class was started at Red House in the fall of that year.

Because of the varied programs offered to students, such as speech therapy, special education, gifted and talented, and an increasing enrollment, a relocatable building, corridor, and two restrooms were added to the lower level of the building in 1978 which houses the early childhood grades Pre-K-1. The upper level consists of four classrooms; a second grade, a three/four split, a four/five split, a resource room which serves as a special education classroom for one half-day and

The fourth grade reading group of teacher Sherry Taylor practices a skill lesson dealing with understanding the feelings of the characters in a story. Student comprehension is often checked by the students themselves, as they pose questions to each other regarding the plot and characters in a particular story. Students pictured around the table from the left of Mrs. Taylor are Tricia Steyer, Christina Murray, Justin Alexander, Betty Jo Sweitzer, Jeremy Rohrbach, Forest Bachtel, Cathy Rhodes, Julie Paugh, and Samantha Philjaw.

Within the walls of this building is a child oriented atmosphere, where 134 children are loved and 16 staff members are respected. A well-balanced county curriculum is provided to meet the educational needs of students. The staff believes that all students should be encouraged and challenged to succeed according to their capability; therefore, pacing of students' progress is significant. Individualized instruction is prevalent in all grades. An orderly environment in which students can learn includes appropriate discipline and well organized instructional plans. Our goal is to promote character and citizenship education along with the basics.

A unique feature of Red House School is that the library is in the entrance hallway on the upper level. Despite its location, the media center is used extensively by students.

The five classroom teachers, grades K-5, provide instruction to include the objectives of Project Basic and the County Curricula. The teachers are assisted by one full-time and two half-time instructional aides. The clerical aide performs many varied duties.

Other services provided at Red House School include a half-time special education teacher, a half-time media aide, and a teacher for gifted and talented students for one half-day per week. Additional traveling specialists include music, art, and physical education teachers, a speech pathologist and aide, a psychologist, and an audiologist.

The cafeteria manager, cafeteria worker, and custodian take pride in the school and care about the students they serve.

Parent volunteers have donated a total of 650 hours at Red House School this school year. Volunteers have provided attractive bulletin boards, worked with students, laminated, copied and engaged in many other activities which have enhanced the educational program.

A fourth grader, Tabatha Welling, expresses her feelings about Red House School as follows: "I like Red House School because it's a small school with very kind teachers and, most of all, a kind, caring, and nice principal. There are good girls and boys and we learn something everyday in each subject. It's fun to learn at Red House and when you don't understand something, the teachers will help you with it at all times. I think it's the best school in the world. I could never think of a better school to go to. It's not big and you can't get lost. We have a nice big playground, too."

Prekindergarten Program

The Prekindergarten program at Red House School has been in operation for five years. This unique program is one of two Prekindergarten classes in Garrett County. The Prekindergarten program is organized to foster the social, emotional, physical, and intellectual growth of each child. The teacher and full-time aide provide a concrete, play oriented and child initiated approach to learning. They also assist and guide the children during these types of activities: math, science, language, writing, fine motor, dramatic play, listening, art, woodworking, blocks, corn table and etc. The Prekindergarten Program is a worthwhile learning experience for many four-year-olds who are fortunate enough to attend.

This year the Prekindergarten class attained accreditation by the National Association for the Education of the Young Child (NAEYC), and from the Maryland State Department of Education.

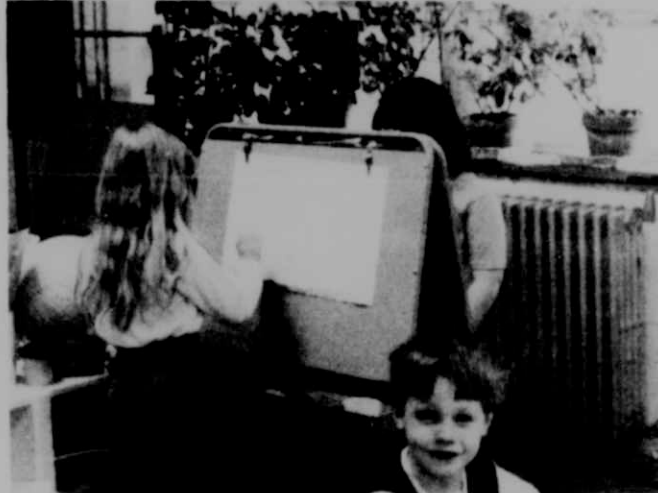

During one phase of the second grade health curriculum, students memorize the parts of the eye and learn to identify them using a plastic model of the eye. The second graders in this class were also privileged to have Dr. James V. Jones, an Oakland optometrist, visit their classroom and talk to them about the importance of taking good care of their eyes. He also dissected the eye of a cow to better explain the parts of the eye and how the eye functions.

Pre-kindergarten students were captured on film in the writing center, busy writing about animals.

Students in Room 4-5 use interview, language, spelling, typing, and computer skills to publish the school newspaper, The Apple Delight.

Shroud Of Turin Investigator To Speak June 28 at Comfort Inn

Robert C. Downs Jr., a member of the team of scientists which investigated the famous "Shroud of Turin," will give a slide presentation on the Shroud on Sunday, June 28, at 1 p.m. in the Majestic Gardens Ballroom at the Comfort Inn, Route 36, Frostburg.

The Shroud is a linen sheet which many people believe to be the cloth in which Jesus was wrapped following His crucifixion. On the cloth is the image of a man, believed by many to be the image of Christ formed at the time of His resurrection. Because of this claim, the cloth has been surrounded in controversy since its first known public display in France during the 1350's. A number of scientific investigations have attempted to determine the authenticity of the cloth, the most recent being an extensive study in 1978 by the Shroud of Turin Research Project.

Many consider the Shroud's image to be scientific proof of the historical existence of Jesus and claim that the image could only have been created through a miracle. Others are skeptical and believe the image was created through natural processes or that it was man-made as part of a hoax. To resolve these issues, the Vatican allowed a team of scientists to have access to the Shroud in 1978. After subjecting the shroud to scientific examination, many members of the team concluded that the image was not painted or inked onto the cloth nor was it created by any other known process. Only time will tell if the image will eventually be explained as a "natural" event or hoax, or whether the image will be accepted as proof that Jesus existed and that He was resurrected.

Downs's slide presentation is divided into three main parts. The first part presents the history of the Shroud itself. The second portion highlights details of the image. The final section reviews the results of the scientific experiments conducted on the Shroud. A final summary places the findings in perspective.

Downs is a major in the U.S. Air Force, currently assigned as a Medical Intelligence Program Manager for the Armed Forces Medical Intelligence Center at Fort Detrick. He recently completed a four-year tour as an assistant professor of physics at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colorado, and previously served as a biophysicist for the Foreign Technology Division, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. He is a graduate of Cornell University, and he holds bachelor and master of science degrees in applied physics. He is a member of the United Methodist Church in Walkersville, and is chairman of the church's Worship Committee.

Since 1980, Downs has been a member of the Shroud of Turin Research Project. He is co-author of "Examination of the Turin Shroud for Image Distortions." His involvement in the project is on a volunteer basis and not part of his official duties as an Air Force officer. He often spends non-duty time speaking about the Shroud and performing research on the image's physical mapping characteristics.

Along with the other Italian Festival activities on June 26 and 27, proceeds from the program will go to the Diabetes Foundation (DFA). The purpose of the DFA is to raise and use funds exclusively in Allegany and Garrett counties in order to help diabetics and their families cope with diabetes.

There will be a $2.00 per person admission charge, with all proceeds going to the Diabetes Foundation of the Alleghenies. Tickets may be purchased in advance at the following locations: Majestic Gardens Restaurant at the Comfort Inn, The Mary Carol Shop, and Fox's Pizza Den in Frostburg; Aber's Hallmark on the downtown mall in Cumberland; The Christian Music and Book Store in the Country Club Mall, LaVale; and at Dee Ann's Women's Apparel in Oakland. Tickets in groups of five or more may be purchased by mail if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is included with a request. Checks should be made to "DFA" and mailed to: Diabetes Foundations of the Alleghenies, 222 McCulloh St., Frostburg, MD 21532. Tickets may also be purchased at the door at the Comfort Inn. However, the number of tickets is limited.

On Dean's List

Among the students of Davis and Elkins College to be named to the dean's list for the 1987 spring semester was Jeanette Sweitzer, of Oakland, who has just completed her junior year of study toward a bachelor of science degree in nursing.

Ms. Sweitzer is employed as a registered nurse at Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home in Oakland. She is the daughter of Robert Sweitzer, of New Hampshire, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Onie Sweitzer, Deer Park.

In order to qualify for the dean's list at D&E College, a student must earn a grade point average of 3.6 to 4.0.

Correction Noted

In a story that appeared in last week's issue of The Republican about the graduation of Brenda Paugh, Gorman, from the International Beauty School in Cumberland, it was reported that Mrs. Paugh is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Plessenger Jr. It should have stated that she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Plessenger Sr. We regret the error.

Sawmill Safety Training Course Created At WVU

versity will soon be used in sawmill safety training throughout the United States.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has approved and accepted a special slide/tape show produced by the WVU Extension Service. OSHA had funded the production as part of a six-year, $470,000 grant aimed at reducing injuries and health hazards in the logging and lumber industries.

The 17-minute program, "Machine Guarding in Sawmills," emphasizes the importance of saw blade guards, machine shields and personal protective equipment in reducing sawmill-related injuries.

Janice Connel, OSHA safety and occupational health specialist, said the program will help OSHA compliance inspectors as well as sawmill workers themselves.

"We are quite happy with WVU's efforts," she added. "The program shows just what are the right ways and the wrong ways to work with different kinds of machines used in the sawmill industry."

Connell said WVU's program will be used at the national OSHA Training Institute at Des Plaines, Ill. It also will be made available to sawmills and related wood industries.

Production coordinator Jan Della-Giustina, an assistant extension safety specialist at WVU, said the slides depict actual lumber operations in West Virginia.

"We are grateful for the co-operation of the sawmill operators who permitted on-site photography and the recording of sound effects for the program," Della-Giustina said.

"These mills included the Coastal Lumber Co. at Daily and Horse Shoe Run, the Grist Lumber Co. at Smoot, Gilbert Hardwoods at Gilbert, and the Burkes-Parsons-Bowly Corporation, Spencer."

Thomas L. Bean, WVU extension safety specialist, is principal investigator for the OSHA grant. WVU educational media specialist Tyndara Meffe served as producer/director for the program. Paul Yeazell wrote the script. The slides were shot by WVU photographers Ed Petrosky and Dan Friend.

Groups or individuals interested in viewing this program may arrange to borrow it from the Dorsey Resource Center at Jackson's Mill State 4-H Camp, near Weston. For information, call the Dorsey Center at (304) 269-5100.

SUNNYWIDE- UNDERWOOD

The Bible study group met on Thursday afternoon in the home of Ann Cannon. The lesson was taught by Jane Kope from the third and fourth Chapter of Ruth. Opening prayer was by Florence Hamill, closing prayer was by Bessie Canan and table grace was by Sybil Merrill. Those attending were Myrtle Fulk, Jane Kope, Wilma Waybright, Mildred Peterson, Elaine Beckman and daughter, Amanda; Florence Hamill, Sybil Merrill, Bessie Canan and the hostess, Ann Cannon.

Bessie Canan, Sunnyside, and Pearl Sisler, Red House, received word this week of the death of their cousin and friend, Marie (Hebb) Panches, of Blissfield, Mich. She was the daughter of the late George and Nancy Columbia Hebb, who were residents of Location, near St. George, W.Va. Mrs.

Panches had been in ill health and had resided with her daughter and son-in-law, Ruth and Roy Graham in Morgantown, W.Va., during the winter months. She had visited her cousin, Bessie Canan and Pearl Sisler in March. She was twice married. Her first husband was Ernest Strawser and the second one was Ed Panches. Both are deceased.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Rita Duncan Jr., of Florida; a son, Dale Strawser, of Chantilly, Va.; Mervin Strawser, Adrian, Mich., and a granddaughter, Ruth Graham, Morgantown.

On Saturday afternoon, May 30, the wedding of Teresa Helmick and Michael Feather took place in an open glade by the side of a brook along Salt Lick Road.

The bride is the daughter of Kenneth and Mary Ellen Helmick of Terra Alta. She is the granddaughter of the late Addie Jo (Hebb) Helmick and Willard Helmick.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Feather, also of Terra Alta, W.Va.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and was escorted by her father up through a ribbon outlined aisle where the Rev. Bruce Reed officiated.

The bride wore a tea-length gown of guinea silk with an overskirt of white lace and a white yoke and lace collar and long lace sleeves. Her hair was held in place by a coronet circlet of flowers. She wore a pearl necklace.

Her maid of honor, Miss Jennifer Goal, was attired in a white off-shoulder tea-length gown with pale rosebuds scattered throughout the skirt.

The groom and attendants all wore dove grey afternoon suits with black bow ties.

The reception which followed on the lawn of the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. Harriman.

A long tent with tables for the wedding had been erected on the lawn and tables with chairs were scattered over the lawn. Some of the bride's close relatives attending included Robert and Virgie Browning and son, Michael, Ronald and Lisa Dawn Helmick, Terra Alta, and Bessie Canan, (aunt of the bride) Oakland.

Talmadge White is recovering from a recent heart attack and is out of intensive care at this time, but still unable to return home. His son, Donald White and wife, Della Mae, had planned to go home to North Carolina on Sunday, when Della Mae accidentally fell and broke her wrist, and was taken to the Garrett County Memorial hospital for care. Mr. White is an uncle of Bessie Canan.

Mrs. Nada Marie Daoust and daughter, Lisa, and Nada's foster daughter, Miss Tina

Visiting over the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Friend were Mrs. Friend's sister, Mrs. Irene Hartman, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hartman of Martinsburg, W.Va.

Bicentennial Pins Available From PG County Jaycees

A set of four lapel pins that commemorate Maryland's role in the creation and adoption of the Constitution are being made available for purchase by the Maryland Hall of Records.

The pins, which were the idea of the Prince George's Jaycees, show: the 200th anniversary of the writing of the Constitution, its ratification ("seventh to ratify"), the Federalist ("seventh ship in the line") and the Bill of Rights ("second to ratify").

Dr. Gregory Stivers, director of the Maryland Office for the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, said, "These beautiful pins are a wonderful example of how service groups can get involved in the celebrations and make a meaningful contribution. We are grateful to the Prince George's Jaycees for this unique set of pins which together tell the story of Maryland and the Constitution."

The pins were designed for the Prince George's Jaycees by member Bill Aleshire of Bowie whose hobby is history and historic preservation. "I wanted something visible that people can hold on to and look back on the celebrations," he said. "It's a way of reminding people what we are doing during the bicentennial."

For ordering information, persons may write to: The Maryland Office for the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, Box 828, Annapolis, Md. 21401. The pins are $3 each and $12 for the set of four. The first pin is available now and the other three will be available at intervals over the next year.

For further information, persons may call Dr. Gregory Stivers at (301) 974-3916.

NEW LIMITED EDITION FULL-SIZED DODGE EASTERNER

$1,974 UNDER FORD, $1,464 UNDER CHEVY.

The new Dodge "Easterner" is here! And while they last, it's a great way to get a tough full-sized Dodge pickup for less than a comparably equipped Ford or Chevy.

Among the many attractive features you get with "Easterner" for $9,520 are a strong six cylinder engine, automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, wheel covers, radio, tinted glass, 20 gallon fuel tank, dual oversized mirrors, carpeting, body side moldings, and a new 7/70 protection plan* Plus, a list price that's $1,974 less than a comparably equipped Ford F150. $1,464 less than a comparably equipped Chevy R10.

Also, to top it all off, the new Dodge "Easterner" comes with a distinctive two-tone paint treatment - a $452 suggested retail value - at no extra charge! And that's simply another way that Dodge is doing more to hold down the cost of a new pickup.

But don't wait too long. Head on over to your Dodge dealer and see how the new Dodge "Easterner" stacks up against Ford and Chevy full-sized pickups. And while you're there, take a good look at our mid-sized Dakota pickup and imported Ram 50 pickup. They're ready to do a tough job, too.

Potted plants were also received in a drawing by Marjorie Migliaccio, Deena Ritchie, Mabel Roderick, Bernadette Prince, Judy Upold, and Geraldine Turney. Dr. Mahoney concluded by giving the benediction, followed by a short meeting of the Bethel United Methodist Women.

Members of the United Methodist Women serving on the dinner committee were Dolores Hayden, chairperson; Doris Goldsborough; Margaret Williams; Mabel Roderick; Helen Henline; Phyllis Bolden; and Priscilla Wolfe.

Donna Dolan Is Nat. Collegiate Award Winner

The United States Achievement Academy announced today that Donna M. Dolan has been named a United States National Collegiate Award winner in Health Care Administration. The Academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American college students.

Dolan, who attends Davis & Elkins College, was nominated for this national award by Dr. Payne, chairperson of the Department of Business Administration at the school. Dolan's name will appear in the United States Achievement Academy's official collegiate yearbook, published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly United States Achievement Academy award winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, executive director of the United States Achievement Academy.

The Academy selects USAA winners upon the recommendation of professors, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection includes a student's academic performance, leadership qualities, responsibility, citizenship and dependability.

Dolan is the daughter of Bill and Kiyo Dolan of Oakland.

Historical Photo Exhibit At ACC Until Mid-June

The opening exhibit of "History in Your Attic," photographic images of Allegany County from 1868 to 1930, is being held now until the middle of June at Allegany Community College, Cumberland.

Sponsored by the Allegany County Committee for Maryland's 350th Anniversary, it is funded by a $2,200 grant from the committee.

Featuring many photographs from the extensive collection of Herman and Stacia Miller of Cumberland, "History in Your Attic" was compiled by Gary Bartik, chairman of the municipal Historic Preservation Committee; William Demo, director of the Learning Resources Center at ACC; and Michael Pearce of the city's Community Development Department.

The Warrens are authors of three books of historic photographic accounts, the most recently published being "Baltimore: When She Was What She Used To Be," an account of the port city's growth and changes from 1850-1930.

They have selected 48 photographs from the Miller collection, as well as others from the Beachy and Shriver collection documenting everyday life in Cumberland and Garrett County between 1901 to 1927, to appear in their new book celebrating Maryland's 350th Anniversary.

Following the showing at ACC, "History in Your Attic" will be available on request for display at shopping centers, libraries and other locations, according to L. Anne South, Allegany County committee chairman.

"Delmarva Farmer" To Begin Using Soybean Oil-Based Printer's Ink

A major farm publication in the Mid-Atlantic region is about to begin experimenting with printer's ink produced from a 70 percent soybean oil base. The ink was first used by the "Cedar Rapids Gazette's" weekly supplement, "Iowa Farmer Today."

Bruce Hotchkiss, editor/publisher of the "Delmarva Farmer," which covers agriculture from southern New Jersey to Virginia and is printed in Easton, said his paper would produce an issue within two weeks using the new ink. A companion daily newspaper in the Easton plant, the "Star-Democrat," will also try out the ink which is being licensed to manufacturers by the American Newspaper Publishers Association (ANPA).

The oil used in the ink, said ANPA, is the same soybean product used in 80 percent of U.S. produced cooking oils and 70 percent of salad dressings.

Lon Myers, director of operations for the Cedar Rapids papers, said the soy-based ink is "equal to and maybe looks better" than the petroleum-based ink now used throughout the industry.

The new product eliminates the problem of ink rubbing off on readers' hands and clothing, appears to flow with the same ease on application and, according to ANPA's technical research director George Cashau, "lays down a little better" in the printing process.

It also prints more newspapers per pound than petroleum-based ink and is biodegradable.

Even though the limited supply of soybean-based ink is now about double the price of standard ink, it could gain a place in the nation's printing plants as volume increases and the price drops.

American Soybean Association President Dave Haggard noted that nearly two and one-half percent of U.S. soybean oil production could be involved if the newspaper industry switches to soybean-based ink. That translates into about 29 million bushels of soybeans producing an estimated 300 million pounds of oil. At $5 a bushel, that's a $145 million market.

Dairy Month Ads Show Support

Area dairy farmers and businesses are showing their support of the dairy industry and the way of life it represents by buying an ad, which will run once during the month, for the special price of $5.

This ad campaign was the "brain child" of Sheila Bender when she was Maryland Dairy Princess in 1985-86. The campaign was continued and expanded this year by Garrett/Allegheny Dairy Princess Sherri Wilt.

Anyone who would like to show their support in this way during the month of June may call Farm Editor Bernice Kepple at 334-3963.

Beef Bull Testing Program At WVU To See Changes

West Virginia University's 20-year-old testing program for beef bulls may be in for substantial changes as a result of a study published by the West Virginia Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station.

"Factors Affecting Gain of Beef Bulls Consigned to a Central Test Station" presents a statistical analysis of data collected over a 10-year period from the bull tests held each year on WVU's Reymann Memorial Farms near Wardensville, W.Va., in Hardy County.

Results of this and other recent studies reveal that when bulls are fed a high energy diet, a 112-day test might be as appropriate as the current program, which is 140 days in length. A shortened test program in West Virginia offers some opportunities not available with the previous schedule. Bulls can be delivered to the station later in the fall. This would provide farmers with more time and flexibility to collect weaning performance data on their calves.

The Beef Improvement Federation recommends calves be at least 160 days old when weaning data is collected and as close to 205 days as possible. Breeders would also have more time to vaccinate and pre-condition calves prior to delivery to the test station.

With a 140-day test, it has been difficult for consignors to get March-born calves weaned, properly immunized, and on feed prior to the test. In the past, these young bulls have not had the opportunity to adjust their digestive systems to handle high energy feeds and they have not been capable of developing high levels of immunity to certain diseases.

A shorter test period also provides an opportunity to lengthen slightly the period for bulls to adjust to the feed used for the test. This would decrease the environmental variation among the bulls at the beginning of the test, and might ultimately result in a more accurate evaluation of genetic differences in growth rate while on test.

Animal scientists at WVU, along with officials of the Extension Service, the West Virginia Department of Agriculture, and the West Virginia Cattlemen's Association, all of whom co-sponsor the annual bull test, are considering the results of the study while planning the 1987-88 test.

The authors of the report are Cynthia Franklin, a graduate research assistant in animal science; Wayne R. Wagner, Extension specialist, animal breeding and genetics; Leroy P. Stevens, associate animal scientist and Keith Inskeep, animal scientist in the Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station.

The publication, Experiment Station Bulletin 693, is available from the Mailing Room, Communications Building, WVU, Morgantown, WV 26506.

Open Horse Show Set For June 14

An open horse show will be sponsored by the United Saddle Club on Sunday, June 14, beginning at noon. The show will be held at Island Creek Park in Bavard, W.Va., located between Bayard and Thomas, W.Va., on Route 90.

Prize money, ribbons and trophies will be awarded. Refreshments will be available, and the public is invited to attend.

Spring Showers Slow Field Work

Showers and thunderstorms during the week ended May 24 held the days suitable for fieldwork to four. Topsoil and subsoil moisture were adequate. According to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service, 90 percent of the acreage had been prepared for spring planting, which was five percent below normal.

Wheat, barley, oats and rye continued to be in good condition. Powdery mildew was still present at varying levels. Some counties reported rust. Wheat was 80 percent headed, which is normal. Virtually all barley and rye fields had headed. Most fields of small grains had started to turn color at normal rates.

Farmers had planted 80 percent of the corn, five percent below normal. Soybeans were 20 percent planted, the same as last year and average for this date. Almost all the strawberries had begun to bloom. The harvest of strawberries and green peas was about 10 percent complete.

The first cutting of alfalfa was 40 percent complete, which is normal. Clover and other hays were cut the first time on 20 percent of the acreage, five percent below the normal pace. Alfalfa weevils continued at various levels of infestation. Colorado potato beetles and leaf hoppers were present on the lower Eastern Shore. Seventeen year cicadas were active.

Weather for the week ended May 22 had normal temperatures with scattered showers. Temperatures for the week averaged 64 degrees F, one degree below normal. Low temperatures were in the mid 30s far west, and mid 40s to low 50s elsewhere. High temperatures reached the high 80s to low 90s over the entire state. Precipitation averaged 1.15 inches for the week with a low of 0.34 inches at Washington National Airport to a high of 2.42 inches at Oakland.

Introduction of the cone for ice cream at the 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis touched off a dramatic increase in the popularity of ice cream. The ice cream concessionaire, running out of dishes, served ice cream in cones rolled from dough intended for Zelabia, a crisp wafer-like Persian pastry offered by a neighboring concessionaire. The idea was an immediate success and by 1924 some 245 million cones were sold.

POTATO LEAFHOPPERS ON ALFALFA

It's time to be checking for the potato leafhopper on the regrowth of alfalfa. The warm weather we have been having here in the east is ideal for the movement of leafhoppers. Insecticide treatment is recommended if populations exceed 20 adults/nymphs per 100 sweeps on stubble under three inches, or 50 per 100 sweeps on three-inch to six-inch growth. There are several good insecticides available. If you have any questions, give me a call.

INCHWORMS ON THE RAMPAGE

We have had a lot of calls on a small green insect that has been defoliating deciduous trees. This little green worm is called an "Inchworm." If the population is large enough they can completely defoliate a tree. Of course, defoliation damages the growth of a tree, but in most cases the tree will recover, unless defoliation occurs again next year. The insecticide "Sevin" does a good job in killing the Inchworm.

FLEA BEETLES ON CORN

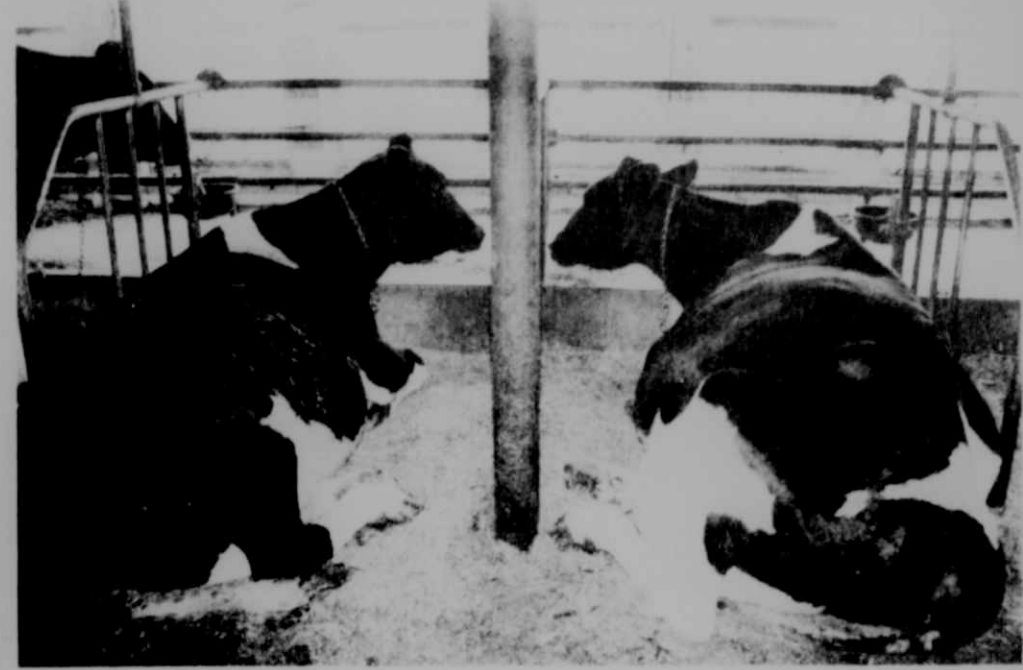

There is an above-normal amount of flea beetles on corn this year. However, control of the beetle is rarely necessary. If you find 10 or more adults per one-to-two leaf stage plant, you may want to consider spraying. In most cases the economical damage does not justify cost of spraying. They will run their course.

Although ice cream was known 500 years ago, just about all the progress that has taken place in ice cream manufacturing and marketing has occurred during the past 200 years.

A PROUD SALUTE TO OUR DAIRY INDUSTRY

WHERE DOES MILK COME FROM? Most Garrett County children know the answer to that question. Many of them, however, don't know what is involved in the production of the milk in that gallon jug which they pull from the refrigerator in the morning to use on their cereal. Members of the County Kids 4-H Club and their guests recently toured two Garrett County dairy farms to learn about the process first hand. Grantsville dairyman Philip Beachy and his family led the group through their operation step by step from the boxstalls where the calves are born, to the hutch where they are bottle fed, through the barn where the heifers are housed, and back into the main barn where the cows are fed and milked. Beachy is pictured above (upper left) explaining the pipeline-milking system to the group — how it connects to the bulk tank to bring milk directly to the tank from the cow, and how the pipeline is then cleaned and sanitized after each use. Below, Beachy talks about Dairy Herd Improvement (DHI) and how those records are used to help him make important decisions about feeding, breeding and culling cows. "For any farmer, this is very important, for two reasons," said Beachy. "The records show how much profit your cows are bringing in, and how each individual cow should be fed for top production." And for Beachy, it works! His herd of registered Holsteins has been the top producing herd in Garrett County on DHI test for several years, as well as the top producing herd in the state once or twice.

IT TAKES CONTENTED COWS TO PRODUCE ALL THAT MILK. and cows, like these two Beachy Holsteins pictured above, need special care and feeding to be contented enough to produce 100 pounds (12 gallons) of milk a day, and many of them do. Below, Beachy explains what each cow is fed to help them produce that much milk. Before the group's arrival, Beachy had weighed the different ingredients which go into the total mixed ration (TMR) fed to each cow giving 100 pounds of milk. The group was amazed to learn that each cow ate approximately 66 pounds of this mixed feed a day.

peake Bay. Water movement and quality is being monitored under varying agricultural management systems to analyze and determine the most effective nutrient control strategies.

"We are proud of Maryland agriculture's efforts in reducing nonpoint source pollution to the Chesapeake Bay," said MDA Secretary Wayne A. Cawley, Jr. "I'm glad we had this opportunity to share our experience and sense of dedication with the other members of the Chesapeake Bay Team."

Research project leaders from the University of Maryland's Agriculture Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service made formal presentations in the morning. Participants observed monitoring stations for individual watershed studies and a demonstration of a rainfall simulator used to analyze nutrient movement on small plot comparisons. Facilities and capabilities of the on-site Water Quality Laboratory were also explained.

Earl Shaver, chief of the Sediment and Stormwater Division at the Department of Natural Resources, also made a presentation concerning Maryland's research and programs to control urban nonpoint source pollution.

MDA Hosts Regional Nonpoint Source Subcommittee Of The Bay

The Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) hosted the regional Nonpoint Source Subcommittee of the Chesapeake Executive Council on May 27 at the Aspen Institute. This subcommittee functions as a forum for exchange of information and coordination of Chesapeake Bay cleanup efforts relating to agricultural and urban nonpoint source pollution, and exemplifies the strong cooperative effort by officials of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Washington, D.C., and federal natural resource agencies, including the Soil Conservation Service, Environmental Protection Agency, Fish and Wildlife Service and National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Agency.

The meeting was part of a "technology transfer" effort among the jurisdictions. The focus was the Maryland Department of Agriculture's research and demonstration projects aimed at cleaning up Chesapeake Bay.

What Conservation Planning Means To Landowners

Two-thirds of America's land is privately owned. Responsibility for protecting and preserving soil, water, and other natural resources rests with these private owners. All land is not the same; most farms are made up of several soil types with different physical properties that influence the potential erosion of soil. Some soils are highly erodible, while others have minimal erosion potential under any cropping system. The Soil Conservation Service (SCS) estimates that there are 344 million acres of "highly erodible" land. Of this total, 118 million acres are cropland. The SCS advises that planning for the use of the highly erodible lands is very important.

The conservation compliance provision of the Food Security Act of 1985 directly applies to highly erodible fields where annually tilled crops are planted. For the owners to remain eligible for several U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) program benefits, they must develop and be actively applying a locally approved conservation plan on highly erodible fields by January 1, 1990. The plan must be fully implemented by January 1, 1990.

IT'S DAIRY MONTH — These Jersey calves know that June is National Dairy Month as they line up for their "milk break." Dairy Month has been celebrated since 1937 as an annual salute to one of the most productive arms of agriculture — dairying. Most recent figures indicate that in 1985, 11.03 million cows produced 143.7 billion pounds of milk. That's 16.7 billion gallons of milk. It's remarkable that the 11.03 million cows in 1985 outproduced the 17.5 million cows that were producing in 1960.

Help is available through the SCS, who will obtain an inventory and description of each soil type on an individual's farm, use this information to determine which fields are highly erodible, and provide conservation planning assistance.

Specialists in SCS, Extension Service, Forest Service, and local conservation districts as well as agricultural consultants, vocational agriculture instructors, and others can provide assistance. This help is generally provided free to all land users. A model training program now being developed and tested will provide farmers with material and guidance so that they can better assist with the development of their own farm plan.

Following are several steps used in developing a conservation plan:

1. One of the conservationists or advisers listed above helps interpret detailed data about soil types and their limitations, erosion potential, crop adaptability, production potential, and resource problems.

2. The plans are discussed with SCS and others and explored for economically feasible conservation alternatives to overcome problems, make better use of the soil, and remain eligible for USDA program benefits. In some cases, changes in cropping systems and specific treatments on cropland may be needed to substantially reduce erosion. Some cropland may be converted to pasture, rangeland, woodland recreation, or wildlife habitat. These lands may be particularly suitable for the Conservation Reserve Program.

3. Exactly how much the land will be used and what conservation practices will be used must be decided. For example, on relatively level cropland, crop sequence and crop residue management and/or conservation tillage may be adequate. On sloping cropland, other practices such as contour farming, strip cropping, or grassed waterways may be needed. In some cases, terraces may be an economical alternative.

4. The owner and the conservationist or adviser must decide when to apply the planned practices. Select the best time to fit residue management and other cultural practices into the operation and when to install needed conservation structures. The conservation district can help find any special equipment and provide technical assistance for design and construction of practices. Remember, all erosion control practices on highly erodible land must be installed by January 1, 1990.

When the owner signs a copy of the record of decisions (conservation plan), SCS certifies if the plan is technically correct according to the Field Office Technical Guide, and the conservation district approves the plan.

The plan must be kept current. Circumstances change, and the plan may need altered. Any changes should be discussed with the SCS beforehand to ensure that the land use and conservation treatment will not change the owner's eligibility for farm program benefits. When the conservation plan is implemented, it becomes the conservation system for the owner's highly erodible land. The SCS asks landowners to remember that the conservation plan is: voluntary and flexible, a document of decisions the owner has made and will carry out, the owner's plan for the land he owns and uses.

HEY, SHE LIKES ME! Yes, this friendly Jersey cow likes children, and proved it a few seconds later by licking the little girl's face. The second part of the Country Kids' tour was to the Howard Kepple family's Acorn Acres, an entirely different kind of dairy operation. Those differences were explained to the 4-H members by comparing what they had just seen at Beachy's with what they were then seeing at Acorn Acres. While Beachy's herd was registered Holsteins, the herd at Acorn Acres was registered Jerseys. The 4-Hers were told that the Jerseys, a smaller cow than the Holsteins, don't produce as much milk as the larger cows. Their milk, however, has a high percentage of butterfat and protein. While the milk from Beachy's herd was being sold to a Grade A market for fluid milk consumption, the Jersey milk was being sold to a Grade B market to be made into cheese. The group was served refreshments at each farm. At Beachy's, cartons of milk were served to wash down delicious home-made donuts, while a cheese tray was served at Kepple's containing various kinds of cheese made at the plant which purchases their milk.

In the future, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Farmers Home Administration, and Federal Crop Insurance Corporation will need verification of an approved conservation plan before determining eligibility for farm program benefits, loans, or guarantees.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS.

Garrett County Board of County Commissioners -

203 South Fourth Street
Oakland, MD 21550
(301) 334-8970

On or about June 22, 1987 the above named Board of County Commissioners will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release Federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) for the following project(s):

The Garrett County Small Business Loan Program. An interest rate subsidy loan program for qualified businesses in Garrett County.

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and accordingly the above named Board of County Commissioners has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190).

The reasons for such decision not to prepare such statement are as follows:

1) any new construction will be short term in nature and in accordance with applicable federal regulations and policy.

2) any expansion construction will also be short term in nature and will be done at existing commercial sites.

An Environmental Review Record respecting the project has been made by the above named Board of County Commissioners which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at the Garrett County Planning & Zoning Office and is available for public examination and copying upon request at Room 307, Old Courthouse, Oakland, Maryland, during the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of Federal funds.

Interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the Board of County Commissioners, to the Garrett County Planning & Zoning Office, Old Courthouse, Oakland, Maryland. Such written comments should be received at Room 307, Old Courthouse, on or before June 19, 1987. All such comments so received will be considered and the Board of County Commissioners will not request the release of Federal funds or take any administrative action on the within project prior to the date specified in the preceding sentence.

Garrett County is certifying to HUD that the Board of County Commissioners and Ernest J. Gregg Jr., in her/his official capacity as Chairman consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts, if action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the Board of County Commissioners may use the Block Grant funds and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification for a period of fifteen days following its receipt of the request only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the certifying officer; or (b) that recipient's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process; or (c) another Federal agency has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality.

Objection must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58), and may be addressed to HUD at the Baltimore Office, 10 N. Calvert Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21202.

Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after July 7, 1987 will be considered by HUD unless, because of unforeseen delay, the request for release of funds was received after the date specified in this Notice. Since this is possible and would cause a change in the objection period, objectors should contact HUD to verify the date of the last day of the objection period.

This application meets two notice requirements (1) notifications to the public of the finding of no significant impact; and (2) notification to the public of the intent to request release of funds. Comments submitted must satisfy the requirements (1 or 2 above) are being addressed.

By Authority of
Ernest J. Gregg Jr.,
Chairman, Garrett County Commissioners

AARP Sponsors Trip Recently To Holland, Mich.

The local chapter of American Association of Retired Persons sponsored a recent bus tour to Holland, Michigan for the annual Tulip Festival.

Enroute to Holland, the group spent a day at historic Greenfield Village and the Ford Museum in Dearborn. The village is a collection of homes and shops, transported from all parts of America. They were reconstructed at Greenfield Village, creating an authentic look at the past. The Ford Museum traces the progress of the Industrial Revolution and has a collection of historical artifacts in the fields of transportation, communication, agriculture, industry, domestic life and decorative arts.

Windmill Island at Holland is home to De Zwaan (The Swan) an authentic 200 year old windmill, transported from the Netherlands. It is still an operating mill set among tulips, canals and drawbridges which are typical of the Dutch landscape. At Dutch Village is

The chapter goals, as with the international group, are to promote individual management and community development, according to President Trickett, who may be contacted at 334-8127 for membership information.

Two Found Guilty Of DWI Charges

During traffic court proceedings in Garrett County District Court recently, two people were found guilty of driving while intoxicated and driving under the influence.

Robert Frederick, 24, was fined $500 and placed on 12 months supervised probation as a result of the conviction.

He had been arrested January 17 on Rt. 219 in McHenry. Catherine E. Ravenscroft, 23, was fined $500 and placed on 12 months supervised probation. Judge Jack R. Turney then suspended $300 of the fine.

She had been arrested March 14 while traveling northbound on Rt. 219 at Gravelly Run Road.

C&P Telephone Co. Simplifies Billing Format

C&P Telephone Company has announced that customers will soon see phone bills with fewer pages and an easier-to-read format.

In response to customer concerns about the number of pages and the perceived complexity of the phone bills, C&P has revised its bill format, making both cosmetic and content changes. Customers will begin receiving the redesigned bills this month.

"The new format will make the bill easier to understand, and easier to verify," said C&P spokesman Walter Bell.

Many of the changes are subtle improvements in readability including: more white space, for balance and easier reading; information clustering, or grouping of similar information; key information emphasizing, through repetition or boxes; positioning information so the eye reads from left to right in a natural way; and simplified language.

The average bill will have four fewer pages, since some information has been consolidated and some redundancy eliminated. "But, customers who make a lot of long distance calls or use more than one long distance carrier will receive more pages than customers who don't make as many calls," Bell explained. "In other words, greater customer usage will require more pages in the bill."

"One of the objectives of redesigning the bill was to make it a convenient, accurate record for the customer as well as the company," said Bell. "Different customers have different needs. Some want more information than others. We tried to accommodate different customer needs to make the bill-paying process easier and faster."

The introduction of the redesigned bill coincides with the installation of new computer systems in C&P business offices, which allow service representatives to see a customer's bill displayed on screen exactly as the customer sees it. The combination of the new service system and the new bill design should make customers' billing contacts with the business office much more efficient, Bell said.

Bell explained that "a great deal of research went into the bill redesign. First and most importantly, we listened to what customers were saying about the bills — through comments to the business office service representatives, complaints and surveys. We also consulted with consumer panels and focus groups."

Bethesda Church Honors Chaney's Upon Retirement

The Reverend and Mrs. Connell T. Chaney were honored Sunday with a retirement dinner by the members of the Bethesda Church of the Brethren, near Grantsville.

Since his retirement after 38 years of full-time pastoral ministry in the West Marva district of the Church of the Brethren, Reverend Chaney served the Bethesda Church for the last three years.

The couple was presented with a quilt composed of individual patches of original designs and names of the various church families.

Mrs. Genevieve Miller presented the quilt before the congregation. The quilt was quilted by the women of the fellowship.

Mrs. Rosella Niner presented the couple with a decorated cake, on which was inscribed the saying, "Pastors are never put out to pasture."

Over 50 members attended the dinner.

Reverend and Mrs. Chaney live on Hemlock Drive, Grantsville. They are the parents of one daughter, Mrs. Rose Lee Folk, and have three grandsons.

Judge Sentences Oakland Man To 12 Years

An Oakland man last week was found guilty of assault and battery and sentenced to 12 years in the Maryland Department of Corrections by Circuit Court Judge Gary Lease.

David E. Drake, 44, was handed down the sentence during Garrett County Circuit Court proceedings that began Monday after the jury was dismissed by Judge Lease.

A charge of assault with intent to murder was not prosecuted.

The charges were filed by Detective Richard Kutchman following a September incident in which he reportedly struck Barbara Drake, also of Oakland, several times on the head with his fists and a hammer.

According to Mrs. Drake, he threatened to kill her.

Mrs. Drake was admitted to Garrett Memorial Hospital where she was treated for injuries sustained from the incident.

A Grantsville man received a total of four years in the Maryland Department of Corrections during a sentencing hearing held Monday with Judge Lease presiding.

Joseph E. Miller, 28, had been charged with one count each of child abuse, third degree sexual offense and assault and battery, two separate cases.

He had been found guilty in a February 24 hearing of both assault and battery counts, and a sentence investigation ordered.

Charges were filed following incidents that occurred between Miller, 1983 and March, when he reportedly sexually abused two youths, a six-year-old female and five-year-old male.

Agreements were reached in the February trials. Statements could not be reached from the victims. Michael Morrisette was the attorney for the defense.

Outs Slated For Friendsville Festival Play

Actors from the entire county and surrounding West Virginia and Pennsylvania are invited to participate, according to directors Dawn Humberson and Ben Sincell, instructor of speech and drama at Garrett Community College.

Presentation of this play will be part of the celebration of the centennial of the U.S. Constitution.

THE YOUNG AT HEART principal, teachers and janitor were the ending of a perfect day at Play Day held at Dennett Road Elementary School Friday. Following a day of games and refreshments for the students, the "big kids" got in on the act as they donned plastic garbage bags and engaged in a water battle to end all water battles. Principal Clark Sharpless, left, seemed to be getting the best of already drenched teachers and aides. Also visible at the right of the photo is Denver Bittinger, janitor, who joined in the merriment. The students loved it and some were almost sorry that today is the last day of school for Garrett County. Play Day is an annual event conducted by the PTA and parent and teacher volunteers. The day was delightful for everyone as the kids were permitted to be loud and the teachers didn't even mind.

Braskey Named Chairman Of MACo Committee

Garrett County Commissioner John G. Braskey was named chairman last week of the Maryland Association of Counties (MACo) Legislative Program Committee. The committee is charged with the responsibility of reviewing and developing MACo's 1988 legislative agenda.

Following the development of the program, it will be presented to the entire MACo Legislative Committee. If approved, it will then be presented to Governor William Schaefer for his consideration.

The committee will be looking at several issues, including: medical costs for prisoners, school construction and renovation funding, community college funding, and education funding and accountability.

The committee consists of several elected officials as well as administrative people throughout the state.

Commissioner Braskey commented at a press conference Tuesday, "I am looking forward to working on the committee because many of the issues to be addressed will have a major impact on Garrett County. It will provide the commissioners an opportunity to make sure that Garrett County concerns are being expressed."

He concluded, "I am glad that the MACo membership showed their support and confidence in me by asking me to serve as chairman of this important committee."

Commissioner Braskey is expected to be elected first vice

Oakland Woman "Satisfactory" After Mishap

A young Oakland woman is listed in "satisfactory" condition at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where she remains a patient following injuries she received Friday night in a two-vehicle accident.

Patricia L. Gnegy, 18, was flown by Maryland State Police Medevac helicopter to the hospital as a result of the accident which occurred at 10:15 p.m. on Mason School Road at U.S. Rt. 50.

According to State Police reports, the accident occurred when Gnegy was operating a 1984 Plymouth Horizon southbound on Mason School Road and, failing to stop at the intersection at Rt. 50, was struck by a 1978 GMC Sierra truck, driven by Michael A. Donney, 37, Curtice, Ohio.

Donney applied the brakes of his truck and swerved but was unable to avoid striking the Gnegy vehicle.

Donney and passenger, April A. Mulnix, 12, also of Curtice, were not injured.

Tfc. D.W. Broadwater investigated.

Southern Rescue Squad and Gorman volunteer firemen also responded to the accident.

A young Friendsville man was treated for injuries and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a recreational vehicle accident that took place Monday evening in his backyard.

Timothy L. Sisler, 21, was operating a three-wheeler and attempting to cross a rut when he lost control of the vehicle.

Whitewater Gala Slated June 20 At Wisp Resort

A Whitewater Team Gala, honoring the U.S. Whitewater team which will compete in France this summer, and launch the 1989 World Whitewater Championships, will be held Saturday, June 20, at the Wisp Resort, Deep Creek Lake. The gala will feature the athletes, their sponsors, and members of the 1989 World Whitewater Championships, Inc.

Chairing the event is Abigail Endicott, wife of the U.S. team coach, William Endicott.

The gala program will include a 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. informal viewing of the U.S. team practice on the Savage River, Bloomington, site of the '89 Worlds, a poolside reception from 7-8 p.m. at the Wisp Resort and a seated dinner at 8 p.m. at the Wisp Resort Hotel with special presentations and entertainment.

In conjunction with the gala, the Arts Council of Garrett County will host a musical concert and art exhibition, entitled, "Garrett's Greats," on Friday, June 19, at 8 p.m. at Garrett Community College. The concert is Garrett County's "official send-off," saluting the U.S. team, as well as the first in a series of events for the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival to be held throughout the summer.

C and P Telephone Yellow Pages is sponsoring the U.S. Whitewater Canoe and Kayak teams and the gala, according to Endicott.

Second Case Of Rabies Found On Sanders Lane

Sanders Lane, the location of the first case of rabies in the county this year, is also the location of the second confirmed case of rabies just one week later. Environmental Health Official Rodney Glotfelty reported that on Monday, June 9, a raccoon walked onto the Kenneth Sanders property, apparently chased into his yard by his two dogs.

The raccoon was killed and reported to the Health Department, who picked the animal up and sent it to the lab. The lab confirmed a positive report of rabies on June 9.

The two dogs involved had previous rabies vaccinations. They were given booster shots and will be watched for three months.

A rabies clinic schedule for late June will appear in next week's edition of The Republican, according to Glotfelty.

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners set the FY87-88 tax rate at $2.32 and adopted a new operating budget for the county at a special meeting Tuesday.

The base property tax rate of $2.27 plus the special $0.05 volunteer fire department tax reflects a $0.04 decrease in the tax rate from the previous fiscal year. The constant yield rate was not met this year, but as predicted the rate did drop. The commissioners said last week they expected a $0.3 - $0.6 decrease in the rate.

The new budget adopted by the county officials has been set at $15,067,400, (including capital expenditures) an increase of over $1,000,000 from last year's budget.

Education Budget

Education was a top priority for the commissioners as over half the county budget will be spent on education.

The Garrett County Board of Education realized a $660,000 increase over last year's $6,000,000 budget. The bulk of that increase will cover salary increases of two and one-half to three percent for teachers and administrators, according to the commissioners.

County funding of Garrett Community College was also substantially increased this year. The College will receive $715,000 this year, an increase of $50,000.

The Board of Education had requested $6,663,700 and GCC was asking for $792,000.

Public Works

Although Public Works will operate on a smaller budget this year, it still represents a large portion of the county budget.

The operating expenses of the Sanitary Commission will be $12,500, a decrease of $500 from last year.

The budget for solid waste, which includes refuse collection sites and operation of the solid waste landfill, received a hefty increase with a total budget of $380,000. Last year's budget was $195,000.

Operating expenses for the Garrett County Roads Department were also decreased. That portion of the budget has been set at $2,900,000, a decrease of $563,500.

The total apportionment for public works is $3,292,500.

General Government

The allotment for general government for the next fiscal year is $995,700. A breakdown of the total follows:

— County commissioners' salaries, $52,000, unchanged; travel-business expense, $11,500, unchanged; staff salaries, $68,500, $10,500 increase; operating expense, $12,000, $2,000 increase.

— Circuit court: salaries, $44,300, $4,000 increase; operating expense, $13,500, $4,100 increase.

— Orphans court: salaries, $1,800, unchanged; operating expense, $6,000, $2,000 increase. — State's attorney: salaries, $97,000, $1,000 increase; operating expense, $24,000, $5,000 increase.

— Jury and witness: salaries (grand and petit), $11,000, $500 decrease; meals and transportation, $1,000, $500 decrease.

Volunteers Sought For '89 World's Whitewater Event

Volunteer efforts, coordinated by the Administration Committee of World Whitewater Championships, Inc. are currently underway in Garrett and Allegany counties and the surrounding areas.

Both county governments have shown support of the 1989 and preliminary Worlds to be held on the Savage River in Bloomington through funding and providing in-kind services.

Volunteers are now being sought for the various committees which include: administration, finance, promotion and media relations, advisory, site planning and development, competition, special events, accommodations and special services.

"Whether your expertise is in clearing brush at the site, organizational abilities, creative financing or watching your neighbor's kids while they volunteer their time, we need you," said Dr. Stephen Herman, chairman of the administration committee.

The Whitewater Committee is also seeking donations and sponsors for the event which is being held in the United States for the first time.

Persons interested in volunteering for various committees or businesses wishing to contribute, may call the Whitewater Headquarters, which is now housed at Garrett Community College, at 301-387-4282.

A FLAG FOR THE COMMISSIONERS — The Garrett County Commissioners were the recipients of a United States flag this week from a local young man who represented the county at a special Flag Day Kickoff ceremony in Annapolis this week. M. Stanley Lambert, a student at Southern High School, was hosted by Governor Wm. Donald Schaefer, as were 23 other teenagers representing Maryland's other counties and Baltimore city. The flag, which is a replica of the one flown over Fort McHenry, was presented to Lambert by former Oriole third baseman Brooks Robinson on behalf of the governor. Youth representatives were also asked to bring with them one person who had a positive and profound influence on their lives and Lambert selected Southern High math teacher, James Zimmerman. In the photo, left to right, are Commissioner Elwood Groves, Lambert, Zimmerman, and Commissioner John Braskey.

"THE THREE TOMS" are among the members of a local dulcimer group called Hammers and Strings, who will perform at the Garrett's Greats benefit Friday, June 19, at Garrett Community College. The benefit is sponsored by the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival and will kickoff a full summer schedule of cultural entertainment for local residents and summer guests. Hammers and Strings was organized about two years ago by Betty Mattingly, Oakland, who became interested in the hammered and mountain dulcimers after attending a festival in Elkins, W.Va. The group has performed during Min. Lake Park Days, the Autumn Glory Festival, at area nursing homes, and for family gatherings. Instruments besides dulcimers include banjo, guitar, harmonica, washboard, and bells. Pictured above, left to right, are Tom Tressler, Tom Hayhurst, and Tom Mattingly. Other members are Ellis and Hollis Will, Hazel Goff, and Anita Teeter. Tickets for the Garrett's Greats benefit are available at Marvin's Men's Wear in Oakland. See story for more details.

Evening High School Graduates Five

Southern High School on June 7: Sylvia J. Bosley, William Andrew Callis, Linda J. Moon and Katrina Gregory Rodeheaver. On the same day Paul E. Ferguson received his diploma from Northern High School.

The Evening High School held classes each Monday and Thursday evenings during the school year. This year classes were held at Southern High School but next year classes are planned for both Northern and Southern High Schools.

Mr. Fred Pratt served as English Teacher/Principal. Other teachers participating were William Ewing, Career Employability and Job Math; Dr. Gerald Snelson, English second semester; Tom Woods, U.S. History; J. Russell Settle, Physical Activity and Joseph Winters, Earth Science.

Students who attended Evening High School are interested in taking regular high school courses that are required for graduation. These courses follow the curriculum that is approved by the Board of Education and meets State credit requirements.

Any person interested in attending the Evening High School next year should contact John Ledden, Evening High School Coordinator, by calling the Board of Education office at 334-8913.

John Ledden commended the graduating students noting that considerable effort and dedication was required by each of them.

Battle 25-Acre

Brush/Woods Fire

Volunteer firefighters from Grantsville and Accident, along with Department of Natural Resources personnel, worked for approximately five hours Sunday afternoon to extinguish a brush/woods fire which burned about 25 acres of the Cecil Rush property along Zehner Road, west of Grantsville.

According to Herman Yoder, chief of the Grantsville VFD, this was the largest brush fire in that area so far this year. He noted that the affected area had recently been cleared of its timber, so no major damage was sustained.

Placed on stand-by status were the Bittinger Fire Department, that sent a unit to the Grantsville station, and Deep Creek VFD, that stood by at Accident's station.

The alarm was received at 2:25 p.m.

Abrahamson Is

For REENTRY

Craig Abrahamson, Oakland, has been named program director for REENTRY, a program which offers free readjustment counseling for Vietnam-era veterans.

Abrahamson is an associate professor of psychology at Garrett Community College and will be completing studies toward a doctorate in psychology during a sabbatical from GCC this year.

The new director has a master of social work degree from Arizona State University and has been a psycho-therapist for 16 years. He will maintain his practice in Oakland while offering counseling by appointment at REENTRY, 710 North Mechanic Street, Cumberland. The phone number of REENTRY is 1-301-722-2813.

Abrahamson will also coordinate training for other counselors at the center which has a contract with the Veterans' Administration at Martinsburg, W. Va.

Peggy Melotti, program coordinator, has asked the VA administration to approve the hiring of two combat veterans and another counselor. She said REENTRY also wants to employ a medical doctor with a degree in psychiatry.

Sentences Handed Down By Turney In District Court

Two local men each received 60-day suspended sentences during Garrett County District Court proceedings last week before Judge Jack R. Turney.

Robert J. Hall, 24, Mtn. Lake Park, had been found guilty in a previous trial of destruction of property and a pre-sentence investigation had been ordered.

Hall was also placed on 18 months supervised probation and fined $50 as a result of the conviction.

The charge was filed by Kelly Vance, Mtn. Lake Park, following a February 14 incident there when Hall damaged carpeting, a door and a plastered wall, all the property of Vance.

Hall was represented by John R. Toston, public defender.

Jeffrey S. Glover, 21, Friendsville, was found guilty of malicious destruction of property and was placed on six months unsupervised probation as a result.

He was also ordered to pay $30 in damages and a $5 fine.

The charge was filed by Terry L. Beitzel, Grantsville, following a May 6 incident there when Glover damaged a mailbox belonging to Beitzel.

An Arlington, Va. man was found guilty of a violation of probation and one month of an 18-month suspended sentence was reimposed.

Adam E. Berman, 23, had received probation before judgment during a September hearing and it was rescinded last week as a result of the violation.

The charge was filed against Berman by Tfc. D.W. Broadwater, Maryland State Police, after he was apprehended in February of last year on Rt. 48 operating a 1985 Nissan 300ZX Turbo.

According to police reports, the vehicle had been stolen from Bob Rosenthal's Connecticut Avenue car dealership in Washington, D.C.

The car was valued at $20,000. Barry J. Rosenthal was the defending attorney.

James W. Fries, 25, Oakland, received six months unsupervised probation and a $25 fine after having been found guilty of battery in a previous hearing.

A pre-sentence investigation had been ordered.

The charge was filed by Curtis B. Ridder, also of Oakland, following a January 23 incident there when Fries reportedly assaulted and battered Ridder.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Neil E. Knuth, 33, McHenry, after he was found guilty of assault.

Earlene P. Moats, also of McHenry, filed the charge following an April 6 incident when Knuth allegedly broke and entered her residence and was carrying a handgun.

Knuth was found not guilty of two counts of breaking and entering and a handgun violation.

Charges of disorderly conduct and malicious destruction of property against Scott Cardinell, 23, Mtn. Lake Park, were placed on the Stet Docket after the complainant refused to testify.

The charges were filed by Laura Stottlemeyer, also of Mtn. Lake Park, after a May 16 incident at her residence.

A bad check charge against Larry E. Wiles, 31, McHenry, was also steted after Wiles made the check good.

Ms. Friend Earns Certification As Childbirth Educator

Garrett County Health Department officials announce that Rebecca Friend, Mt. Lake Park, has received notification of recognition from the International Childbirth Education Association as an ICEA certified childbirth educator. ICEA unites people who support family-centered maternity care and believe in freedom of choice based on the knowledge of childbirth alternatives.

Ms. Friend has successfully completed the Teacher Certification Program sponsored by ICEA. Candidates complete a rigorous study curriculum, attending continuing education workshops which support the ICEA philosophy, observe labors and births, and are evaluated on their teaching skills before they sit for the certification examination. The ICEA Teacher Certification Program verifies that the childbirth educator has the necessary education for counseling skills to enable her to prepare expectant parents, mentally and physically, for a participating and individually satisfying pregnancy, labor and birth, and introduction to parenthood. Over 1,000 individuals are currently enrolled in the certification program which is offered internationally.

Ms. Friend started teaching Childbirth Preparation Classes in 1980, after studying and working under Sara K. Donley, C.B.E., for two years. She continues to teach for the Garrett County Health Department on a regular basis.

Rebecca is the wife of Larry E. Friend and the mother of four children.

However, word was received this week that the location for that program has been changed to Beall High School.

Let's Get Involved . . .

The Administrative Committee of World Whitewater Championships, Inc., composed almost entirely of local volunteers with Senator John Bamabus as its president, has been working diligently for the past several months to lay the groundwork and make preparations for the 1989 World Whitewater Championships. The event will be held at Savage River in Garrett County. The venture is ultimately going to cost approximately $2.5 million and the committee's primary jobs right now include general promotion, plus negotiating with potential corporate sponsors of the event.

The Committee is currently experiencing a rather severe cash flow problem and will probably continue to do so until August when the members hope to have some corporate sponsors committed. Good progress is reported with some potential sponsors, such as Coca-Cola and Perception Kayaks Corp.

We were about to utilize this column today to criticize Governor Schaefer and the state of Maryland for not allocating funds toward this project, especially since the county governments of Garrett and Allegany have already donated some $50,000 for this purpose. However, we discovered just this morning that the state had little or no involvement in the project until January of this year, well beyond the budgetary process for the current fiscal year. Only in January were the state and Senator Bamabus called upon to take over the project. It is anticipated that money will be allocated by the state in the next two fiscal years.

We are hopeful, however, that the state can find some extra cash within the next few weeks just to keep the project solvent until August. A letter requesting $25,000 was prepared yesterday by the committee and has been sent to Secretary of Economic and Community Development Randy Evans for consideration. We anxiously await his response.

In the meantime, we strongly urge local persons and businesses to get involved in this project, which is one of the most important events ever to come to Garrett County and Western Maryland. Not only are financial donations needed, but also volunteers for the various committees. We are confident that Governor Schaefer and the state will come through for us in the long run, but a strong show of local enthusiasm, volunteerism, and donations will certainly encourage more state-level support.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I take exception to last week's editorial entitled "One Major Point . . ." I would like to know who has more right to impact on legislation affecting the sale of alcoholic beverages in Garrett County than our Liquor Control Board?

The Liquor Control Board was created as an appointed board so that it could function autonomously of political influence — not so that it would be the puppet of the current administration.

Name withheld by request

To the Editor:

We feel compelled to respond to your article on day care. Statements and quotations in the story may leave the reader with some incorrect information and confusion. As the first in Garrett County to brave the red tape to open a licensed center, we were upset to see the term "licensed" used incorrectly. Day care homes are not licensed. The licensing process is what distinguishes a Day Care Center from a Day Care Home.

The State of Maryland licenses centers for a 1-year period. Staff members must have training, experience with children, a physical exam and an FBI background check. Facilities, toys, equipment, daily activities and foods served are regulated. Out-of-home centers have many expenses including payroll, additional mortgage or rent, unemployment and liability insurance. It is not a very profitable business and there is a lot of paperwork.

The Social Services office registers homes for a 2-year period. The only paperwork required is with the initial application, unless the caregiver chooses to apply for Federal Food Program reimbursements or to enroll children through Social Services Purchase of Day Care program. Home caregivers may deduct portions of household and other expenses from taxes, but most do not claim their earnings and pay no taxes on this income. (A good reason for not registering?)

We hope that good sitters will not be discouraged from applying. There are benefits for everyone concerned. Caregivers receive monthly newsletters full of ideas for activities, menus, more effective discipline, etc. There is talk of starting a Family Day Care network where caregivers can also exchange information and ideas. For those parents who do not have a friend or neighbor who can babysit, there needs to be a means of getting at least some information and reassurance about day care homes.

Very few homes are turned down, with the most common reason being poor drinking water. The Health Department and Social Services office are anxious to register homes and are helpful, not snooty. No one can guarantee that a caregiver is good, but the registration will assure reasonably safe surroundings.

We favor exempting the "friend of the family" from registration, but believe that persons who advertise babysitting services and/or watch children from more than one family should register. Parents should appreciate the sitter's willingness to make that extra effort.

We also feel a need to say a few words in defense of Day Care Centers. We resent insinuations that they are merely holding tanks for children of working parents, offering no love, hugs or kisses. This is an incorrect assumption. Day care certainly is not a job one should undertake 40 hours per week (often more) and not have an absolute patience for children. It is a devotion; regardless of whether care is given in one's home or in a larger center.

There is a great demand for quality day care. Can not licensed centers, registered homes and "friend of the family" sitters work together to fill this need?

Rebecca Friend

Director

Jane Carroll Pritts

Assistant Director

Rainbow Cottage

Day Care Center

Dear Mrs. Friend and Mrs. Pritts:

I will concede that I used the term "licensed" incorrectly. Day care homes, indeed, must be "registered" and centers must be "licensed." At any rate, day care homes are subjected to inspection by three governmental agencies, physical examinations for every member of the household are required and, according to my sources, there is a great deal of paperwork involved.

I truly did not use the term to diminish the stringent regulations to which your center must adhere. That was merely the term used by nearly everyone with which I spoke.

Your insinuation that "most" day care homes that are not registered do not claim their earnings may or may not be true. I trust, though, that you can substantiate that as their reason for not registering.

I know that there are babysitters in this area who charge only $15-$20 per week for caring for children of needy families. I also know they do it as a "favor." Whether they are right or wrong, I know they do not want the bother or the intrusion of the registering process.

I totally agree with your "friend of the family" concept and I, too, am hopeful there can be a spirit of cooperation among all competent caregivers.

When something of this nature is brought to the attention of the public, it is my responsibility to give those involved a chance to be heard. Since the focus seemed to be between registered and non-registered day care homes, that is where I sought comments. However, I'm pleased you chose to give your views also. I know you run a fine facility and since I know you both personally, I know your love of children and your commitment to their well-being.

Pam Ashby

News and feature writer

To the Editor:

This letter is to express appreciation to the editor and staff of The Republican and especially to Pam Ashby for last week's article regarding babysitting. Pam, thank you very much.

In addition to thanking you, I wanted to update you and the many others concerned with this issue.

During a conversation with State's Attorney Jim Sherbin, I discovered that Garrett County can be exempted from this law, which requires ALL children to be placed in licensed day care homes. His advice is to take our concerns to the county commissioners.

On licensed day care providers, remember, even babysitting one child can cost you as much as $500 in fines. So, if you're tired of wondering when you're going to be "turned in," don't let this issue go unsolved!

Parents, if you want your right to freedom of choice restored, keep this issue alive and see that it is resolved!

I now have a licensed babysitter and I have faith in her abilities, but I was forced into this decision and I remain angered and refuse to let this issue die.

Licensed day care, if you feel this law has nothing to do with the quality of care you give the children you keep, and you're tired of the actually unnecessary paperwork and inspections — complain! Let the commissioner hear your voice.

Keep the letters and calls going to the senator, delegate, social services and state's attorney, also I am willing to assist others with suggestions to approaching and resolving this issue.

To the Editor:

On the front page of last week's paper there was an article entitled "State Foresters to Hold Session On Gypsy Moth." I compliment your wisdom in making this a front page item.

The article states "... the forest lands of western Maryland are particularly vulnerable and are now heavily infested." I couldn't agree more. Go almost anywhere in the county — Sky Valley, Marsh Hill Road, Slide Hollow, to name a few — and at night you can stand outside and hear them busily chomping away on the greenery. The ground is covered with their excretion — fine little black dots that are everywhere. I am asking the question — What good does it do now to hold a "session on the gypsy moth" when they are presently devastating the lake area?

I had understood from an article in the POA Bulletin that "lake areas were sprayed." WRONG. Delete the plural. I researched this problem last week, before I read the article in the paper. Briefly: "I called DNR, got a number of State Agricultural Department in Cumberland.

Fad Diets
by Karl E. Schwalm, M.D.,
F.A.A.F.P.

Family Health Update

It seems that not a season goes by without at least one diet book high on the best-seller list. Some diets advocated by these books are simply variations of a basic, safe 1,000-1,200 calorie balanced diet. But others may be downright dangerous, as they emphasize one food or food group and the elimination of others. In other words, they advocate diets that are unbalanced.

Some of these diets fraudulently claim that certain foods have the ability to "burn fat." No food can do that. Body fat is "burned" or gotten rid of only by using more energy than is supplied by the food you eat. For example, in the 1970's diets high in protein and very low in carbohydrates were promoted as a panacea for the overweight, with promises that they would "burn fat" more quickly than a regular balanced diet. This is the type of diet that provides a quick and substantial — but only temporary — weight loss because fatty acids are incompletely broken down. The technical name for this process is ketosis and it can lead to an acid and alkaline imbalance.

Ketone bodies, formed when fat deposits are broken down for energy more quickly than the body can use them, must be excreted in urine. The dieter thus loses water — and weight — in the process. But the weight loss is not body fat and is quickly regained when normal eating is resumed.

Another reason for quick weight loss with these detrogenic diets is that the body is getting energy from muscles and major organs (known technically as "lean body mass") rather than fat. Balanced diets contain enough carbohydrates to provide glucose (a form of sugar) the body's basic energy source. But when carbohydrates are lacking, the body must obtain glucose from other sources, such as the protein in lean body mass. At such times, the body may draw upon the muscles and major organs such as the heart for the needed glucose. While the body must expend 3,500 calories to "burn off" a pound of body fat, only about 480 calories are needed to get rid of a pound of lean body mass.

One extreme form of this type of diet — a liquid diet containing less than 400 calories a day — was linked to 17 deaths in 1977 and 1978. Scientists who studied the deaths found that the dieters had died of irregular heart rhythms and cardiac arrest.

The Food and Drug Administration now requires warning labels on weight-reduction products when more than 50 percent of the product's calories come from protein.

Other very low calorie liquid and powdered products have appeared on the market recently with a lower proportion of protein. But consumers should be aware that any diet of fewer than 800 calories a day is potentially dangerous and should be undertaken only under medical supervision.

Our Turn

So That's What You Think?
by Susan Alvarez

Ah! School's out! It's summer! If you have kids, that means it's time to start dealing with those little twists of fate that arrive this time of year.

Just when you think you won't have to listen to that wailing refrain, "How many more days 'till school's out?," you start hearing another lilting tune that goes, "I'm bored."

Just when you think you'd like a nice, cool drink of lemonade, you look out the window to see the last remaining drop being sold in your best glassware to a complete stranger for 15 cents.

Just when you think, "Now that school's out, I won't have to run around so much," the schedules for day camp, Little League, swim team and Vacation Bible School all arrive in the mail.

Just when you think you'll jump in the car and take the kids for a relaxing day at the beach, you realize that you have to pack towels, sand toys, sunscreen lotion, snacks, a thermos of ice water, a beach chair, inner tubes, etc.

Just when you think you've been on that diet long enough, you try and try and try on last year's swimsuit for the first (and perhaps last) time.

Just when you think you've packed plenty of food for the picnic, you discover that the kids used all of the sandwiches while making trails for Hansel and Gretel.

Just when you think you're really getting into the swing of summer, you pass a store window full of back-to-school clothes.

Those involved for being such good sports.

Sincerely,
The players,
coach, manager, and parents of

To the Editor:

No one wants criminals to use handguns, but the proposed Federal "waiting period" law will not keep them from getting one. Criminals pay no more attention to gun laws than they do to the laws against robbery and murder.

A 1985 Justice Department study by a former advocate of more gun laws (Professor James Wright of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst) showed that 93 percent of criminals get guns by theft, black market or somewhere other than from a licensed dealer.

Waiting period laws and criminal record checks by police can only be enforced when the proposed purchase is from a licensed dealer. Such laws are like putting up roadblocks on Interstate Highways, slowing legitimate traffic, while crooks are free to go their way on the back roads.

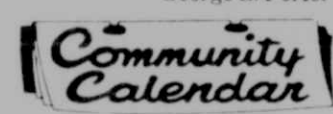

Such laws will not work as a "cooling off" period because 80 percent of buyers already own another gun, and half own another handgun.

Most, or 73 percent, of handgun-using criminals told Justice Department researchers that if they could not get a handgun, they would use a sawed-off shotgun which is much more deadly than any handgun.

We should be thankful that handgun laws do not work, because if they did, criminals would kill or wound far more people, not fewer.

Sincerely yours,
George L. Porter

DRIVER ESCAPES SERIOUS INJURY — The driver of this 1979 Oldsmobile escaped serious injury Tuesday morning after colliding with a late model tractor-trailer. According to State Police reports, Robert B. Sherman, 61, Youngstown, Ohio, at 10:20 a.m., was traveling southbound on Rt. 219, just south of Mayhew Inn Road when he traveled into the northbound lane. The driver of the tractor-trailer, John A. Tourelotte, 40, Augusta, Maine, was traveling northbound behind another tractor-trailer which was obstructing his view of the Sherman vehicle. The first tractor-trailer was able to swerve and avoid being struck by Sherman but Tourelotte was not able to move from Sherman's path in time. His vehicle was struck in the right front, just below a fuel tank. Southern Rescue Squad worked to release Sherman, who was trapped in his vehicle. He was then taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital where he was treated for injuries and released. Investigating officer, Tpr. R.T. Wilson, Maryland State Police, charged Sherman with driving while intoxicated, driving without required licensing and authorization and failure to drive on the right side of the roadway. Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

State Planner. Co. Commission Discuss Goals

The Garrett County Planning Commission held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday when members met with Thomas Beyard, member of the State Planning Commission, in "an effort to strengthen communications between state and local planning agencies," according to Peggy Jamison, Planner II.

According to Governor William Donald Schaefer, the real strength of the system lies at the local level, and he noted that an effort must be made for more outreach from the State Planning Commission to the local offices.

Jamison stated that the goals of the effort are for the state office to establish a dialogue with the local offices, to hear their concerns, make recommendations and, if necessary, to legislate those recommendations.

A discussion of current and future planning issues, such as liability insurance and county-wide zoning, took place at the meeting, with county officials briefing Beyard on the background, concerns and problems of those issues.

Also at the meeting, the state's proposed program for the administration of funds for the Community Development Block Grant Program (CDBG).

Although the overall funding and objectives of the program will remain the same, the process of filing for grants will be slightly different, according to Jamison.

The state will now be administering funds, instead of Housing and Urban Development (a federal agency) in Baltimore. Jamison also stated that the state, this year, has set aside funds for community and economic development projects — something that hadn't been done in the past.

A public hearing will be conducted jointly by the Planning Commission and the Garrett County Commissioners to review a petition by Allen B. Lemley for the re-zoning of Innsbrook Village along Rt. 219.

Lemley's original request was for 42 acres of his property to be included in town center, which is designated to permit a greater density (more units per acre) and more commercial zoning than other zoning districts.

The commission has recommended that 20 of the original 42 acres be re-zoned.

The meeting will be held July 13 at 7 p.m. at the Garrett Community College auditorium.

Bloodmobile To Visit Terra Alta

A Bloodmobile visit will be sponsored by the Terra Alta Civic Club and the Johnstown Regional Red Cross Blood Center on Thursday, June 18, at East Preston Commons Areas.

Anyone in good health between the ages of 18 (17 with parental consent) and 69 (or 70 with written permission from their physician) and weighing at least 110 pounds may donate blood. Previous donors must wait a period of 56 days between donations.

The entire process takes less than an hour and includes registration, temperature, pulse and hemoglobin check, medical history and blood pressure, the actual donation of blood (which takes on the average of 15 minutes) followed by receiving refreshments at the canteen.

All Preston County residents are covered by Red Cross blood products, no matter where they may be, if the need arises. Preston County is on the county plan rather than the family plan, but all needs would be met if one member from each family would donate one unit of blood. All blood received is distributed to the 54 hospitals in this region.

Collection will begin at 2 p.m. and conclude at 7 p.m. The Civic Club urges all to participate.

Virginia Coffendaffer, 789-6943, is chairing the project for the Civic Club. Other contacts may be made with Nancy Rice, 789-6678, or Marilyn Metheny, 789-6006.

State Motorists Use More Fuel During March

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says motorists used 199,035,176 gallons of motor fuel in Maryland during March 1987, an unusually large amount for the month that marks the end of winter.

"The nearly 3% increase in motor fuel use shows the effect of the relatively mild weather in Maryland as winter drew to a close," Goldstein said. "Motorists apparently took to the highways and byways a little earlier this year than in most other years, generating the increased fuel use."

Increased consumption pumped additional motor fuel tax dollars into the state's treasury, with collections during April, 1987, amounting to $28.4 million, up 2.7% from the $27.6 million collected during the same month a year ago. April tax collections are based on sales made during March.

For the first ten months of fiscal year 1987, motor fuel tax collections amount to $276 million, an increase of 3.6% over the $266 million received during the identical period of the previous fiscal year.

Governor Salutes Students During Flag Week Event

Twenty-four outstanding teenagers, representing every Maryland county and Baltimore City, were honored by Governor William Donald Schaefer at ceremonies to kick off National Flag Week on Monday in the House of Delegates chamber of the State House, Annapolis.

One of the students will be selected by the Maryland Association of Student Councils to represent the State of Maryland in National Flag Week ceremonies, which will be held June 10-15 in Baltimore.

"Our nation's past is symbolized by the American flag, and our future by these fine young people who represent the counties and Baltimore City in Maryland's National Flag Week ceremonies," said Governor Schaefer.

"Maintaining freedom and democracy in today's world is not an easy job. I am confident that these students, who are tomorrow's leaders, appreciate their nation's proud heritage and will make every effort to continue and strengthen the principles on which this nation was founded," he added.

Representing Garrett County was H. Stanley Lambert Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lambert, Oakland, and a student at Southern High School.

The students were chosen to represent their jurisdictions by the local school superintendents. They were selected on the basis of academic standing, participation in school activities, and involvement in community service.

The ceremony to kick off Maryland's National Flag Week was filled with military pageantry, and was moderated by former Baltimore Orioles star third baseman Brooks Robinson. Each student entered the House of Delegates chamber, accompanied by an escort who has made a significant difference in their lives. Robinson then presented each student representative with a replica of the "Star Spangled Banner" that flew over Fort McHenry during the War of 1812. The students returned the flags to their home jurisdictions for local National Flag week ceremonies.

Accompanying Stanley Lambert was James Zimmerman, math teacher at Southern High School.

Other dignitaries in attendance at the kickoff ceremony were: Thomas V. "Mike" Miller, president of the Senate; R. Clayton Mitchell, speaker of the house; Lucille Maurer, State treasurer; General James F. Fretterick, adjutant general, Maryland National Guard; O. James Lighthizer, Anne Arundel County executive; Dennis Callahan, mayor of Annapolis; Louis V. Koerber, president, National Flag Day Foundation, Inc.; and Richard M. Patterson, chairman, National Flag Day Committee.

Following the State House ceremonies, those in attendance were invited to Government House for a light lunch.

The Garrett County Extension 4-H Program is serving as the sponsor's contact for the scholarship.

Oakland Sweeps Elkins To Remain Undeclared In Pen Mar Standings

Oakland upped its season record to 4-0 in Pen Mar League action Sunday afternoon by taking a pair of games from Elkins on the West Virginians' diamond. It took the Oaks nine innings to win the first game, 10-8, and they won the second contest which was shortened because of darkness, 10-6.

Former Northern High School standout Phil Carr led Oakland's 25-hit attack in the two games as he went eight-for-nine and knocked in eight runs.

The score was tied at 6-6 after seven innings of play in the first game. Oakland took an 8-6 lead in the top of the eighth, but Elkins came right back with two runs of their own to knot the score again.

Then in the top of the ninth, Randy Cirillo and Terry Helbig led off with walks, followed by a single by Phil Caruso which loaded the bases. Garrett Community College coach, Lawrence Nesselrodt, then walked to force home a winning run and former Southern High star Jon Renelacis sent Helbig home with a squeeze bunt.

Steve Zumpano, another former Northern player, smacked an RBI triple in the first game and Caruso finished with two singles. Carr recorded four singles in each game.

Oakland jumped out to a 4-0 advantage in the first inning of the nightcap and never trailed in the six-inning match-up. Besides Carr's four singles, Cirillo recorded five RBIs on a three-run sacrifice fly and a two-run double.

Steve Mohr, former GCC player, was the winning pitcher in the first contest. Keith Cain started the game and was relieved in the sixth inning by Southern's Bo Butler, however Butler was relieved in the same inning by Mohr.

Mohr then started the second contest and was relieved by Mark Rodeheaver in the third. Rodeheaver was credited with the win.

Elkins, which dropped to 1-3, was led by Brian Wagner, another former GCC player, who finished with two singles and two RBIs in each game.

In other Pen Mar League action, Tri-Towns also improved their record to 4-0 with two wins over Mount Savage. Cumberland evened its record at 2-2 with a pair of wins over Hyndman (0-4), and Buckhannon and Moorefield (both 2-2) split a doubleheader.

Oakland will host Moorefield this Sunday, June 14, for a 2 p.m. doubleheader. Buckhannon will be at Tri-Towns, Cumberland will host Elkins, and Hyndman will play at Mt. Savage.

Grantsville Still Undeclared In Bi-State Action

A two-run double in the top of the sixth inning by Tony Bittinger knocked in the winning run and kept Grantsville undefeated in Bi-State Pony League action Monday at Midland. The local team nipped Midland, 5-4, to up their season record to 5-0. It was the fourth defeat in five starts for Midland.

Northern High School's Todd Wagner relieved Bittinger on the mound in the first inning after Midland took a 3-1 lead. Wagner then recorded the win by yielding only one more run and striking out seven batters.

Grantsville was out-hit in the contest, 5-4, but capitalized on a pair of Midland errors. Pat Dick, the losing pitcher, paced Midland's hitting with a double and a single.

Cost Of Hazardous Material Spills Is Topic Of Meeting

Legislation to permit the recovery of costs associated with the clean-up of hazardous material spills were discussed at a meeting last week in Annapolis by State Senator John N. Bambacus, State Fire Marshal Rocco Gabriele, and legislative staff. Bambacus, who co-sponsored the proposal along with Senator Walter M. Baker, chairman of the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee, will seek to resolve issues that have prevented passage of the bill for the past two legislative sessions.

"Senator Baker and I had put together a strong bill that passed the Senate with overwhelming support," Bambacus commented. "Unfortunately, the bill was killed in the House Judiciary Committee after intense lobbying by the chemical industry."

The District 1 senator indicated his intention to pre-file the bill within the next several weeks for consideration in 1988. The earlier bill was supported by the State Firemen's Association and the Allegany/Garrett Firemen's Association, and received broad public support as well.

"It seems patently obvious that the cost of cleaning up hazardous material spills should be borne by those responsible for the incident," the senator stated. "The financial resources available to the volunteers who risk their lives are limited. Bake sales and dances can only go so far. When fault is attributable to a motor carrier, that party should pay the bills," he concluded.

Chairman Baker's legislative staff has agreed to continue to work to move the proposal through the House of Delegates.

Bambacus held an additional meeting with Gabriele on Saturday, and follow-up meetings are being planned with representatives of state and local fire companies, the trucking industry, Farm Bureau, and the chemical industry for their input and discussion of the issue.

Arts Festival

The committee planning the program consists of Dorothy Leighton, Diane Thayer, Joan B. Crawford, George McDowell and Ben Sincell. The reception and decorations have been planned by a committee of Ann Englander, Connie Margison, Linda Kitzmiller, Susan Schultz, Martha Jachowski, Aloise O'Neill, and Joan Crawford. Community-wide involvement in the program is evidenced in the number of persons and local organizations who will be providing food for the reception, quilts, crafts, and plants for display.

Local businesses contributing various items for the benefit include Jan's Florists, the Oakland Country Club, Grandmother's House, Westvaco, and Central Coca-Cola Bottling Company.

Tickets for the Garrett Greats benefit are $10 each (tax-deductible) and are available from committee members, as well as Marvin's Men's Wear, Oakland, 334-9211.

"We hope people do not think of the $10 as an admission fee, but rather a donation to the Arts Festival," said a committee member, comparing the event to the Golden Ambassador Reception held each year for the Autumn Glory Festival. "And," he added, "we guarantee that those in attendance will be thoroughly entertained!"

Washington's Journey To Philadelphia — Part II

At Harve de Grace, where he lodged because he couldn't cross the Susquehanna River, Washington may well have stayed at the home of Colonel John Rodgers, who had been an officer in the American Revolution and owned Rodgers Tavern, which was across the Susquehanna River at Perryville, in Cecil County. He later recorded in his diary that he did stay at Colonel Rodgers' home in Harve de Grace on his return from Philadelphia to Mount Vernon after the Convention had ended the following September.

Saturday, May 12 — With difficulty (on acct. of the Wind), crossed the Susquehanna. Breakfasted at the Ferry house on the East side. Dined at the head of Elk (Hollingsworth's Tavern) and lodged at Wilmington at O'Flins. At the head of Elk I was overtaken by Mr. Francis Corbin who took a seat in my Carriage.

The "Ferry house" mentioned by Washington is the Rodgers Tavern at Perryville, Maryland, identified under the previous diary entry.

Head of Elk is now Elkton in Cecil County, Maryland. Hollingsworth's Tavern where Washington dined that day was owned by Jacob Hollingsworth. The Hollingsworths were a very prominent family in Cecil County for generations. A picture of the Hollingsworth Tavern is identified in a Cecil County directory as Washington's headquarters on August 25th, 1777, during the Revolutionary War.

O'Flin's in Wilmington, Delaware where Washington lodged that night was known at the time as "The Sign of the Ship." Its

ASTRONAUTS GROW TALLER

One of the findings from the 84-day Skylab mission was that the astronauts grew taller—as much as two inches. Physicians concluded that without the pull of gravity to push down on the skeleton, the spaceman's body simply loosens up, with the distance between each disc in the spinal column expanding slightly.

Gravity is a magnetic force that holds man and all of his worldly possessions on the earth. Its effect is felt and seen in the shapes, forms and abilities of all living things on earth. It is friend and foe alike, for gravity helps us with some jobs and hinders us in others.

Think how gravity affects the human body in its various stages. As an infant, man must learn to overcome this force in order to stand upright and move about freely. As the body grows into adolescence and finally into adulthood, the amount of success developed in adapting to the force of gravity governs his functional ability. This is why some individuals are particularly agile, others somewhat clumsy or accident prone.

Gravity's effect can even be seen in the human profile; the toddler with his prominent abdomen and sway back, the young adult with his well proportioned chest and flat abdomen, the middle-aged person with his flat chest and prominent lower abdomen. Then notice the elderly, with his sway back and pendulous lower abdomen. The cycle goes full around.

The force of gravity is acting on your body at all times. The placement of structural components due to the force of gravity governs your functional ability and health. That is why doctors of chiropractic recommend periodic spinal examinations to make sure that your body structure does not deviate from the normal.

If you suffer from back pain, it would be wise to consult a doctor of chiropractic. He has made a special study of conditions related to the spine and nervous system. He seeks to not only locate the problem and give relief from symptoms, but also to correct the fundamental cause, as well as offer preventive, rehabilitative and maintenance counsel.

proprietor when Washington stayed there was a John Marshall, but O'Flin, who was evidently an employee of Marshall had been a Captain of a company of soldiers during the Revolution and changed the name of the tavern to the "Happy Retreat" when he became its proprietor in 1789. He was an extremely popular man in Wilmington at that time.

Francis Corbin, a former Virginia legislator, was also traveling to Philadelphia. At the time he rode with Washington in his carriage, he was not a delegate to the convention, but later accepted an appointment to fill a vacancy which occurred in the Virginia delegation while he was in Philadelphia.

Sunday, May 13th — About 8 o'clock Mr. Corbin and myself set out, and dined at Chester (Mrs. Withy's) where I was met by the Genls. Mifflin (now Speaker of the Pennsylvania Assembly), Knox and Varnum the Colonels Humphreys and Minges and Majors Jackson and Nicholas — With whom I proceeded to Philada. At Grays Ferry the City light horse commanded by Colo Miles met me and escorted me in by the Artillery Officers who stood arranged & Saluted me as I passed. Alighted through a crowd at Mrs. Houses — but being again warmly and kindly pressed by Mr. and Mrs. Rob Morris to lodge with them I did so and had my baggage moved thither. Waited on the President, Doctr. Franklin as soon as I got to town. On my arrival the bells were chimed.

Mary Withy's Inn was located on Market and Fifth Streets in Chester, Pa. It was celebrated for its excellent food.

General Thomas Mifflin had been Washington's aide-de-camp during the Revolution. He was a member of the Pennsylvania delegation at the convention.

General James Mitchell Varnum of Rhode Island had been a Brigadier General in the Revolution and served with Washington at Valley Forge.

Major Thomas Jackson served as Secretary to the Constitutional Convention and later as personal secretary to George Washington during his first term as President.

Colonel Francis Mentges was also with Washington at Valley Forge and was at this time General of the Pennsylvania Militia.

Mrs. House's boarding house at Fifth and Market Streets in Philadelphia was just a few doors down Market Street from the Morris house.

Robert Morris, Washington's host, was the great financier of the American Revolution.

GCC Sponsors Career Day For High Schools

Career Day for juniors and seniors in local high schools were guests recently at the annual Career Day held at Garrett Community College.

For the past several years, representatives of the Garrett County Public School System and Garrett Community College have jointly planned the Garrett County Career Day. The Career Day planning committee consisted of Anna Bishop, Southern High School counselor, who served as chairperson, counselors Les McDaniel and Ron Kuhn from Southern High School, counselors James Thomas and the late Jack Lear, Northern High School, John Ledden, JoAnn Vent and Albert Covello from the Garrett County Board of Education, Tom Gearhart, Mettiki Coal Corporation, Manning Smith and Darlene Tressler, Garrett Community College.

The event furnished approximately 400 juniors and seniors the opportunity to choose three career informational seminars from the nearly twenty that were offered. Seminars were structured to allow individual questions and answers also.

Some Seminars provided handouts for the student's future reference.

In addition to the twenty individual seminars, business and industries set up displays related to their perspective areas in the GCC gymnasium.

Certificate, two-year and four-year institutions also set up displays in the gymnasium. College, trade and technical schools brought a wealth of educational advancement information from the states of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland, according to a GCC spokesman.

The opening address included a welcome by Dr. Stephen J. Herman, president, Garrett Community College. Introduction of guests, including Senator John Bambacus and Delegate George Edwards was made by Manning Smith, director of Student Services, Garrett Community College. Other announcements made by Smith were the names of the sophomore ambassadors, Serena Rowe and Darrin Wilburn from Northern High School; and Steve O'Brien and Courtney Smith from Southern High School. The Ambassadors provided directions for students and representatives, assisted with registration and other duties. Smith also honored Ms. Anna Bishop. This is Ms. Bishop's last year with the public school system, as she will be retiring.

Lunch was provided to the various representatives compliments of the Garrett County Board of Education.

A report on the status of the proposed moratorium on boating on the river will also be discussed, and, time permitting, a discussion of emergency white water rafting regulations will take place.

The meeting will be held tonight in Room 010 of Garrett Community College at 7:30.

Vocational Education Builds A Viable Career Choice

by Bernice Kepple

Southern High School's Vocational Education Program has a big plus — a real bonus — for students enrolled in any of the vocational classes offered — optional membership in the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA).

VICA attempts to unite all students enrolled in trade and industrial education in order to develop leadership abilities through participation in educational, vocational, civic, recreational, and social activities. VICA's goals are to foster a deep respect for the "dignity of work," to help students attain a purposeful life by developing high standards in trade ethics, workmanship, scholarship and safety; to foster a wholesome understanding of the functions of labor and management organizations and recognition of their dependence on each other; and to create among students, faculty members, and persons in business and labor a sincere interest in, and esteem for, trade, industrial and technical education.

Interviews with a number of VICA members at Southern High School (many of them graduating seniors) proved that, through VICA, students do develop solid "down-to-earth" ideas about furthering their education and achieving career goals.

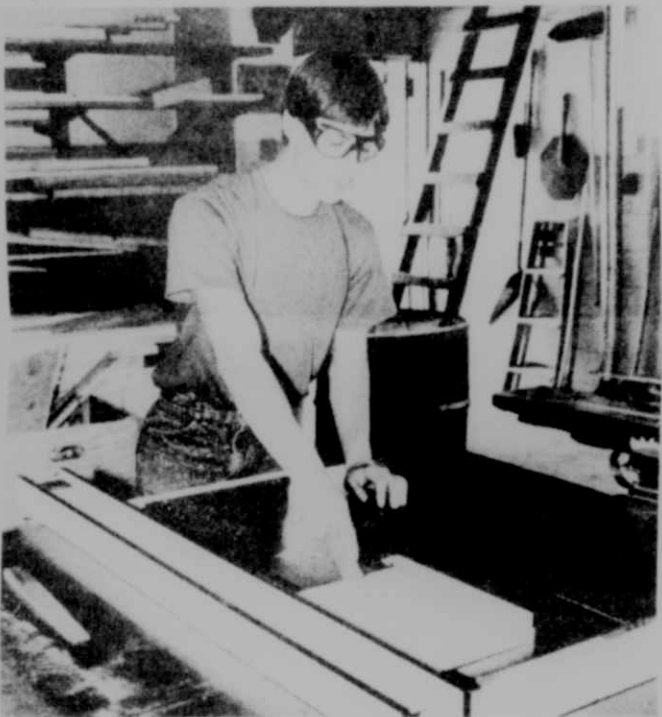

The VICA program at Southern High School enjoyed a good year under advisors Jim Koon, building trades instructor, and Steve Cosner, electronics instructor. Interest and involvement in VICA has been increasing steadily the last few years, with a membership this year of 80 students. "The membership, at the very least, tripled this year," Cosner said, and added that he expects it to continue to climb in the future. "We're losing a lot of seniors this year, but we have some good kids coming on to take the place of those graduating seniors."

One highlight of VICA is the state skills olympics held at the end of each school year — at the conclusion of a year of hard work. A number of Southern High School VICA members competed in the Maryland State Skills Olympics this year at Eastern Baltimore Vocational Technical High School, with two members returning home with first-place honors. The two first-place winners, Warren Livengood and Loren Bowser, will enter national competition later this month in Wichita, Kansas, and are able to travel to Wichita because of the backing and support of the whole VICA membership who carried out several projects to earn money for their trip.

Five other VICA members were recognized for earning second and third place honors in the state contest. Douglas Tasker, Mike Madigan, Paul Browning, Jim Liller, and John McCartney all came home winners, too. This group, and many of the other members who took part in the state contest, recently took time to offer their opinions and impressions of the vocational program, the state contest, and their plans for the future.

State Winners

Loren Bowser

Loren Bowser, who graduated this year from SHS, competed and won first place in the state contest three years in a row. Loren's challenge was to build, from a plan, a miniature base cabinet with a door (pictured below). Loren was asked how he prepared for this type of contest and what he felt was responsible for his rate of success.

"I practice using different blueprints," Loren said, explaining that he never sees a blueprint, which is to be used, before a contest. He added, "Mr. Koon is a better teacher than many of the other schools have. That gives us an edge."

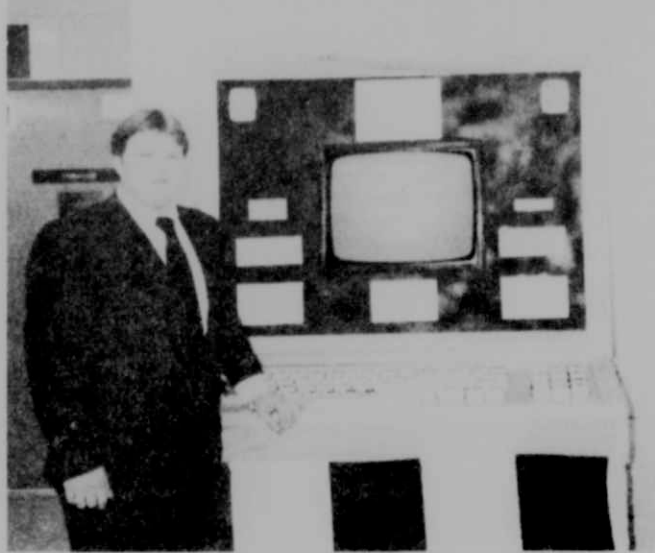

He feels that he has a good chance at the nationals although it is a very difficult contest, and says that he felt he did a better job at the state contest this year than the first two years he competed. Whatever the results of the national contest might be, it's been excellent job-related experience that will look good on his resume in the future.

Warren Livengood won first place in the Display Category "with a little help from his friends." Working around the theme, "America's New Professionals: A Difference That Works," Warren's display, using two different types of operational amplifiers, showed how new professionals open up new ideas to technology every day.

In the written explanation of his computer display, Warren says, "Some of these new professionals create new jobs in the electronics field. One of the new ideas of the new professional is the operational amplifier, also called 'op amp,' in the integrated circuit form. This new device is widely used in many kinds of devices. The integrated circuit form works the same as the transistor circuit. The difference is that these new 'op amps' that work the same, have created new technology in the world today. With this new technology, jobs have opened up in new areas for new professionals."

Warren explained that the integrated circuit op amps can be used in devices such as computers, radios, televisions, VCRs, or anything that needs a signal amplified. And, he feels it may open up new areas of development in the fields of computers, robots, satellites, planes, automobiles and missiles.

Helping Warren win his second state contest in as many years were fellow students in his electronics class, Steve Few, Paul Browning, and Mike Fry; and friends from the building trades class, Steve O'Brien, Jim Liller, and Jason Snyder.

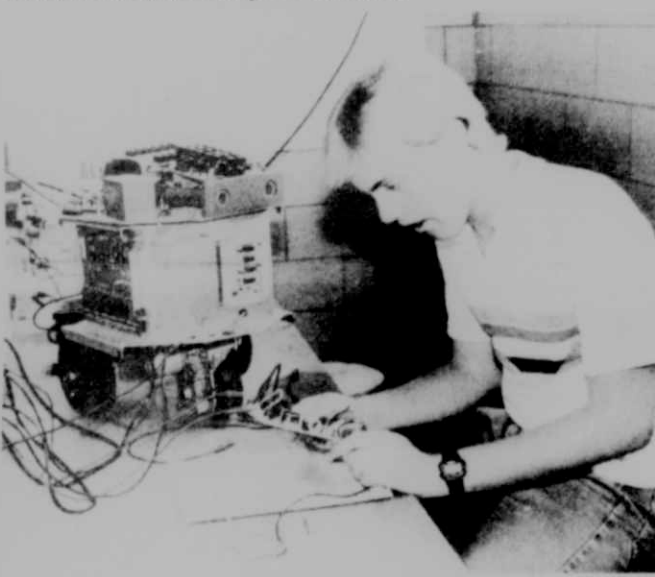

Electronics

Speaking about the electronics division of vocational education were seniors Gary Cooper Jr., Paul Browning, Steve Few, Warren Livengood, and sophomores Mike Madigan and Kenny Giotfelly. The consensus of the group was that electronics is a real challenge that demands a good knowledge of math and algebra. All six of the students competed at the state skills olympics, and all have college plans in the future.

They explained that a number of duties are delegated to the students in the electronics class to keep the shop running smoothly and safely. These duties are to be treated as a job the student may sometime acquire in industry. A foreman is appointed to help the instructor keep the electronics shop working smoothly and efficiently. The foreman is to make sure all other job holders are doing their assigned jobs and take over for them if they are absent.

Safety is stressed to the utmost in all vocational education classes. In electronics, a safety inspector is appointed to make sure safety is followed by all in the shop. This includes reminding students if safety rules are not being followed. The inspector keeps a log of all safety violations made, with the name of the student making the violation. This log is turned into the instructor weekly for examination. The safety inspector also makes weekly equipment safety checks with all safety hazards recorded in the log and reported to the foreman and the instructor immediately. Safety Inspector Gary Cooper said he is also required to write up accident reports, however, there were very few accidents this year — maybe two — and they were small things.

The class also has a housekeeper to make sure the electronics room is always kept neat and clean, and a tool clerk to hand out tools and make sure they are returned.

Gary Cooper, Jr.

Foods

Seniors Leslie Moon and Sue Beeman, and sophomore Melissa Livingood explained the foods program in the vocational department of Southern High School. According to the girls, the foods program is operated like a restaurant, serving faculty members and students in foods service.

Many of the duties are delegated by classes — seniors serve, juniors clean up. The underclassmen also prepare the food (salads and so on) for the seniors to serve. They also set tables. Seniors take orders from menus and serve the food.

In the winter months, full meals are prepared. A typical menu might include lasagna, garlic bread, tossed salad and a beverage. For the first couple months of training in the fall, the classes serve soup and sandwiches, and in the spring a salad bar is prepared.

Their studies also include class instruction in restaurant management, among other subjects. Both seniors have definite "after high school" plans. Leslie intends to study to be a dietitian, and Sue, who is employed at Short Stop, intends to go into food service.

Allied Health

Becky DeWitt

Allied Health is a senior program, giving the students an opportunity to work in some branch of the hospital and hospital services. Becky DeWitt, above right, displays the technique she used at the state contest, where she demonstrated how to take vital signs.

Becky is certified in CPR and first aid, and is also on the Southern Rescue Squad. She plans to become a registered nurse. "I always wanted to be a nurse," Becky said, adding, "This class helped me to be sure." She feels that it's a great program, but that it could be improved by giving the seniors more time at the hospital and being offered to juniors, too.

Residential Wiring

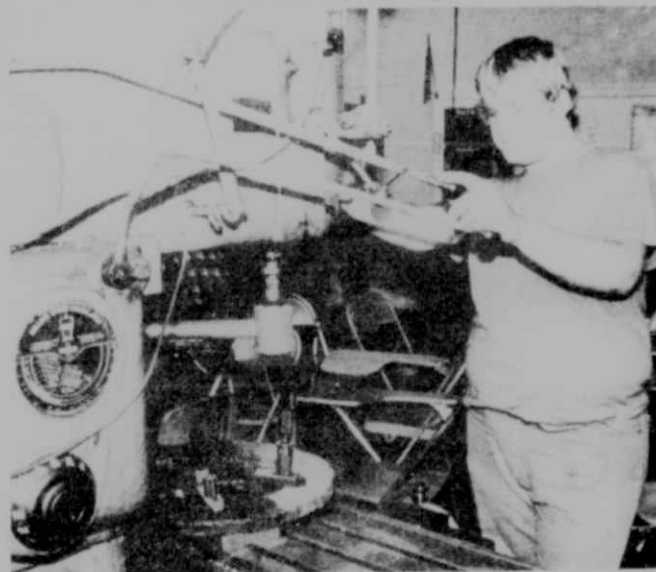

Jim Liller

Jim Liller has won third place in the residential wiring competition at the state skills olympics two years in a row. The contest had two phases: conduit bending and the actual wiring. The conduit (a light-weight metal pipe that protects the wiring) must be shaped into a 45-degree bend, a 90-degree bend, and a saddle bend.

The wiring is done on a 2X4 frame-up of a room, as in any residential dwelling. Safety, again, has been stressed, along with practicality.

Jim has plans to continue the trade he learned in vocational education, and has applied for entrance into the Electrical Engineers' Apprentice Program.

Precision Machining

Charlie Friend

"It's a good program," stated Charlie Friend about his class in precision machining. Charlie, who is a senior, also competed in the state contest. His description of the three-hour contest was as detailed and complicated as the contest itself must have been. "I was told to bring so many tools with me," he said, but added that many of them were not needed. The contest included one-half hour to convert a layout from the blueprint to the piece of steel. One-half hour was spent milling with a machine that does boring and countersinking.

The rest of the contest was spent doing lathe work — a nine-degree taper, turning down a three-fourths-of-an-inch piece of steel on the lathe, threading and cutting a four-inch taper. "It was a good experience," said Charlie. "I'm glad I could go to state."

Architectural Drafting

Senior Bill Upole said that drafting was an option for him before he took the class. "The class more or less filled in the blanks for me," he said. He feels that the state contest and the whole class has been a good experience for him. At the state contest, Bill, who sees college in his future, had four hours to draw up a plan or blueprint of a technical trade center from a set of instructions.

Machine Drafting

Vincent Sines, a graduating senior, says that machine drafting is the "step between the engineer and the finished product." Vincent says the state contest involved four hours of exacting work. "It was harder than I expected," he said. Vincent has been accepted in the 16-month program at Triangle Tech in Greensburg, Pa. "This has been a good program for me," he stated.

The drafting program at Southern was in danger of being discontinued a year ago. Now, the enrollment is up, with two ninth-grade classes, and the future of the program looks good. "Our program here is better than other high schools that competed at state," the seniors said.

Brick Masonry

Richie Marple

The state masonry contest involved one and one-half hours of fast-moving, exacting work, according to graduating senior Richie Marple. Richie mentioned that the mortar was supplied to the contestants; he was not required to mix his own. The small wall he built included soldiers, a standing brick design, and rowlock for window sills, and was judged for plumb, level, neatness, straight edges, and full and even joints.

Prepared Speech

The theme "America's New Professionals: A Difference That Works" was the topic of Mike Madigan's prepared speech which earned him third place out of 13 competitors at the state skills olympics. Mike said that he used the basis of the VICA creed and how it helps members to become better professionals for the outline of his speech. Mike has had most of his speaking experience in school, and credits Mr. Wes Lovelace's class in middle school for much of that experience.

Job Skill Demonstration

Mike Madigan

Paul Browning

Paul Browning, a graduating senior, demonstrated how to install a modem in a computer, showing different types of modems and explaining what works best with different computers. Paul explained that a modem is a device that lets a computer operator communicate with another computer via telephone lines.

Paul, who placed third out of 15 competitors at state, says he learned a lot from his experience in 4-H. His home computer experience helps him with his school work and with his job at TCI in Oakland. College is ahead for Paul, with a career in either math or computer science education.

VICA Leadership

Sophomore Kenny Giotfelly ran for state parliamentarian this year. He was honored, also, to have been nominated from the floor for the office of state reporter, and although he did not win either election, he plans to try for a state office again next year. Being elected to a state office will mean a lot of traveling. Kenny plans to prepare for a future leadership role by attending seminars during the summer months.

A written test was also taken by Kenny to qualify him for a state office. "Mr. Cosner suggested that I try it this year. I had to study a lot, but did really good on the test," Kenny explains that he feels his school work has prepared him for such a leadership role. He has already been elected president of next year's local VICA organization. "The club needs some work, but it's growing and in a couple of years will be a really good club," the new president said.

VICA Advisors

Advisor Steve Cosner said that this year's group was probably a better group of kids than he has experienced before. "More interest was generated. The students had to compete at the school level before going to state because of the interest this year. More medals were won, and the VICA membership has tripled this year," he said.

The vehicle then overturned.

Police reports did not indicate whether or not Sisler was thrown from the three-wheeler.

Tpr. Paul Brown, Maryland State Police, investigated.

An Oakland woman was treated and released from Garrett Memorial Hospital following injuries received Sunday morning when she was run over by a car she had been operating.

Paula L. Redinger, 41, was returning to her car in the driveway at her residence on High Street, and was partially seated when the 1984 Mercury Marquis began moving backward.

Redinger then fell to the ground and the vehicle ran over her left leg and continued up the driveway. An occupant in the car then pulled the gear shift lever into a forward gear and the car continued through the yard, striking a child's play house and tree. It finally came to rest against a wood pile.

Occupants in the car at the time, Megan R. Redinger, eight, and Bethann Maroney, nine, both of Oakland, were not injured.

Redinger was transported to the hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad.

Vocational Education

Both advisors, Cosner and Koon will travel to the national contest June 23-28 with Livingood and Bowser. "They've got an excellent chance this year. Both are multi-year winners," Cosner said, and added that even if they don't win, they've showed a lot of talent by going out.

"The vocational education program is a 'learn by doing' program, but the students need book learning too," Koon said. "They need that mix to build and to create job skills." Koon said he had been in education for 12 years, and this year's group of seniors has been the best group he's ever been associated with. "Most of the seniors already have jobs lined up and plans for higher education of some sort in the future. We push school after higher school, whether it be college, trade school or an apprenticeship," Koon said.

"We're generating a lot more interest; trying to improve the image of vocational education," Cosner said. "And, we're getting top-notch students. We're telling kids this is a viable career choice, and it's helping a lot."

Building Trades Students Develop Skills From Practical Projects

The building trades classes at Southern High School completed several substantial projects this year. These projects included several small sheds or buildings totally constructed by the students.

Building Trades Instructor Jim Koon explains that the purpose of building the sheds is to give students an opportunity to work on actual projects which help to develop carpentry skills. "The only way to develop many of the skills is to do them, make mistakes and learn how to correct the mistakes," Koon said.

By building the storage sheds the cost of materials that students use can be recovered. The only other way to develop such skills would be through simulated projects which Koon says has two major faults. "The student works hard on something to do it correctly, and then when it is finished, he has to take it apart. Once the project is disassembled, many of the materials can not be used again, which is quite costly," Koon stressed.

"We hope in the future to be able to construct a modular home, but at present this project is only in the planning stages. However, this project would provide students with the ultimate learning opportunity," the teacher said.

The carpentry program has completed many other projects this year which have helped the whole school and also the county. "We rebuilt half the visitors' bleachers on the football field, and completely replaced the deck," Koon reported. He added that the classes also built 15 newly designed bus sheds for the County Transportation Department. Also, several bookshelves were built for Southern class rooms, built a storage shed for the baseball field and currently are working on dugouts for the newly completed girls softball field. "All of these projects are in addition to constructing several other storage buildings of various designs," Koon said.

It was explained that whenever possible, the building design is changed from building to building, as well as the materials used, to truly provide students with the opportunity to develop new skills.

The building pictured was designed to teach a few of the advanced students how to layout, cut, and install valley rafters and to properly flash and shingle the roof.

"In the fall we constructed one (building), which was raffled-off to help the Vocational Industrial Club raise money, which was built with a gable roof, completely insulated, wired, drywalled, paneled inside, and had an Anderson window installed," Koon reported. "As much as possible," he concluded, "our buildings are built with construction techniques commonly used in residential construction."

A FAMILY AFFAIR — When Gene Liller (center), of Oakland, graduated from Southern High School in 1959, he received the Oakland, Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club Award for Industrial Arts, which is given by that organization to an outstanding senior each year. At that time, he never would have guessed that years later, in 1985, his son, Bob (left), would be the recipient of the same award for an outstanding senior. It would have been even more difficult for Liller to predict that in 1987, his other son, Jim, would earn that same award. Over the years the name of the award has changed, now being the Award for Building Trades, however, the honor remains the same. Each member of the family was taught by a different teacher: Gene by Norman Smith, Bob by John Fitzwater, and Jim by Jim Koon. Gene's two sons each participated three years in the VICA state contests. Gene says his job in maintenance at the North Branch Mine of Island Creek Coal reflects his industrial arts training. Bob is a college student, having studied computers at FSC and GCC, while Jim plans to interview for the Union of Electrical Engineers' Apprenticeship Program.

During the 1800's, 12 regularly scheduled passenger trains stopped daily at Oakland.

Governor's Capital Budget Targets Needs Of Elderly

Programs that help people in need were a top legislative priority, according to Governor William Donald Schaefer. A series of administration bond bills passed by the General Assembly to address specific needs of elderly citizens have already been signed into law.

Administration bond bills, which form part of the state's capital budget, are used to fund programs with state-wide impact such as those which provide for the health and welfare of its citizens. Corrections facilities, historic preservation and public school construction funds are familiar examples of such programs.

The Department of State Planning (DSP) reviews the proposed legislation and recommends funding levels after consultation with executive staff and officials of the departments that will administer these programs.

Services provided through these centers include health, social, education and nutritional services. Central location of such services as food stamp distribution, social security benefits and assistance payments, health screening, consumer education and income tax preparation is a cost-effective means of serving this population.

Matching funds can be made available to local government agencies and subgrants to nonprofit organizations to assist in the development of activities centers through the Elderly Citizen Activities Loan Program. The program was created to expand the number and capacity of state facilities for the elderly through conversion, renovation and equipping surplus school or other public buildings. To date, Maryland has committed $8.6 million to fund more than 50 projects around the state which serve as focal points for the delivery of comprehensive services for persons over 60.

A new program created in 1987 approved $1 million to be used as matching grants to counties, municipal corporations and non-profit organizations for the conversion of public buildings or parts of such buildings to adult day care centers not limited to elderly but often serving this population. The fund will allow grants to be used for planning, design and construction purposes to provide "an alternative to the unnecessary commitment of persons to nursing homes, state institutions or other long term care facilities," according to DSP Secretary Constance Lieder.

There are currently nine local jurisdictions in Maryland without adult day care services and many are underserved. Adults of all ages requiring day care use these facilities but the largest group served is over 65 and the fastest growing group served is over 75. These centers provide services to adults with disabling conditions such as Alzheimer's Disease, dementia and stroke.

Other programs designed to benefit older Marylanders are supported by capital appropriations through the general fund. Among these is the Elderly Rental Housing Program (ERHP) which makes deferred payment loans to eligible applicants, in conjunction with other financing, for new construction, conversion or substantial rehabilitation to provide rental housing for limited income elderly persons. Demand for ERHP loans has increased steadily since the program began in 1984. In FY 87, $1.2 million of state funds will help to provide approximately 90 rental units. To provide additional funds for loans, $1 million was included in the FY 88 budget.

Businesses May Now Sue Writers Of Bad Checks

If you intentionally write a bad check in Maryland, you may end up facing a court judgment of up to three times the face amount of the check, under a new Maryland statute effective July 1.

After a five-year effort, the 1987 General Assembly passed legislation permitting business owners to sue individuals who write worthless checks, and recover "double damages" plus the amount of the check and a $25 collection fee.

"Business owners have faced nothing but frustration when trying to recover a bad check," said Jim Goeden, director of governmental relations for the National Federation of Independent Business/Maryland.

"Under the former law, a business owner could only recover the face amount of the check if they were successful in a civil suit. Many times, the person would show up on the courthouse steps the day of the trial with cash to cover the check — after the business owner has spent several hundred dollars to go after a $50 check," he said.

"There really wasn't any incentive for a business owner to go after bogus checks. Consequently, they'd take the loss and then pass it on to consumers through higher prices."

NFIB/MD, with more than 5,500 members, is putting bad-check writers on notice by posting warning signs throughout the state.

The bright red signs read: "Warning: If your check bounces in Maryland, or fails to clear the bank for any reason, you could be liable for two times the amount of the check for up to $1,000, in addition to the face value of the check and a $25 collection fee."

Goeden said the new law isn't intended to go after people who make innocent checkbook errors. A provision in the law protects those honest customers by requiring the business owner to provide 30 days notice, via certified mail, of intent to sue unless payment is made, he said. The suit would be filed in District Small Claims Court.

"This new law targets those persons who walk into a store with the clear intent to defraud a business owner with a worthless check," he said.

"The law not only provides recourse for small-business owners, but hopefully, it will act as a deterrent to bad-check passers," Goeden said.

Maryland becomes the 27th state to enact such a law. In states with similar laws, Goeden said the incidence of bad-check passing has dropped off. "In California, for example, the Assembly of Small Business reported a 15 percent reduction in bad checks, and Colorado's Retail Merchants Association believes the new law there has resulted in a 20 percent drop in bogus checks," Goeden concluded.

Potomac Edison Checking Lines Via Helicopters

The Potomac Edison Company is presently conducting its summer helicopter inspection of the electrical system's transmission lines as part of the utility's ongoing maintenance program.

Helicopter flights are scheduled to take place for the utility's lines in and around Frederick, Hagerstown, Cumberland, Oakland, Romney, Martinsburg and Winchester through next week.

The helicopter crew will survey Potomac Edison's extra-high voltage transmission system, which includes 230 kv and 500 kv lines, to look for equipment that needs repair or replacement. Helicopters are used to scout the system, especially in outlying areas, because they can hover as close as 20 feet above the lines.

Once inspection of the transmission system is completed at the end of June, Potomac Edison will begin surveying sub-transmission lines throughout its service territory, which includes 7,300 square miles in parts of Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

The area of Deep Creek Lake at fullpool is 3,900 acres.

Jobless Rates Take Dramatic Drop In April

Both the labor force and employment levels hit new all-time highs this April as Maryland's labor market continued to show signs of renewed vigor with seasonal springtime expansion increasing the overall pace of hiring activity.

According to the Department of Employment and Training's April unemployment report, the civilian jobless rate dropped to 4.1 percent, down from March's rate of 4.9 percent, bringing the statewide jobless rate to its lowest level for an April since the 3.9 percent recorded in 1973.

Garrett County's jobless rate dropped nearly three points, from 13.0 percent in March to 10.2 percent in April.

The drop in Maryland's jobless estimate was consistent with the national estimate which showed unemployment falling from 6.9 percent in March to 6.2 percent in April.

The statewide labor pool, estimated at 2,419,599, showed an increase since March of 25,349 participants. The success rate of new jobseekers in finding employment was clearly evident as unemployment fell by 16,853 persons while employment expanded by 42,202 to total 2,319,345.

In Garrett County, the March workforce totaled 12,195, for which 1,583 were unemployed.

In April, the workforce dropped to 11,966 with 1,255 unemployed.

Industrial payrolls increased by slightly more than 18,000 jobs through April, with the bulk of the gains in service-oriented industries. Seasonal hiring boosted services' employment by an estimated 6,800 jobs during April. Most of the activity was observed in hotels/lodging places and in business, amusement/recreation, health, and agricultural services. Job gains were also strong in trade, particularly in building materials/garden supplies and eating and drinking establishments. In the goods-producing sector, increased employment in the construction industry, especially among heavy trade contractors, overshadowed reductions in manufacturing payrolls.

The momentum of seasonal hiring also helped to improve regional unemployment. In the Baltimore metropolitan area, the jobless rate fell from 5.4 percent in March to 4.5 percent in April. Increased employment in construction, retail trade's eating/drinking places, and the services industries of hotels/lodging places, business, and agriculture provided the impetus for this decline.

The unemployment rate in Maryland's suburbs of the D.C. metropolitan area edged down from 3.3 percent in March to 3.0 percent in April. Job gains were strongest in the services sector, particularly in business and agriculture services.

In the Shore area, unemployment declined substantially over the month, by 1.9 percentage points, to register 5.8 percent in April. Rates fell by more than 2.0 percentage points in Dorchester, Kent, Somerset and Worcester counties. The largest decline, from 12.3 percent to 6.4 percent occurred in Worcester County as employers began to rebuild their workforces in anticipation of the influx of tourists into Ocean City.

Unemployment in the Western Region, although declining from 9.3 percent in March to 7.4 percent in April, remained somewhat high. Overall job growth was hampered by a decline of 700 jobs in the manufacturing sector.

Locally, unemployment rates subsided in all of Maryland's subdivisions, ranging from a low of 2.3 percent in Howard and Montgomery counties to a high of 11.2 percent in Somerset County.

Bible School Dates Set At Fairview

Fairview Church of the Brethren, Table Rock, will hold Vacation Bible School, June 15-19, from 9 a.m. until 11:30 a.m.

Wildlife Seed Packets Available At Mt. Nebo

Seed packets for wildlife food plot plantings will be available to the public beginning June 15 in each county in Maryland. These packets are being offered free of charge as an incentive to landowners to devote part of their land to wildlife habitat. They will be distributed on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The seed packet program was designed by the Maryland Farm Game Advisory Committee. This committee is composed of a group of individuals appointed to advise the Forest, Park & Wildlife Service on methods of promoting habitat management for quail, rabbits, pheasants and doves on private land.

There are three different packets available: one packet containing buckwheat, one containing wild game food sorghum and one containing a mixture of German and Pearl Millet. Each packet contains enough seed to plant 1/16 of an acre. Packets are limited to two per individual and no more than one kind of packet per individual.

For example, a person could pick up one millet and one buckwheat packet, but not two millet packets. Planting instructions are included in each packet. Each person obtaining seed packets must give his/her name, address and telephone number. Random checks will be made by the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service during the summer to determine if seeds were used as intended.

Packets may be picked up in Garrett County, the Mt. Nebo Work Center, Kings Run Road, just north of Oakland, Mondays and Wednesdays only, 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m.

Did 'DOOL' actress wed one of her co-stars?

By Kimberly Redmond

I was told that Lisa Trusel (Melissa Jannings on "Days of Our Lives") has married in real life, and that her husband is in the soap's cast. Who did she marry? — L.D., Andrews, N.C.

Lisa Trusel

When Trusel turned 18 in December 1986, she married former "DOOL" cast member David Wallace, who played Ted Chandler. He currently plays Tom Hardy on "General Hospital."

My friends tell me that Julianne Moore plays both Frankie Hughes and Sabrina Fullerton on "As the World Turns." I think the roles are played by two different actresses. Who's right? — T.R., Oxford, Maine

Your friends are correct. T.R. Moore portrays both Frankie and Sabrina. She changes hairstyles and mode of dress, and as Sabrina she uses an accent.

Please give me some facts about Robin Mattson, who portrays the evil Gina Capwell on "Santa Barbara." — J.S., Jamestown, N.Y.

Mattson began appearing in TV commercials as a child. After attending Santa Monica College, she devoted herself full time to her career. Mattson has had roles in the TV movies "Are You in the House Alone?" and "Doctors' Private Lives." She has guest-starred on nighttime series such as "Charlie's Angels." Mattson has played such memorable soap-opera villainesses as Heather Webber on "General Hospital" and Delia Ryan on "Ryan's Hope." She also played Hope Bauer on "Guiding Light."

'Houston Knights' star is a devoted family man

Johnny Cash played Frank James. Kris Kristofferson portrayed outlaw Jesse James.

I played a Texan in other roles and I had reservations. Then I delved more into the relationship the two main characters have with each other and finally said, "So what? So what if you spent 20 years losing your accent? You can lose it again!"

Beck says he understands the character he portrays because "he comes from the same part of the country that I came from; he was a college football quarterback and so was I."

Director Brian De Palma remakes 'The Untouchables'

By Frank Lovece

Flash! Mobsters take over Chicago. Flash! Eliot Ness and The Untouchables have been resurrected from the book and the classic TV show to do battle with Al Capone. Flash! Director Brian De Palma, best known for such graphic thrillers as "Dressed to Kill," is directing Ness's movements. Question: Will we ever view "The Untouchables" the same way again?

Brian De Palma

De Palma, frankly, doesn't care. His new film of "The Untouchables" owes nothing to the series, little to the book and, he acknowledges, practically nothing to reality. "It's a story about good and evil, with the thin line between the two getting blurred. It is a lot like real life, because real life doesn't have absolute good and evil in most cases."

One wonders, then, why De Palma and screenwriter

David Mamet bothered to base the story on the real-life Untouchables at all. "You can make movies about anything — that's one thing so wonderful about them," De Palma replies, dodging the lure of marketing benefits. Yet he adds, "I never saw the TV series, but from what I hear, it wasn't very true-to-life."

The movie, which stars Kevin Costner as Ness and Robert De Niro as Capone, does have the mythic quality of a fable. As with most of De Palma's films, this means a bloody, elegant deaths worthy of the Brothers Grimm. Yet harsh as "The Untouchables" can be, the movie is toned down in comparison to "Dressed to Kill" (crimson razor attacks for "The Fury" (an exploding head).

"Most of my movies were suspense films," De Palma says. "You only use violent things at certain dramatic moments — when they're effective you put them in, when they're not effective, you don't. And if you do too many of them, they become less effective." De Palma's critics would argue about his judgment as to "too many," yet his movies undeniably leave an impression.

De Palma, after more than a quarter-century of film making, knows his audiences. Literate and adult "The Untouchables" may be, but "teenagers better go see it," he says. "That's a big chunk of people — if they don't, the movie is in trouble."

Vietnam vets honored in upcoming HBO special

By Connie Passalacqua

It was a serious press conference, reflecting the solemnity of the event it was called to announce HBO's "Welcome Home," a gala tribute to the veterans of the Vietnam War. The star-studded event will be held in RFK Stadium in Washington, D.C. on the afternoon of July 4th and will be shown by tape delay later that evening on HBO.

Ritter played a vet suffering from the effects of Agent Orange in the NBC movie "Unnatural Causes." "I was in college during those years and far removed from it all," said the actor. "Yet when I did 'Unnatural Causes,' I read and researched the material, and it strengthened my awareness of the sacrifices made by the vets. I hope that the 'Welcome Home' Concert will play an important part in the growing national movement to honor those people who gave so much to this country."

Jon Voight, who played a paralyzed vet in "Coming Home," spoke with tears in his eyes. "The money raised in this event will be distributed to 18 Vietnam vet support groups around the country. But I know the horrors done to the (soldiers) over there can never be totally undone. Still, I feel very, very proud to be a part of this event."

The talent lineup for the holiday special includes Neil Diamond, Linda Ronstadt, Crosby, Stills and Nash, John Fogerty, Anita Baker, the Four Tops, James Ingram and Kris Kristofferson. Besides music, the event will incorporate mini-documentaries.

"Welcome Home" is organized by Joey Tailey, chairman of the non-profit organization of the same name. She founded the organization in memory of a close friend who died of war-induced dioxin poisoning.

John Ritter

Although numbers of programming executives attended the press conference in one of HBO's Manhattan studios, most attention seemed to be paid to two actors, neither of whom had served in the Vietnam War. Yet John Ritter and Jon Voight, who had both movingly played veterans in key movies about the crippling effects of the war, spoke most convincingly of their personal dedication to the

Joan Collins relaxes; Whitney Houston bargains

By Cindy Adams

That "Wheel of Fortune" lady is up for the TV-movie lead as cinema's famous sweater girl. It'll be Vanna as Lana. Mason Reese and his mom have created "a concept for a TV variety show." What's original about it? "Absolutely nothing. It's celebrities, acts, music, exactly like the old days, except that nothing like it is on TV these days."

Whitney Houston

whatshisname Joan, in dark glasses and a hat, hit Bloomies and Bendel's. She bought cosmetics and 15 more hats. She showed me pearl-and-diamond earrings. "Fakes," she said. "From Jolie Gabor." Despite her black belt in shopping, Miss Collins is not a pushover.

Whitney Houston, who accounted for more than 50 percent of Arista Records' earnings last year, has knocked off a nice renegotiation contract. The deal is for five albums with an increase in royalties. Plus an extra multi-million-dollar something above and beyond her advance. Whitney also has a key-man clause. If Arista president Clive Davis moves, Whitney moves. The company didn't mind giving her big money, but it did mind giving her the key-man clause. They fought. She won. Like I said, nice.

Joan Collins

Joan Collins' two days in New York were sleepless. "I took the Red Eye," she told me. "Then we stayed up till 3 a.m. dancing." The "we" is "my newest handsome young man. I can't say much about him because I'm still married." Beware Miss Collins was weighted down with 6-inch-wide diamond bracelets ("I bought them myself") and security types. A platoon of huskies checked out restaurants for TV's reigning queen and

COMING ATTRACTIONS

David Naughton's wisecracking role

By Evan Levine

"My Sister Sam" was one of CBS's most successful new shows last season, probably because it aired on the network's successful Monday night lineup. But the show went through a change of title (from "Taking the Town") leading character's name (from Chris to Sam) and an almost completely new writing and producing staff before settling in David Naughton, who plays roving photographer Jack Kinkaid, and who is probably best known for urging people to beat Pepper on the Dr. Pepper commercials, says that the actors' roles were safe after the pilot, but before that, he almost didn't make it onto the show at all.

David Naughton

"I auditioned at the 11th hour," he says. "I went in on Friday, and we started filming on Monday. The producers weren't sure what they were looking for at that point. They had auditioned actors who were older, fatter, taller, you name it. But I went in and tried to be light and funny, and it just worked out."

Naughton's role allows him the chance to wander in and spout a number of the show's punchlines, many having to do with the fact that while Sam (Pam Dawber) photographs print ads of tissue boxes, Jack is often off photographing the Pope playing golf.

"I love playing Jack," Naughton admits. "I envy him. He's this diehard, care-free bachelor, very different from me. (Naughton is married with a baby.) One thing I wish is that the supporting cast would be used more. I have nothing against a guest cast, but sometimes I feel like saying, 'We're here! Use us!'"

I spend a lot of time going to Sam's apartment to borrow salt and pepper shakers. I'm always coming up with great ideas for Jack, but I'm about two for 26 on what I've actually been allowed to use."

Naughton says that after the initial difficulties — the pilot was completely reshot and updated before it was aired at the end of the season — his character started having more to do.

"It's often difficult to come up with new ideas in a situation comedy," he explains. "So I'd love to see more interplay between the characters. My favorite scenes are those when the whole ensemble is on stage together."

"I hope that next season there will be a lot more of those scenes. The writers are always threatening that Jack will go on permanent assignment. I'm afraid that in one show, Sam will hold up a card and say, 'Oh, look, a postcard from Jack. He's in Uganda.' It's certainly something to hold over my head."

To Be Involved...

That's tidal water, and he's sitting "awfully" close to the edge of it. Soon he's going to get his feet wet, and his tackle and other paraphernalia will be drenched!

It's foolishly optimistic to imagine that the tides, or life itself will stand still for you. It's more comfortable to just bask there thinking that fish are going to bite, and that you won't have to move. But it's not realistic!

Nor is this living. We tend to forget that the idea of life is to get into the mainstream, not to cuddle up on the shore. The church today is running with the current. Won't you discover it for yourself?

SELECTING A FUNERAL HOME

There are a number of important advantages to choosing a funeral home in advance of death. To begin with, it will enable you to find the one that best suits your needs. As with most other professions, there is a whole range to choose from. With a little effort on your part, you can surely find a funeral home that will offer the arrangements you want, at what you feel is a fair price.

Having pre-selected a funeral home can be especially helpful if you or a loved one dies away from home. They can help make arrangements with a funeral home where the death took place if the place was another country. This is doubly true. Our country's embassy or consulate abroad MUST have the name of a funeral home in the home city in order to ship the body. Having named one will save the survivors from having to investigate and decide upon a funeral home under pressure of haste and grief.

Harvard researchers tell us that a low-fat diet may NOT offer protection against breast cancer, as previously thought. But avoiding fat is still smart to reduce the risk of heart disease.

New "packaging" for anesthetic drugs, microdroplets that leak out slowly, providing sustained relief for several days. Drug can be injected right into a surgical incision, say researchers at the University of Illinois in Chicago and the University of Miami.

Laboratories are beginning to use a new test for strep throat that takes only 15 minutes, yet is said to be as accurate as the standard 48-hour culture. Advantage: less use of antibiotics for what turns out to be viral infections.

Hemorrhoid removal is far simpler with an infrared probe coagulator recently approved by the FDA. "Ray gun" shoots a painless burst of infrared light which causes blood in hemorrhoidal tissue to clot; the tissue gradually shrinks away.

Birth weight of infants — important to their survival — is affected by the FATHER'S drinking of alcohol during the month before conception as well as the mother's, a Seattle study found.

Congratulations

McDonald's salutes the winners of the 1987 Ray A. Kroc Youth Achievement Award. Through active involvement in their school and community, these local students have demonstrated all-around excellence in the areas of citizenship, leadership, scholarship and extracurricular activities.

McDonald's founder, Ray A. Kroc, lived by the philosophy that "nothing in this world can take the place of persistence." With this philosophy, Kroc built McDonald's into the world's largest restaurant organization. We applaud the winners of the Ray A. Kroc Youth Achievement Award for following this same philosophy and wish them much future success.

Maryland Magazine Wins Two Awards

MARYLAND Magazine, the State's official quarterly, published by the Department of Economic and Community Development, has been honored with two awards by the Regional Publishers Association (RPA) at their annual convention held this year in Madison, Wisconsin.

The Magazine received the "Best Cover" award for the photo of a snow fence winding its way through the dunes on Assateague Island, which appeared on the Summer 1986 issue.

A judge's "Award of Merit" was presented for the photographic tribute in the Autumn 1986 issue to the Pride of Baltimore which sank in May of last year in the Caribbean. Entitled "She was the Pride," the photo essay recounted some of the travels of the floating goodwill ambassador at home and abroad.

Publisher D. Patrick Hornberger accepted the awards on behalf of the Magazine at the RPA's annual meeting hosted by Wisconsin Tales and Trails. While MARYLAND Magazine was the only dual award winner in this year's competition, other magazines recognized included: Ohio, Mississippi, Washington, Arizona Highways, Yankee, Alaska, Vermont, Life, Oklahoma Today and Ireland of the Welcomes.

The RPA was founded in 1960 to encourage the concept of excellence in regional magazines and has sponsored a national awards program for the past seven years.

Reagan Signs New G.I. Bill

At a Rose Garden ceremony last week President Reagan signed legislation making the new G.I. peacetime education bill permanent. Among the witnesses to the signing were the bill's chief proponent and sponsor, Representative Sonny Montgomery (D-MS) and Representative Beverly Byron (D-6th), a longtime and active supporter of the measure.

The signing of the legislation ended a three year test period for the new program that requires active duty recruits to contribute $100 per month for the first year of their service to qualify for $10,800 in educational benefits.

Also included in the benefits package provided by the bill are National Guard and Reserve personnel who can earn $140 a month for up to 36 months for a six-year enlistment or re-enlistment. It is the only time since the first G.I. Bill was signed by President Roosevelt in 1944 that reservists and guard recruits have been eligible.

Representative Byron, who managed the bill to its final passage in the House, said the test period had surpassed all expectations and proven the educational benefits package to be an effective recruiting tool.

"The recruitment levels of all branches of the armed services went up during the test period and the latest figures we have show that 65 percent of all those signing up now are choosing to participate in the program. In 1980 only 54 percent of enlisted personnel had high school diplomas, but today under the G.I. Bill that number is up to 93 percent. I call that an unqualified success," said Byron.

Byron said also that aside from the immediate recruiting advantages the G.I. Bill presents, it will have a long-term impact on the country.

"Many of the soldiers who returned home after World War II and got an education because of the G.I. Bill became the scientists, the engineers, the doctors and teachers of their generation and really led this country into an unprecedented period of growth. I think we can expect much of the same from this G.I. Bill, and the bonus is we continue to attract top quality recruits to our military. I am extremely proud to have played a role in the passage of this very good piece of legislation," said Rep. Byron.

Mower Safety Meeting Topic At Local Parks

Mower Safety was the topic of the Herrington Manor/Swallow Falls State Park and Potomac-Garrett State Forest safety meeting for May. Dennis Shaffer and Foster Lewis, the unit safety officers, introduced the employees to the program.

Robert Stemple of Herrington Manor discussed the hazards associated with riding mowers and demonstrated how to use the mower safely. Johnny Stemple, also of Herrington Manor, discussed the hazards associated with the flail mower. Flail mowers are powerful cutting machines powered by a tractor power take-off.

Foster Lewis of Potomac-Garrett presented a short talk about push mowers and possible accidents and/or injuries which may occur if a mower is used improperly.

Rick Wakefield, also of Potomac-Garrett, discussed with the group the hazard involved while working around the backhoe and loader equipment.

Awards were given out for three top safety employees of the month. Rick Wakefield won a Pan Pizza donated by Pizza Hut in Oakland. Gary Schrock of Swallow Falls won a large pizza donated by Fox's in Oakland, and Tom Gravely of Herrington Manor won a case of Pepsi donated by the Pepsi Company of Cumberland. Lewis and Shaffer again noted their appreciation for the support of the local businesses and group.

Students May Be Liable For Taxes This Summer

Students just getting out of school and starting summer or part-time employment may find that they are affected by some very important tax law changes, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Because of tax law changes made by the Tax Reform Act of 1986, anyone who can be claimed as a dependent on their parents' or guardians' tax return should review the amount of federal tax withheld from their paycheck. Under a provision of the new law, dependents who work cannot claim their own personal exemption on their tax returns since that exemption can only be claimed on their parents' or guardians' return. Without that $1,900 personal exemption in 1987, the summertime or part-time employee may owe taxes if his or her income is more than $500 and includes interest, dividends or other unearned income in addition to their wages.

In past years, summer hires could check "Exempt" on their Form W-4, "Employees Withholding Allowance Certificate", and still take their own personal exemption. In 1987, however, they can only do this if last year they had no tax liability and they expect no tax liability for this year. But with no personal exemption to claim for themselves in 1987, they will likely owe taxes.

Generally, students not exempt from withholding should claim "one" on their Form W-4 if they have only one job. Or, if they want or need more tax withheld, they should claim zero allowances on their Form W-4. Students who have summertime jobs should be sure to obtain a Form W-4 from their employer, fill it out, and return it to the employer as soon as possible so the proper amount of tax can be withheld from their check.

Further information about federal withholding tax and Form W-4 can be obtained by calling the Internal Revenue at 1-800-424-1040.

Wildlife Officials Continue Research On Black Bears In Garrett County

by Tom Mathews,
Regional Biologist

During the late 1800's and early 1900's, uncontrolled timber harvesting, wildfires, and large scale land clearing for agriculture use resulted in shrinking habitat for many of Maryland's forest dwelling wildlife species. This habitat loss, when combined with indiscriminate killing and minimal protection in the way of conservation laws, resulted in the reduction of many wildlife populations. The black bear was eliminated from many parts of the State.

With the advent of stricter wildlife law enforcement, modern wildlife management, and the intensive management of Maryland's forestland, many wildlife species have made a dramatic comeback. During the past decade record harvests of deer and wild turkey have been reported, and black bear sightings in some parts of Western Maryland have become commonplace. Other nearby states, including West Virginia and Pennsylvania, have also reported increased populations and expansion of their black bear range. The state of Pennsylvania has the second largest population of bears in the East, with Maine being number one. The Keystone State's bear population has doubled since 1976, with the present estimated population at 6,000 to 7,000.

Maryland's best black bear population is found in Garrett County where the combination of expansive woodlands, rich farmlands, swamps and glades provide excellent habitat for Maryland's largest wildlife species.

Wildlife biologists from the Maryland Forest, Park & Wildlife Service have been monitoring black bears during the past few years to determine habitat preferences, distribution, estimated population and reproductive rates. In addition to these ongoing studies, Maryland Forest, Park & Wildlife Service personnel have given numerous programs to interested groups regarding the natural habits and life history of bears. They also assist landowners with complaints on nuisance bears, and will lend TAGGED AND FREED — At one time the black bear, Maryland's largest wildlife species, was eliminated in various parts of the state because of uncontrolled timber harvesting, land development, wildfires, and indiscriminate killing by human beings. However, stricter laws and wildlife experts have brought about a comeback of the black bear, and Garrett County, with its excellent habitat for bears, now has the best population of this animal. Many of the bears have been tagged by wildlife officials, and their travels are continually monitored.

During the past month biologists have been intensifying their efforts to live-trap bears. During spring and early summer bears are more easily trapped as the natural foods for bear are somewhat limited. Since May 4, Forest, Park and Wildlife Service personnel have live-trapped eight different bears at four different locations in Garrett County. After they are captured, a drug is administered to the bear to immobilize it. Once immobilized, each bear is ear-tagged, sexed, weighed, and aged. Data on capture location and date of capture is recorded. All female bears are also radio collared so biologists can locate them in the winter to determine the number of cubs to which she has given birth. The reproductive rate of bears is one indication of the overall health of the population.

Of these eight bears recently captured, seven have been male bears. The smallest yearling male weighed 115 lbs., and the largest five-year-old male weighed 385 lbs. It is interesting to note that this 385 lb. bear had been previously captured as a cub by the Pennsylvania Game Commission in 1980, and was tagged and released on May 14, 1982, in Somerset County. Most likely this bear moved southward into Garrett County as a young male and has now established permanent residence in Maryland. Male bears are normally more nomadic than female bears, as they may range 30 to 40 miles during the breeding season in search of mates.

One female bear, which weighed 250 lbs., was captured May 15. This bear was radio collared and released at the capture site. The bear had also been previously ear-tagged and released in Somerset County by the Pennsylvania Game Commission in 1980, and is seven years old now. Black bears have been known to live up to 20 years in the wild.

Many persons have complained because they believe that black bears have been stocked in Maryland. This is not true. Bears have moved into Maryland from nearby states. This is due to expanding bear range, and the fact that parts of Western Maryland do provide excellent habitat for the bears, and they are staying.

Although most bears that are captured as part of Maryland's black bear research are released at the capture site, on May 16 and May 17, two male bears were relocated from the Sang Run area and released at locations in the Savage River State Forest and Potomac State Forests. At the request of the landowner, Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service personnel will relocate bears that have become a nuisance. Bears that have become accustomed to getting a free meal from people usually are more prone to getting into trouble. The Forest, Park & Wildlife Service discourages the feeding of bears, and persons living in areas frequented by bears should keep any potential bear food well secured.

Pennsylvania wildlife biologists have found that those bears that are relocated are usually less likely to become a nuisance in the future.

During November 1986, a 250 lb. male bear was captured by Forest, Park & Wildlife Service personnel in the New Germany area of Garrett County and then released 20 miles away in Potomac State Forest. On May 4, 1987, this same bear was recaptured only six miles from the same location as it had originally been captured last fall.

Of the eight bears caught during the past month in Garrett County, three have already been recaptured. Biologists use information gathered from recaptured bears to compute population estimates and distribution patterns.

Many people fear this resident wildlife species, but Gary Alt, biologist with the Pennsylvania Game Commission and foremost authority on black aggressive eastern bears were the first to get shot, and the bears that ran from humans were the ones that survived. I've handled literally hundreds of bears over the past few years, and believe me, your chances of getting attacked by a Pennsylvania or Maryland black bear are just about nonexistent."

Joe Reifenberger, the biologist who heads up the black bear research project for West Virginia said, "Movies and TV have done a lot to promote the myth that black bears are dangerous. They always show the bears growling and popping their teeth while standing on their hind legs. Bears do often stand on their hind legs, but it's usually just to get a better look at things and should not be seen as an aggressive act by a bear. A bear is not more dangerous than a big dog, and in fact, you are much more likely to get hurt by a dog than you are a bear."

Many people may wonder if it is safe to hike in the mountains of Garrett and Allegany counties. There have been almost no unprovoked black bear attacks of humans in the last century in the United States.

Initial studies in Maryland have confirmed that a breeding population of black bears does exist in Garrett County, and the possibility for future expansion in Maryland is possible. Probably the most crucial factor to the future of the black bear in Maryland is public support.

Seeing a bear should be something to get excited about, to feel lucky about, and not to get frightened about.

Maryland Forest, Park & Wildlife Service personnel are available to present programs to any interested group regarding the habits and ongoing studies on the black bear. Anyone sighting a bear is encouraged to contact his local Forest, Park & Wildlife office, and local persons having problems with a nuisance bear should contact the Mt. Nebo Wildlife office at 334-4255 for assistance.

New Maryland Logo Unveiled

On May 15, Governor William Donald Schaefer announced the new logo, "Maryland — With Pride." The colorful red, yellow and black logo, a pennant emblazoned with the historical heralding of the Maryland flag, can be reproduced for use on all things made in Maryland, processed in Maryland and grown in Maryland.

Governor Schaefer's challenge to all state businesses was, "... This is the kind of thing we should be doing in Maryland. It makes me proud to be able to launch this logo and encourage every business in the state to use it. We should all be promoting Maryland in every way we can. Let's show the rest of the world just how proud we are of Maryland, its products, and its people."

Six prominent Maryland businesses will be the first to utilize "Maryland — With Pride" on their products. Representing a variety of enterprises, they are: Giant Food, Inc., of Landover; Byrd's Seafood, Inc., of Crisfield; Mid-Atlantic Coca-Cola Company of Silver Spring; Avalon Hill, a toys and games company, of Baltimore; D.R.J. Exercise Equipment, Inc., of Denton; and Rinehart Orchards of Smithsburg.

The governor invites all Maryland businesses to become members of the "Maryland — With Pride" team. Those interested in using the logo may write for more information to: "Maryland — With Pride" Promotion, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401. Information may also be obtained by calling 1-800-492-5590, extension 5770.

MVA Releases Better Placard For Handicapped

The first of the new handicapped placards was presented to John Clinton, chairperson of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, and his wife, Mary Ann, by W. Marshall Rickert, MVA Administrator, at a brief ceremony, June 3.

The 4"x7" blue and white plastic laminate card displaying the international handicapped symbol will be easily seen when placed on a vehicle dashboard. The new placard will not fade or tear and is transportable so the handicapped individual can move from vehicle to vehicle while properly using the privilege of handicapped parking. The placards become available June 4 at Glen Burnie.

The bright blue and white placard will be available to an estimated population of 35,000 to 40,000 customers. These placards combined with the opportunity to have handicapped license plates, gave the handicapped an opportunity to create a flexible alternative if they are dependent on others for transportation.

Clinton and the committee were complimented by Administrator Rickert for their efforts in developing understanding of the need and assisting in the design.

ATTENTION INVESTORS!

Have you been offered

"SKY-HIGH" RATES

on non-bank investments?

If so, we suggest you consider these facts before you invest:

Fact #1: Fees

Almost all non-bank investments have charges associated with them. Some of these charges might include: Load fees, Management fees, Sales commissions, Middleman fees, etc.

When you deduct these fees from your rate of return, you may discover your net yield to be much lower than the "sky-high" rate first offered.

Fact #2: Risk

Many non-bank investments can go down in value if interest rates go up, resulting in losing a part of your investment principal. Yields on non-bank investments are generally stated in the past-tense, and have little bearing on future yields.

A PROUD SALUTE TO OUR ★ DAIRY INDUSTRY ★

SALUTE TO LOCAL DAIRY FARMERS WEEK — To show their support to the dairy industry in Garrett County, the Garrett County Commissioners have proclaimed June 7-13 as a Salute To Local Dairy Farmers Week. Present for the proclamation, and serving milk to the commissioners was Garrett/Allegheny Dairy Princess Sherri Wilt. Commissioners Elwood L. Groves II (left) and John G. Braskey stated that because the dairy industry is one of the leading industries in the county; and because dairy products, with their high calcium content, are an important part of the daily diet; and because milk is not only good for you but tastes great too; they urged all citizens to support area dairy farmers. June is National Dairy Month, and as dairy princess, Sherri has worked along with The Republican to promote the dairy industry in the area. Farmers or farm businesses who would like to show their support and salute the dairy industry during June should contact Bernice Kepple at 334-3963.

Milk, Maryland's "White Gold"

Although milk cows came to America with the early colonists, dairying as an industry remained the sleeping giant of agriculture for nearly 200 years. Part of the reason was a lack of adequate refrigeration and transportation facilities for moving highly perishable dairy products to distant markets.

Another reason was that early dairying was a family enterprise consisting of small herds capable of serving only local communities. With the advent of electrically controlled refrigeration systems and vastly improved rail and highway lines, the dairy industry boomed. It has become Maryland's second highest cash producing farm business.

In the transition, several noteworthy events occurred.

The first ice cream plant in the world was established in Baltimore in 1851; in 1884, the state's first creamery began production of butter; toward the end of the 1880s, special butterfat tests and other scientific advances in pasteurization were developed; early in the 1900s commercial dairy companies started buying bulk milk from farmers and after processing, the milk was resold in quantity lots through home delivery to consumers.

About the time of World War II, several other important developments spurred on the dairy industry. Homogenization, addition of vitamins to the milk and specially treated paper cartons made the old method of dairy marketing obsolete. It also led to a greater demand for milk products which was met by Maryland dairy interests.

To help stabilize the price of milk, marketing cooperatives sprang up to act as bargaining

"Honor Roll" Award Presented To Sen. Mikulski

Senator Barbara A. Mikulski has received the Associated Milk Producers Inc.'s "Honor Roll" award for voting consistently in the interest of dairy farm families and consumers in support of a strong dairy industry during the 1985-86 session of the U.S. Congress.

"Senator Mikulski has demonstrated understanding of and commitment to the importance of dairy farm families to the nation's well-being," said AMPI President Irvin Elkin, a dairy farmer from Amery, Wisconsin. "With this type of responsible public policy, dairy farmers can continue to assure consumers of dependable dairy supplies at reasonable prices."

The AMPI Honor Roll is awarded every two years to members of Congress scoring "100 percent favorable" voting records on key dairy issues. Recipients are presented with a handsome brass statuette depicting a milk can. During the 1985-86 session of Congress, 41 senators and 192 representatives earned the award.

"Dairy farmers in Maryland do an outstanding job of putting milk and wholesome dairy products on the table and deserve our support," commented Senator Mikulski. "Day-in and day-out U.S. consumers can walk into their favorite grocery stores and find the shelves stocked with milk and dairy products — a claim consumers in few other countries can make. Plus, thanks to dairy farmer productivity, prices for dairy products in Maryland have consistently stayed below both increases in the Consumer Price Index and all foods index. I fought hard for Maryland's dairy farmers in the House of Representatives, and am continuing to do so in the U.S. Senate."

Dairy-Licious Entries Still Being Accepted

Entries for the Maryland Dairy-Licious Recipe Contest will be accepted through midnight, July 31. The contest is open to all Maryland residents who are nine years old or older.

There are two age divisions for the contest. Young cooks can enter the youth division, for ages nine to 19, inclusive. Anyone over 19 may enter the adult division.

Selection of the grand prize winners will be held at the Maryland State Fair. Judging will be based on effective use of dairy products, taste and eye appeal, ease of preparation, and appropriateness of category entry. The contest is being sponsored by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area and the Maryland Holstein Association Promotion Committee.

To obtain an official entry form, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Maryland Dairy-Licious Recipe Contest, Entry Form, 216 Carroll Building, 8600 LaSalle Road, Towson, MD 21204, or pick one up at the Garrett County Extension Office.

agents for producers; and co-op collection centers were located statewide. These collection points were important to dairy farmers because most processors operated only weekdays, while cows continued to supply milk on a seven-day basis. One co-operative even built one of the country's largest dry milk processing plants at Laurel to buy surplus milk for other co-op associations.

Although there currently are dairy herds in each of Maryland's 23 counties, major production comes from Frederick, Carroll, Washington, Harford and Montgomery counties.

Tuberculin testing of dairy herds was introduced in 1890 and testing for fat content of milk and cream was perfected by Dr. S.M. Babcock.

Imagine walking into a home that is For Sale, and finding that you've interrupted what appears to be the beginning of a royal feast.

The dining room table is set with the finest china, the silverware has become goldenware in the warm glow of the candelabra, and the finest linen napkins adorn each place setting. Fresh cut flowers are abundant throughout the home, and the aroma coming from the kitchen is tantalizing. You want to stay forever.

Whoa! Stop right there. Do you know what you've done. You've just walked into a home which has been especially prepared for showing by homeowners who understand the selling process. They know that in order to gain the attention of buyers, they must create a home atmosphere which meets your image of a dream home.

As sellers, it is important to understand the importance of preparing a home for showing. Creating the right atmosphere for a positive buying experience costs the sellers nothing but preparation time and a little of their imagination. They may also add to the effect by opening all drapes and curtains and turning on all the lights before a showing. Emptying closets and packing away all unneeded bric-a-brac add to the spaciousness of a home.

In short, selling a home successfully requires seller participation. A little goes a long way.

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give us a call at 387-5303, or come by our office located at McHenry Plaza.

Farmers Need Leaded Gasoline

Maryland farmers could face costly repairs or modifications to farm equipment if the Environmental Protection Agency does not maintain a minimum lead standard for gasoline, according to the Maryland Farm Bureau.

Recent tests conducted by the EPA and the U.S. Department of Agriculture showed "excessive wear" in five of seven types of farm engines when they were operated with unleaded fuel. The engines were designed to use leaded gas, and require small amounts of lead to prevent engine valve wear. Two lead additives tested proved to be "unsatisfactory."

Maryland Farm Bureau President Robert Wilson said that the tests "confirmed our worst fears about a total ban on lead in gasoline. Many farms are still using older engines that were built for leaded gas, and to ask farmers to replace them with new equipment would be unrealistic."

The opposition to the ban on leaded gasoline strengthened last week as the American Farm Bureau Federation, congressmen and other leaded-fuel users called on the administration to maintain the current minimum lead standard.

Testifying at an Environmental Protection Agency hearing, Dennis Stolle, AFBF assistant director of national affairs, said the recent government study showed "excessive and unacceptable" valve seat wear in more than 70 percent of the leaded gas farm engines tested.

The study, ordered under the 1985 farm bill, was conducted by EPA and the USDA. Five of the seven types of commonly used farm engines showed unacceptable valve seat wear as a result of running on unleaded fuel. Valve damage on one engine was so severe that it was two-thirds worn out after running for only 200 hours on unleaded gas under high loads and high rpms.

"The EPA/USDA study has produced strong evidence that farmers and ranchers could be exposed to huge new costs for equipment repairs and replacements if leaded fuel is not available," said Stolle. While two additives to replace lead were tested, wear levels were still "unsatisfactory," he said.

Echoing Farm Bureau's call, Representatives Kika de la Garza (D-Texas), Ron Marlenee (R-Mont.), Edward Madigan (R-Ill.) and Tom Tauke (R-Iowa) have urged EPA not to further reduce the lead standard. In a letter to the agency the congressmen said, "It appears to us the EPA policy and the need of the farm community, at the current 0.1 gram per gallon standard, have achieved a happy medium. Our request is that no further reduction in lead be mandated at this time."

The United Parcel Service also expressed concern about a further reduction in lead. Testifying at the hearing, UPS said that 29,000 of their truck fleet had the 292 GM engines, one of the most vulnerable engines tested.

In 1985, Farm Bureau conducted its own leaded gas survey. That survey found an average of 10 leaded gas engines per farm and that replacing the equipment would cost $100,000 per farm.

Farmers are concerned about whether the leaded gasoline they are now buying contains enough lead to prevent engine damage, Stolle said. "The study shows that a minimum of 0.1 gram per gallon is needed to protect engines from heavy valve wear. EPA needs to take necessary action to assure that actual lead levels do not fall below 0.1 grams per gallon, he added.

Lead levels in air have decreased 79 percent between 1976 and 1985, according to EPA's National Air Quality and Emission Trends. Lead from motor vehicle emissions has declined more than 86 percent over the same period.

"Even with the 0.1 gram per gallon standard, air quality will continue to improve as lead-burning engines are phased out in the future. The minimum standard will also give the needed margin of protection for older farm equipment and protect farmers and ranchers from unnecessary and unplanned costs of repairs and replacements," Stolle concluded.

Shortly following the release of the EPA/USDA study, Amoco Oil Corporation announced that it had reconsidered its earlier decision to discontinue the marketing of leaded fuel. Amoco said it will continue to sell leaded gasoline to farmers in certain portions of the Mid-west "as long as there is sufficient demand for the product."

Sleep specialists claim there is no myth to the belief that drinking milk at night helps a person sleep. One theory is that a substance called tryptophan, found in milk, helps a person relax. Another theory is that cholecystokinin, another chemical found in milk, has sedative qualities.

Calcium Quiz Proves Mineral's Importance

Calcium is the key structural mineral in human metabolism. Throughout the life cycle calcium continues to be an essential nutrient for growth, maintenance, and reproduction. All cells require calcium to function. Ninety-nine percent of the body's calcium is contained in bones. The remaining one percent of calcium that exists outside bone in body fluids and soft tissues exhibits several important functions: 1) maintains the shape and ability of various cell membranes to function, 2) assists in transmission of nerve impulses, 3) helps control normal muscular contraction and relaxation, 4) assures heart rhythm, and 5) activates several of the enzymes involved in blood clotting as well as other enzyme processes.

The Dairy Council of Greater Metropolitan Washington, Inc. offers the following quiz for readers to check their knowledge of the body's need for calcium.

1. The best source of calcium in the American diet is:
a. bread
b. watermelon
c. milk

- a. nutritional status
- b. age
- c. both of the above

6. Two cups (16 oz.) of milk supply:

FREQUENCY RANGES

More than seven million Americans have some degree of hearing loss. Many, perhaps most, have a deficiency that results from growing older. The young ear normally can hear tones in a range of 16 cycles per second up to 20,000 cycles per second, and possibly more. A person over 60 years of age usually is not able to hear sounds above 8,000 or 10,000 cycles per second. Although a slight loss of ability to hear high tones is seldom severely disabling, significant involvement of the entire frequency range will make even ordinary conversation difficult to understand. The frequency range from 500 to 2,000 cycles per second is crucial for hearing and understanding speech. A hearing aid may be able to help the person with a hearing loss by amplifying the sounds within a certain frequency range.

For the young as well as the "young at heart," ALLEGANY HEARING & SPEECH ASSOCIATES offers the hearing instruments necessary to return the enjoyment of the sounds of life to your daily routines. We invite you to come in and learn more about how we can offer an answer to your hearing difficulties. Stop by and "hear us" soon.

The loss in the high frequency range that occurs with aging happens to almost everyone.

Milk Has Nurtured The World's People Since Beginning Of Time

Milk's history goes back to the beginnings of civilization. Prehistoric drawings from the Sahara, circa 8,000 B.C., feature picture stories of cattle. An old mosaic frieze (3,500 B.C.) found at the ancient temple of Ur near Babylon, depicts a dairy scene with milk containers and strainers. Even the earliest writings, in now-extinct Sanskrit, mention milk as one of the essential foods. As a matter of fact, the word milk comes from the Sanskrit, "Mrjati," used to describe the milking action.

Dairying in the U.S. is older than the nation itself. The first dairy cows came to Jamestown in 1611, helping to end the terrible starvation. Other cattle had been brought to this country by Spanish explorers. As pioneers moved westward, nearly every covered wagon had its cow, the family's mobile "food factory."

Today's dairy herds barely resemble the pioneers' cattle. They are more productive and scientifically cared for than the herds of only a few decades ago. Single dairy herds comprise from 40 to many hundreds of cows, milked mechanically.

Milk flows directly from the cow into a refrigerated tank where it is quickly cooled and held for pickup. From there the milk is pumped into refrigerated tank trucks, which carry it to the processing plant. Fat levels are adjusted to produce whole, lowfat and skim milk.

Fortification with vitamin D is optional for most forms of milk. However, this nutrient is added to about 98 percent of the country's milk in the amount of 400 International Units (IU) per quart. Vitamin A must be added to lowfat and skim milk; it is optional for whole milk. If added, it must be present in the amount of 2,000 IU per quart.

Then milk is pasteurized, ultra-pasteurized or ultra-high-temperature processed. Heating milk (pasteurization) assures its safety and increases its keeping quality. Milk is most commonly pasteurized at 161 degrees F (71.5 degrees C) for 15 seconds. Ultra-pasteurized milk and ultra high temperature (UHT) processed milk are heated to 280 degrees F (138 degrees C) for at least two seconds, which increases the refrigerated shelf life.

As it flows out of the pasteurizer, most market milk is homogenized by being pumped through extremely tiny openings. The milkfat is broken up into particles too small to stick together. As a result, they remain mixed throughout the milk rather than rising to the top as a layer of cream.

The pasteurized, ultra-pasteurized, or UHT processed milk is cooled rapidly to at least 45 degrees F (7 degrees C). The UHT milk is packaged into pre-sterilized containers and aseptically sealed. Since bacteria cannot enter the UHT milk, it can be kept unrefrigerated for at least three months. The pasteurized and ultra-pasteurized milks are packaged and stored in a refrigerated room until loaded into an insulated delivery truck.

Although milk is processed, it's not an engineered or fabricated food. It naturally has two major components: fat, including fat-soluble vitamins, and solids-not-fat, which include proteins, carbohydrates, water-soluble vitamins and minerals.

Milk contains high-quality protein due to the presence of all of the essential amino acids. Casein, a protein found only in milk, comprises 82 percent of the total proteins in milk.

Milk's minerals include calcium, phosphorus, magnesium and zinc. It is a rich source of biologically available calcium. Most other foods supply much smaller amounts that are less readily available. Phosphorus is needed in the proper ratio to calcium for bone. Milk provides these two minerals in approximately the same ratio as found in bone.

Because it is difficult to obtain sufficient calcium without milk and other dairy products in the diet, the following recommendations are made: adults, two servings daily; teenagers, four servings daily; children, three servings daily; and pregnant and lactating women, four servings daily.

TYPES OF MILK

WHOLE MILK contains not less than 3.25 percent milkfat. It must contain not less than 8.25 percent solids-not-fat.

LOWFAT MILK has had sufficient milkfat removed to bring the fat level to between 0.5 and two percent. It also contains at least 8.25 percent solids-not-fat. It must contain 2,000 IU of vitamin A per quart. Vitamin A is added to offset loss caused by removal of some of the milkfat. Milk in this category is labeled with the percent milkfat in the product. If nonfat milk solids are added to reach the 10 percent solids-not-fat level, the product must be labeled "protein fortified" or "fortified with protein."

SKIM MILK, also called nonfat milk, has had sufficient milkfat removed to bring the level to less than 0.5 percent. It must contain not less than 8.25 percent solids-not-fat and must be fortified with vitamin A (2,000 IU per quart). If nonfat solids are added to reach the 10 percent level, it must be labeled "protein fortified" or "fortified with protein."

CHOCOLATE MILK is made by adding sweetener and chocolate or cocoa to whole milk. The protein, mineral and vitamin content of flavored milks will be almost the same as that of the milk — whole, lowfat, skim — to which the flavoring is added.

EGGNOG is a mixture of dairy ingredients (cream, milk, partially skimmed milk or skim milk), egg yolk-containing ingredients and sweeteners. It may also contain added flavorings, such as rum extract, nutmeg or vanilla. This seasonal product is most readily available during the November-December holiday season.

NONFAT DRY MILK is the product obtained by removal of water from pasteurized skim milk. Nonfat dry milk contains not more than five percent by weight of moisture and not more than one and one-half percent by weight of milkfat unless otherwise indicated. It is fortified with vitamins A and D and has all the proteins, minerals and water soluble vitamins of the skim milk from which it is made.

EVAPORATED MILK is canned whole milk concentrate containing not less than 7.5 percent milkfat and 25.5 percent milk solids, prepared by evaporating enough water under vacuum from fresh whole milk to reduce the volume by half. This concentrate is then homogenized (optional for evaporated skimmed milk), fortified with vitamin D (400 IU per pint), packed in cans, sealed and sterilized by heat.

SWEETENED CONDENSED MILK is a canned milk concentrate containing not less than 28 percent milk solids and eight percent milkfat. It is pasteurized and may be homogenized. The quantity of nutritive sweetener used is sufficient to prevent spoilage.

BUTTERMILK is made by adding a special bacterial culture to milk to produce the acidity, body, flavor and aroma characteristic of this product. Salt may be added. Yellow flecks in some buttermilk are bits of real butter.

Sweet acidophilus milk is usually made with lowfat milk or skim milk, so the caloric content is similar to that of the milk from which it is made.

UHT milk may be made with any of the regular milks (whole, lowfat or skim) as well as flavored. Caloric content corresponds to the type of milk.

Governors To Discuss Specific Clean-Up Goals

The governors of Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania, the director of the Environmental Protection Agency and the mayor of the District of Columbia will meet this summer in Tidewater Virginia to begin defining specific goals of a four-year old effort to clean up the Chesapeake Bay.

The officials hope to sign the new agreement in December and they also hope this one will be more specific than the original, signed in 1983.

Likely to be a key topic when the leaders meet in late July or August is the issue of how much pollution should be allowed to enter the bay — more specifically, nitrogen and phosphorus.

The debate may be in whether or not to set specific numbers for nutrient reduction. Some states might be more reluctant than others to do this.

Some scientists argue that the research on certain pollutants blamed for much of the bay's decline is still too sketchy. For instance, conclusive data on proper water quality for specific fish and underwater grasses is still not known. However, groups like the Chesapeake Bay Foundation believe that without specific goals, the clean-up efforts will be less effective.

During those years since the original agreement was signed, Maryland, as well as the other states have invested millions of dollars in the clean-up program. Those programs have included the prevention of soil run-off from farms as well as urban pollution from streets and industry pipes.

The first U.S. cheese factory began operations in Rome, New York, in 1851.

Keep Cows Cool In The Summer For Maximum Milk Production

"The more comfortable you keep your dairy cows, the harder they'll work for you," says Extension Dairy Scientist Dr. Dale A. Coleman. One of the biggest problems facing dairy producers is keeping cows comfortable during hot, humid summer weather.

There are several reasons to keep dairy cows comfortable cool, says Coleman. Cows require energy and other nutrients to produce milk. They receive these nutrients through their daily feed. When a cow gets hot, she loses her appetite and eats less. The hotter it gets, the less she eats and the more her production drops.

In addition, cows are warm-blooded animals. To function normally, warm-blooded animals must maintain their body temperature within a relatively narrow range. For dairy cattle, that range is between 100.4 and 102.6 degrees F. When the temperature gets above about 85 degrees F, a cow starts having trouble keeping herself cool. She must start diverting some of her nutrient energy away from milk production and toward active cooling mechanisms.

Cows do this by altering their metabolism, shunting blood closer to the skin, increasing respiration rate, and so forth. The more energy a cow uses to keep cool, the less she has remaining to put into milk production.

Finally, a young embryo developing inside the uterus is quite sensitive to its dam's body temperature. Research has shown that a two to 2.5 degree F increase in body temperature of the dam on the day after breeding will decrease conception rate by 15 percent. On a hot, humid day, the body temperature of a cow in direct sunlight can increase enough to cause a 30 percent lower conception rate.

To keep cows comfortable during hot weather, Coleman suggests reducing the heat load a cow gains and increase her ability to lose heat. Understanding the following points will help provide a better environment for dairy cows, Coleman says.

A cow gains body heat by:

- Digestion and metabolism of feed.

- Absorption of environmental radiant heat (mostly sunlight).
- A cow loses body heat by:

- Normal respiration.

- Panting.
- Radiating body heat away (the cow's immediate surroundings must be cooler than she is).

- Limited sweating (or evaporation of applied moisture).

- Replacing warm body fluids (such as milk, urine and feces) with cooler fluids (such as cool water).

To keep a dairy cow comfortable, Coleman says, each of the above points must be optimized. Forages produce more body heat when digested compared to concentrates. So, balancing a ration with relatively less forage and more concentrate can help reduce the cow's summer heat load. "But be careful to keep enough fiber in the ration," he says.

An even more effective method of reducing heat gain is simply providing shade. In a recent study at the E.V. Smith Research Dairy near Milstead, Ala., a simple mesh-net type of shading reduced the sun's radiant energy by about 15 degrees F. This difference in air temperature could help lower the cow's body temperature by two to four degrees F. Mature cows require about 50 square feet each. Coleman advises dairymen to provide ample shade where the cows spend most of their time: in the feeding area; in the loafing area; and while standing idle in the holding pen.

There's not much that can be done to help normal respiration and panting reduce heat load. However, the cooler the air the cow inhales, the more body heat can be transferred to it in the lungs to be exhaled. Providing shade for the cow also shades the air to come degree.

For a cow to radiate heat away from her, her environment must be cooler than she is. Here again, Coleman stresses, providing shade over the pasture, dirt lot, concrete slab and so on will help keep that part of the cow's environment cool enough to draw heat away from her.

When she's trying to get cool, the cow's hair forms an unwanted layer of insulation that limits the movement of air away from her body. So, it's a good idea to use electric fans (frequently in combination with air sox) over the feed bunk or loafing area to circulate air. This forces out the warmer air trapped near the skin and replaces it with relatively cooler air capable of absorbing additional heat away from the skin.

Sweating, by itself, does not cool an animal, Coleman says. For sweat to cool, the moisture must evaporate. It's the evaporation of moisture on the skin that pulls heat away from skin and cools it. A circulating fan will help evaporate sweat and pull heat away from the body. Many producers successfully use misters, sprinklers and sprayers to wet cows, along with fans for evaporation, to cool cows in the feeding area. Extra water, however, must be managed carefully to prevent unwanted wet spots, corrosion or spoilage.

Finally, provide cool drinking water close to where the cows eat and like to loaf. "Don't make your most important 'employees' walk a long distance for a drink of water, only to find it hot and stagnant," says Coleman. The cow must have water to produce milk. If she doesn't like to drink the water she finds, or she must walk a long distance to find it, she won't produce milk to her fullest potential.

What's the bottom line? "Take time to look at your cows during the heat of the day," Coleman says. "Do they look comfortable? Are any of them panting? Are they forced to eat, stand or lie in direct sunlight? Do they have plenty of cool, fresh water? Don't forget to look at the heifers and calves. Do they have enough shade, too? (They need about 20 to 30 square feet of shade each, depending on age)."

Remember, Coleman says, a little planning and shade-building for cows and heifers today can help put more milk in the tank tomorrow, next week, and for years to come.

Dr. Gustav Delaval invented the continuous centrifugal cream separator in 1878, making it easy to remove cream from milk.

Gardeners remember that healthy asparagus ferns are needed to produce next spring's crop. SHEEP FIELD DAY AND WOOL POOL

The following information is provided by Tom McConnell, Extension agent, Preston County, W. Va.: The Sheep Field Day & Wool Pool will be held Saturday, June 13, at Crites Terra Alta Livestock Market in Terra Alta, W. Va. Wool take-up begins at 8 a.m. with the field day beginning at 9 a.m.

Wool Pool — No hay strings or plastic bags. If wool is consigned with either, it will be sold as "reject." What happens here is the sisal will not clean from the fiber, and the plastic that gets mixed with the wool will melt after the wool is processed. Both of these occurrences will ruin the wool.

Special Wool — If you have black or colored wool, or wool of very high quality that might be of value to hand spinners, by all means, separate it. These special fleeces will be made available to everyone in attendance for private sale. The pool management will help you price your product.

"Pay-Off" — Please be patient with the pooling process. Our baling procedure, inspection, and marketing efforts have not gone unnoticed. We got the highest price for our wool in both West Virginia and Virginia! This process takes time.

Each local award recipient was placed in competition with other Ray A. Kroc Youth Achievement Award winners from Maryland, Washington, D.C. and West Virginia for over $5,100 in scholarship monies offered by McDonald's Corpor-

KAOMI TANAKA, exchange teacher from Japan, shares aspects of her native culture with the kindergarten class at Loch Lynn School.

LOCH LYNN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

The following article was written by Herbert S. Lambert, principal of the Loch Lynn Elementary School.

Loch Lynn Elementary School is located in the community of Loch Lynn Heights in southern Garrett County. The school is approximately 55 years old and operates on the philosophy of being a small community school in which students, faculty, and parents feel at home with each other.

At present there are 160 students enrolled in grades K-5 taught by six classroom teachers, a special education resource teacher, and one resource teacher for Chapter I who visits and helps students who are having difficulties in reading and mathematics. Each student also receives art, music and physical education instruction at least once a week from a specialized traveling resource teacher. Computer education is provided by a computer resource teacher as well as by the individual classroom teachers.

The paraprofessional staff consists of one kindergarten aide, four Chapter I aides, one media aide who is also a Chapter I aide and one clerical aide.

Philosophically, the staff tries to provide the best basic education that they can while at the same time enriching the classroom experiences with cultural and other educational activities to help the students become well rounded.

Various cultural activities have been incorporated during this school year. Exchange students from Germany spent a day with the students explaining the customs of their country and answering questions from the students of Loch Lynn.

Another country that the students had the opportunity to learn about was Japan from the Japanese exchange teacher who spoke to each class.

Early American culture was brought to life for the students by a folk music presentation on early American music by Mrs. Mattingly and a group of musicians. In addition, American Indians also helped the students to understand the first true American culture.

In the area of fine arts, Story Alive, a presentation by Interact from Baltimore, gave the students an excellent opportunity to be creative in the development of a story.

Through the art classes, students are learning to work together toward a common goal by making a caterpillar. As a result of their musical training, at Christmas the students in grades 3, 4 and 5 presented a choral concert, and for the graduation ceremony the fifth grade presented the musical "Wheels." This production told about the many uses of wheels throughout history.

Fourth graders videotaped book reports on famous people. The students had to dress and pretend to be that person, telling, not reading, their story.

Grades three and four participated in the Maryland Department of Education Reading Contest, and three students in grade five entered an essay contest, "My Dream of an American Future."

In the areas of math and science, fourth graders participated in an individualized math program. Each student worked on his/her level and pace. The program was highly successful academically and boosted self-esteem. As a special science activity, they spent the night at Camp Hickory and studied the weather, food chains and stream life.

Fourth graders have been doing research on a Maryland county and have made a map and dressed as a person representing the major industry of that county.

To use computers, these students compiled information from their social studies reports on the counties in Maryland and filed the information on a disk. All of this information was categorized and printed for all students.

Each year the PTA supports the school in many ways. To reward the graduates, the PTA sponsors a class trip which usually takes place in June. This year the fifth graders went to Pittsburgh to do a study of rivers and locks on rivers. The students took a cruise on the Gateway Clipper, toured Three River Stadium, and visited the Pittsburgh Zoo.

For a small school these diversified activities are essential in providing the best education possible in a limited, but highly creative classroom environment.

Cankercorn Outbreak Hits Garrett County

Defoliation of oaks and other hardwood trees by the leaf-eating cankerworms has been noted in many areas of Garrett County this spring. Areas hardest hit are the Savage River and Deep Creek Lake sections of the county where 36,496 acres of defoliation have been recorded. The first reports of damage came from sections of the Savage River State Forest just after Memorial Day. A similar outbreak of the fall cankerworm and other loopers occurred in Garrett and Allegany counties and nearby areas of West Virginia during 1981-83.

Several species of loopers, or "inch-worms," are involved in the current outbreak. The loopers hatched early in the spring just about the time of budbreak and are now fully grown and have stopped feeding on the leaves, according to David Cohen, regional entomologist for the Forest Pest Management Section of the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA). They start feeding slightly earlier than the gypsy moths which are also causing defoliation of the oak forests in localized areas of Western Maryland. "Gypsy moth defoliation is also starting to show up in Garrett County," reports Cohen, "sometimes in areas where we have looper problems. However, almost all of the defoliation that we've seen thus far has been caused by the loopers, especially in the Deep Creek Lake area."

The Forest Pest Management Section is mapping areas defoliated by the looper complex so that the impact of this outbreak can be assessed in light of the potential for gypsy moth damage in many areas of Garrett County in the next few years. "We are worried about the additional stress and mortality to trees after defoliation by the loopers followed by gypsy moth defoliation," says Bob Tichenor, chief of MDA's Forest Pest Management Section.

Over 26,000 acres were sprayed by MDA in Garrett County for gypsy moth, including private residential areas and state-owned forests. The U.S. Forest Service and Garrett County cost-shared in the Cooperative Gypsy Moth Suppression Program conducted by MDA's Forest Pest Management Section, with assistance from the Maryland Forest Service of the Department of Natural Resources.

CANADIANS MOVE IN — A family of Canadian Geese took up residence recently in the Broadford Lake area to the delight of many area aviary admirers. It seems in this case that what was good for the goose was good for the gander and the little goslings.

At any rate, the gaggle of geese must find Garrett County's weather and habitat to be similar to their native Canadian abode. They reportedly have made many friends with the visitors to the park and appear to be quite mild-mannered.

Oakland Woman Seriously Injured In Fatal Mishap

A young Oakland area native remains a patient at Rockingham Memorial Hospital, Harrisonburg, Va., in "stable" condition after she was seriously injured in a fatal two-vehicle accident that occurred early Sunday afternoon in Virginia.

Rhonda Lichty, 23, who currently resides in Virginia, received numerous injuries in the 12:30 p.m. accident, including fractured ribs, a cracked pelvis, a ruptured spleen and facial lacerations. She is currently in the Intensive Care Unit at the hospital.

Kenneth F. Cave, 26, Broadway, Va., was killed as a result of the accident which, according to Va. State Police, occurred on Rt. 33 in Harrisonburg when Cave, operating a 1980 Yamaha motorcycle eastbound, collided with the Lichty vehicle, a 1983 Pontiac Firebird.

Driver of the Firebird, William K. Fox, 22, Manassas, Va., was also injured and was taken to Rockingham Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released.

Witnesses to the accident indicated that Cave was traveling at a high rate of speed when he struck the other vehicle, which was traveling westbound and making a left-hand turn.

Rhonda is the daughter of Ralph and Mary Ellen Lichty of the Oakland area.

Buffalo Coal Company Wins National Reclamation Award

Buffalo Coal Company has been named one of four first-place winners in the first "Excellence in Surface Coal Mining Reclamation National Competition," sponsored by the Interior Department's Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement (OSMRE) as part of the "Take Pride in America" initiative. The award was presented by United States Secretary of the Interior Don Hodel and Jed Christensen, director of the Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, during the 70th annual National Coal Association convention in Chicago, Ill., on Monday.

Traveling to Chicago to accept the award on behalf of Buffalo Coal Company were: Donald Cousins, president; Carmen DeSignore Jr., executive vice president; and Melvin Judy, vice president of Maryland operations. The coal company, whose main office is located in Bayard, W.Va., has surface mine operations in both West Virginia and Maryland and was selected as a national award winner for its operations in Garrett and Allegany counties.

The other national competition winners were: Falkirk Mining Company, Bismarck, N.D., subsidiary of North American Coal Corporation, for its Falkirk Mine in McLean County, N.D.; Nerco Coal Corporation, St. Louis, Mo., for Jim Bridger Mine near Rock Springs, Wyo.; and North American Coal Corporation, for its Powhatan Reclamation Project in Belmont County, Ohio.

"We've had many fine examples of good reclamation from coal companies across the nation, but the four national winners are outstanding — the best among 3,000 active, producing surface coal mines," Hodel said during the award ceremony.

Fire At Local Lumber Yard Quickly Doused

Quick action by employees of an Oakland lumber yard, followed by a similar effort by Oakland volunteer firefighters, resulted in halting what could have become a major blaze Monday morning.

Oakland and Deer Park firemen were summoned at 9:11 a.m. to Wood Products, Inc., south of Eighth Street, when a fire broke out in one of the company's control buildings. The small metal building was located about 10 feet above the ground on supports and housed various electrical and hydraulic controls for lumber yard machinery.

According to John Hill, general manager of Wood Products, company employees doused much of the flames with fire extinguishers and firemen then completed the job. Damage was limited to an estimated $1,000.

Hill said that the building was in the process of being dismantled and cutting torches were being used. It was believed that the torches ignited some of the insulation in the walls of the building.

Firefighters remained on the scene for about one-half hour. Also called to respond were the Southern Rescue Squad and the county air cascade vehicle, presently housed at Accident. After Oakland arrived on the scene, all other units were returned to their stations.

Hill said work resumed at the yard after the fire was extinguished and the company experienced no down time.

Timber Harvesting Plans Proposed; Would Mean Millions To County

A major increase in the harvesting of timber on two state forests in Garrett County, which would yield millions of dollars in increased revenue, was proposed by local Forest, Parks, and Wildlife personnel at a public meeting June 13 at Allegany Community College, Cumberland.

The five-year management plans for Savage River State Forest and Potomac-Garrett State Forest was one of two major topics presented at that meeting, the other being the spread, anticipated harmful effects, and proposed treatment of the gypsy moth, which has now spread into Western Maryland.

The five-year management plans prepared and presented by Warren Groves, manager of Savage River State Forest, and Joe Mechem, manager of Potomac-Garrett State Forest, call for approximately double the harvesting of timber in those areas over what was harvested during the past five years. From Fiscal Year 1983 through 1987, 1,098 acres in Potomac-Garrett and 3,658 in Savage River forests were either thinned or clearcut, yielding $814,318 and $1,684,568, respectively, in stumpage value. The management plans for the next five years call for thinning and clearcutting of 2,569 acres in Potomac-Garrett and 6,315 in Savage River, which will yield an estimated $1,900,370 and $3,536,200, respectively, in stumpage value. Of these totals, county government will receive 25 percent of the revenue and it is estimated that the primary and secondary manufacturing value will total over $190,000,000, compared to approximately $87,000,000 over the past five years.

The reasons cited for the stepped-up harvest schedule were that harvest has been lagging behind what it should be for the best, most sound forest management of these areas, plus the present and expected devastation of the gypsy moth over the next five years.

The position statement on the gypsy moth epidemic, prepared by Forest, Park, and Wildlife personnel and presented at the June 13 meeting, painted an ominous picture for the forests of Western Maryland, as heavy defoliation of trees, especially oaks, is expected within the next two years. It is estimated that just in Potomac-Garrett and Savage River forests in Garrett County and Green Ridge State Forest in Allegany County, nearly 66,000 acres will

More Rabies Cases Bring This Year's Total To Four

Two more positive cases of rabies bring the 1987 Garrett County total to four, according to environmental health official Rodney Glettofly. The third case was discovered near Friendsville, bringing Glettofly to note that since the rabies epizootic began, a case has been reported in every major area of Garrett County. Glettofly guesses that this case, the first to be reported in the Friendsville area, is a result of the epizootic moving north along the Youghiogheny River from the southern end of Garrett County, or south along the Yough from Pennsylvania.

A raccoon was submitted to the Garrett County Health Department for testing on June 17 by Ralph Humberson, who lives on Route 53 about three miles north of Friendsville, after he killed the animal. According to Glettofly, a traveler stopped at the Humberson home at approximately 8:30 a.m. and told Humberson that a raccoon was chasing his truck and attacking the tires. Humberson killed the raccoon and called the health department. The positive report was received by the health department on June 18. No

First United To Purchase Bank Of Piedmont

Courtney R. Tusing, chairman of the Board of the First United Corporation, and Donald E. Moran, chairman and president of the First National Bank of Piedmont, Piedmont, W.Va., announced this week the signing of an agreement under which the First National Bank of Piedmont would become a wholly-owned subsidiary of the First United Corporation.

The terms of the transaction provide for a minimum exchange of 3.00 and a maximum exchange of 3.40 shares of First United Corporation ("First United") common stock (adjusted for the 100% stock dividend paid April 2, 1987) for each of the 72,000 First National Bank of Piedmont ("Piedmont") common shares outstanding. The exact exchange ratio is to be equal to 100% of Piedmont's shareholders' equity immediately prior to completion of the proposed transaction and based upon the average market value of First United's common stock prior to consummation. Based upon First United's recent stock price of $21.25 and Piedmont's March 31, 1987 shareholders' equity of $2.4 million, First United would issue approximately 215,000 shares and the transaction would have a value of $4.6 million. First United currently has 1,272,656 shares of common stock outstanding.

The transaction is subject to the approval of Piedmont's shareholders and various regulatory authorities. Under the current interstate banking law between Maryland and West Virginia, the transaction cannot be completed prior to January 1, 1988.

The Piedmont Bank reported total assets of approximately $17 million and shareholders' equity of 2.4 million as of March 31, 1987 and reported net income of $260,000 for the year ended

GARRETT COUNTY ELF PUPPIES? — That's right! The Republican received an anonymous tip this week that Santa would be delivering Garrett County Elf Puppies to Oakland's Tropical World this Friday, June 26, at noon. Santa stipulated though, that any "good little kids" who wanted one of the puppies would be required to make at least a $10 donation to the Oakland Christmas decoration fund, sponsored by the Greater Oakland Business Association. The puppies will be given on a first come, first served basis, if there are any left by Friday. "They're just too cute to stay homeless very long," said Santa.

KING OF THE WILD FRONTIER is probably how Milton Proudfoot felt at the Whitewater Gala held Saturday night at the Wisp Resort to "send-off" the U.S. Whitewater team to the 1987 World Championships in Bourg St. Maurice, France. Proudfoot, a frontier expert, was responsible for designing the costume for the team. He explained some of the history of the frontier of Garrett County, the site of the 1989 World's, to the nearly 275 people who attended the Gala. The frontier theme will be used for the '89 events on the Savage River. Pictured with Proudfoot is Abigail Endicott, coordinator of the Gala and wife of U.S. team coach, William Endicott. Following a reception and dinner, the audience was introduced to the U.S. team. Members of the local whitewater committees who are now planning for the '89 World's were also introduced. Entertainment was provided by Keith Roberts and Mrs. Endicott. The U.S. team was in the county this past weekend practicing for the upcoming World's. They termed the Savage River as "some of the best whitewater in the country."

RETIREE HONORED — The Garrett County Board of Education honored the retirees from the Garrett County Public School System at the close of this school year with an annually sponsored dinner in the Green Room of the Silver Tree Inn, Deep Creek Lake. The retirees with their guests, the retirees' immediate supervisors with their guests, and members of the Board and their guests were present. Albert R. Ringer, acting superintendent of schools, was master of ceremonies. The immediate supervisor, with appropriate remarks, gave each retiree a Garrett County pin and a certificate indicating the number of years of service in the school system. The ex-Board members who were honored, Dr. Leo O'Neill and Earl Clark, each received a pin and a resolution of appreciation by Mrs. Beverly Ann Murphy and Mrs. Anna Mary Fraiz, respectively.

Election Board Re-Organizes At June Meeting

A re-organizational meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Elections for Garrett County was held on June 18, with Vicki L. Carlson elected president of the board.

Carlson, of Oakland, and James C. Brady, Kitzmiller, were recently appointed by Governor William Donald Schaefer as Democrat members of the board, and Roscoe H. Swiger, Oakland, was appointed as the Republican member. Jack W. Fridinger, Oakland, was appointed as substitute Democrat member and George R. Shawley, Bittinger, was appointed as substitute Republican member. The above board will serve a two-year term.

The board appointed Thomas B. Dabney, Jr. to serve as attorney to the board. Willoughby Callis, Oakland; Harley Breneman, Bittinger; Don Ringer, Accident; and Brian Schofield, Bittinger, were appointed as voting machine custodians.

During the meeting, the purchase of two office typewriters was discussed and approved. It was announced that the annual state meeting, which is mandatory for board members and substitutes, will be held in Ocean City from October 4-6. It was also announced that the Maryland Association of Election Officials will meet June 26, 27 and 28 in Washington County. It was noted that when the annual budget had been reviewed by the Garrett County Commissioners, approval had not been given to fund approximately $69,739 for a computer system which would connect the county with the state computer system in Annapolis. As of now, 14 Maryland counties are on this system, which handles new registrations, cancellations, transfers, purge for five-year poll, absentee ballots, pre-printed voter notification cards, and automatically assigns polling places.

A motion was made by Jack Fridinger that Election Board meetings be held each month, and that a regular date and time be set and announced ahead of time in the newspaper. The motion was seconded and carried. The meetings will be held the first Wednesday of each month at 4 p.m. in the Election Board Office, with the next meeting being July 1.

The Election Board Office is in the Garrett County Courthouse. The office personnel are Faye L. Bittinger, election clerk I; Carole G. Paugh, election registrar; and Frederick D. Sanders, election clerk registrar.

Local Teachers Compiling Data On County Hotels

Two local teachers interested in preserving the turn-of-the-century glory that was Garrett County have undertaken a project this summer to compile, organize and reproduce information concerning the old Oakland Hotel and the old Deer Park Hotel, both built and owned by the B&O Railroad.

Mr. Robert Boal, history teacher at Southern High School, antique collector and local historian, and Mrs. Marianne Green, resource teachers for the gifted program at Broad Ford, Kitzmiller and Bloomington Schools, have been interested in the hotels for several years. Boal always includes local history in his 11th grade seminar and Mrs. Green received a grant from the Maryland Humanities Council in 1985 during the 350th birthday of Maryland for her students to research and share a project on the old Deer Park Hotel. The two teachers are working to organize information and donate it to the Ruth Enlow Library and the Garrett County Historical Society.

A photographic display will be held at the Ruth Enlow Library in the near future for the general public. Mr. Boal and Mrs. Green are asking interested parties to share any memorabilia from the two hotels; photographs are the key focus, while brochures, pamphlets, post cards, diaries, news clippings, ads, artifacts, stories or anecdotes are welcome. All items will be returned. Contact Mr. Boal at 334-9501 or Mrs. Green at 334-3186.

Local Detachment Adds Three New State Troopers

They are Tpr. James K. Moore, 25, from Laurel; Tpr. Paul R. Brown, 28, from Rockville, and Tpr. Richard T. Wilson, 22, from Bloomington.

The three graduated from the academy April 13 after having completed the 24-week training program. Following that, Wilson and Moore each completed a two-week field training period in Garrett County while Brown completed his two-week field training in Allegany County.

According to First Sgt. Bill Graham, head of the Garrett County detachment, one trooper transferred to another detachment and two retired during 1986, leaving three vacant spots in the force.

Tpr. Wilson stated that he joined the force in order to have a secure job in law enforcement and eventually would like to work in some area of criminal investigation.

Wilson, a member of the U.S. Naval Reserve in Cumberland, resides in Bloomington with his wife, Robin, and their daughter.

Tpr. Brown expressed an interest in coming back to the academy as an instructor. A native of Michigan, he is interested in helping people through his work as a policeman.

He resides with his wife, Deborah, and son, Eric.

Tpr. Moore joined the force, he said, "to work with the public and to be a member of a fine organization." His goal is to be a member of the STATE team, a tactical unit similar to a Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) team.

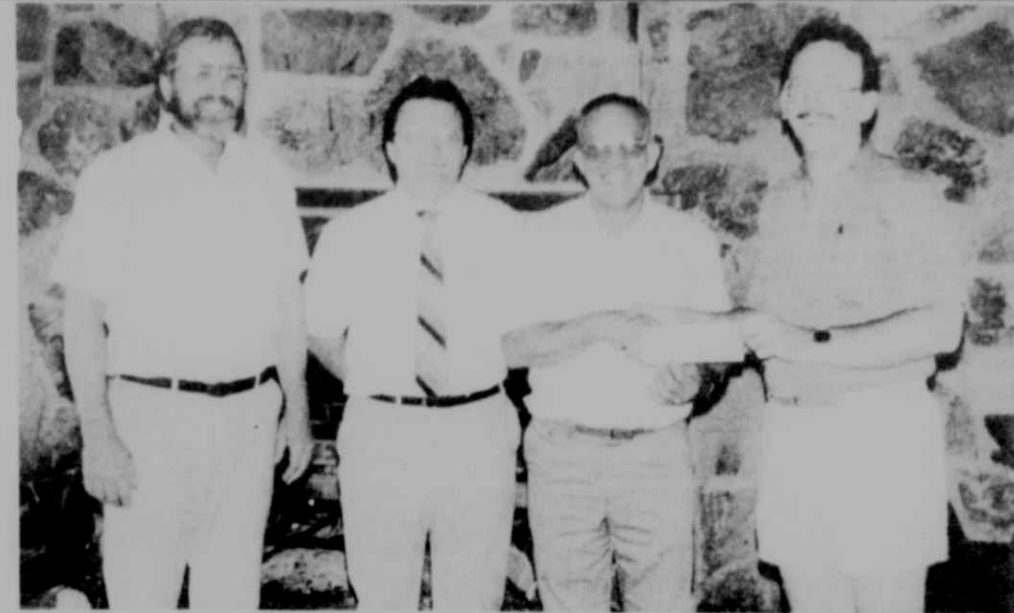

A native of Shamokin, Pa., he earned a B.A. degree in Criminal Justice Administration from Mansfield State College, Mansfield, Pa.

Sgt. Graham stated that he was very enthusiastic about having them at the Garrett County detachment because all three men graduated in the top 25% of their class.

Correction Noted

Information was inaccurately received concerning a story published in last week's issue of The Republican involving an Essex man who was reportedly charged with auto theft and destruction of property.

Information has since been received that Dale E. Thorp, 31, has not yet been charged on these counts but that warrants have been issued for his arrest by the Maryland State Police.

KITZMILLER LIONS DONATE — Members of the Kitzmiller Lions Club recently presented a check in the amount of $500 to Gerry Beachy, zone chairman, to support the Lions' Quest Program. The Quest Program, which has been adopted by the Garrett County Board of Education, deals with saying "no" to drugs and how to cope with peer pressure. It will be presented to all eighth grade students in the county. Pictured left to right are Ron McKenney, 1st vice president of Kitzmiller Lions; Jim White, second vice president; Frank Reel, president-elect; and Beachy. See story for details.

Kitzmiller Lions Donate $500 To Quest Program

The Kitzmiller Lions Club presented a check in the amount of $500 last week to Gerry Beachy, zone chairman, to support the Lions' Quest Program.

The program has been adopted by the Garrett County Board of Education and will initiate when school resumes this fall. It will be presented to all eighth grade students in the county and deals with saying "no" to drugs, as well as how to cope with peer pressure.

The program teaches children how to make wise, healthy decisions when faced with a crisis," Beachy stated. Quest involves not only students and teachers, but parents are also called upon to take an active role.

Garrett County school personnel, plus a representative of the Garrett County Health Department, attended a Quest seminar in Baltimore recently.

Representing Southern Middle School were teacher Michelle Gnegy and counselor Nancy Learey. Attending from Northern Middle School were teacher Linda Youmans and counselor Russell Settle. James Breneman attended for the Health Department.

The cost to initiate the program in Garrett County is approximately $6,500, Beachy said, which will include the expense of sending the four school representatives to the seminar and providing student and parent workbooks for both middle schools.

Other county Lions clubs which have donated to the program are Friendsville ($100) and Grantsville ($1,000). Local businesses and organizations have been sent letters requesting donations, however Beachy said that to date only about 15 have made donations. Those who wish to donate should make out their tax-deductible checks to: Lions 22-W Quest Program and send them to Lowell Jackman, Chairman, 319 Montgomery Court, Smithsburg, MD 21783; or to Gerry Beachy, Box 189, Grantsville, MD 21536. Further information may also be obtained from Beachy at Beachy's Pharmacy, 895-5177.

The Quest Program is not only being implemented by Lions clubs throughout the United States, but also in many European countries. Beachy said that the local clubs are appreciative to all who have already supported the program in Garrett County.

Sheriff's Dept. Arrests Local Man On Assault Counts

An Oakland man was arrested by the Garrett County Sheriff's Department this past weekend and charged with two counts of assault with intent to murder, three counts of assault and one count of destruction of property.

Rodney J. Uphold was incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail and later released on a $10,000 property bond following an incident that occurred Saturday in Pleasant Valley.

The charges were filed by Rhonda Uphold and Jeffrey Meyers, both of Oakland, after Rodney Uphold allegedly attempted to follow the two in his pick-up truck. Meyers was the operator of the pursued vehicle and stated that shots were also fired by Uphold while he was chasing them.

According to the complainants' reports, the vehicles collided during the course of the pursuit, causing damage to each vehicle. The arresting officer was Deputy L.E. Gnegy.

Rhonda Uphold was, in turn, charged with one count of battery by Rodney Uphold following the same incident. Deputy W.C. Thomas served the criminal summons to Mrs. Uphold.

Rodney Uphold also charged Meyers with destruction of property as a result of damage to Uphold's 1983 Buick Skylark.

In other recent news from the Sheriff's Department, Charles L. Paugh, 30, Morgantown, W.Va., was issued four bench warrants for failure to appear in District Court on one theft charge and three traffic violations. The warrants were served to him in Ohio by Detective Richard Kutchman and Deputy L.E. Gnegy, and he is being held in the Garrett County Jail on a $6000 bond.

Gary Moore, 28, Elk Garden, W.Va., was arrested recently on a warrant from District Court where he had been charged with motor vehicle violations. He is currently serving a 90-day sentence in the Garrett County Jail. Deputy W.C. Thomas served the summons.

Donald W. Troshack, 29, Deer Park, was arrested Saturday after being charged with two counts of breaking and entering and one count of destruction of property. Mary K. Housley and Alice Guthrie filed the charges after Troshack allegedly entered their apartment on High Street, damaging the door frame and lock there. He was arrested by Deputy David Crossland and later released on a $250 bond.

Carroll L. Uphold 41, Oakland, was released on his own recognizance after he was arrested for battery following an incident Saturday on Spring Glade Road. The charge was filed by Barbara A. Uphold, also of Oakland. Deputy P.J. Pratt made the arrest.

A criminal summons was

According to investigating officer, Deputy David Stoner, Hardesty also shot both of the dogs, killing one of them.

Roger L. Ashby Jr., 18, Oakland, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct and later released on his own recognizance following a June 17 incident in Oakland where he was involved in a fight with an Oakland juvenile. The juvenile was reportedly treated for abrasions at Garrett County Memorial Hospital as a result. Deputy C.P. Nolan filed the charge.

Three Oakland juveniles, one male and two females were charged with juvenile delinquency as a result of the same incident. They were later released to the custody of their parents.

Brian R. Smith, 20, Oakland, was charged with assault and harassment following an incident Friday in Oakland. Michael A. DeWitt, McHenry, was the complainant and Deputy W.C. Thomas served the warrants.

Couple From Ohio Injured In Two- Car Collision

A two-car collision Saturday afternoon resulted in injuries to an Ohio couple. According to Maryland State Police, the rain-covered roadway was partially to blame for the mishap.

Richard C. Murray, 37, and Linda G. Murray, 34, both of Columbus, were taken by Northern Rescue Squad to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where they were treated for injuries and released.

The accident occurred when Mary Jane Czelen, 31, Arlington, Va., was operating a 1981 Chevrolet Caprice eastbound on Rt. 48 just west of Lower New Germany Road and lost traction on the wet roadway, causing her vehicle to skid across the grass median strip and collide with the Murray vehicle, a 1985 Mazda 626, being operated on westbound Rt. 48.

Czelen and passenger, Jane B. Czelen, 67, also of Arlington, were reportedly not injured in the 2:40 p.m. accident.

Investigating officer, Tfc. R.C. Resh, charged Czelen with negligent driving.

An Oakland woman was treated and released at Garrett County Memorial Hospital Monday following an accident on a three-wheel recreational vehicle.

Sue Ann James, 18, was a passenger on the three-wheeler operated by Mark R. Fazenbaker, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, when the Honda 200X ran over her leg. According to Tpr. R.T. Wilson, investigating officer, the accident occurred on private property at 12:15 a.m. when the vehicle was traveling uphill and James put her foot on the ground.

Rep. Byron To Sponsor Bill On Trail Expansion

Over 40,000 miles of trails have disappeared from the United States in just under 50 years, according to Sixth District Representative Beverly Byron. "But in just 15 years the hiking population has more than doubled. Demand for recreational trails for use by outdoor enthusiasts far outstrip the supply, yet federal funding for acquiring and developing new trails remains virtually non-existent."

Rep. Byron said last week she has developed a method that should prove effective in adding a significant number of trail miles to the current inventory.

Legislation which Byron is sponsoring would authorize the sale of federally-owned, abandoned railroad rights-of-way, most of which are located in the Western states, for conversion to trail use.

"If, in particular cases, a right-of-way is not suitable for conversion, the Interior Secretary is authorized to sell it and use the revenue for the expansion of trails elsewhere in the country," stated Byron.

She said the legislation is receiving a lot of support from other House members and has been officially endorsed by the Rails-to-Trails Conservancy, the American Recreation Coalition, the American Horse

DONATION TO HABITAT FOR HUMANITY — Jack King (right), human resources director at Bausch & Lomb, Inc., is pictured presenting a $500 check to Russell T. Sines, vice president of Habitat and chairman of the fund-raising committee. Sines says he feels the donation was a very significant consideration for Bausch & Lomb as a manufacturer in the county to share in the county's charities in such a continuous fashion. He stated that B & L has made regular donations year after year to Habitat.

Council and the Paralyzed Veterans of America.

"The bill I'm proposing makes good sense in a number of ways," said the representative. "Abandoned rail lines make natural trails and from that point of view, it's sensible land use. Furthermore, since most of the rights-of-way are located in the West, through their sale we can generate revenues for trail development in other parts of the country where there is less public land."

B&L Employees Of Month Named

Employees of the Month for May and June were recently named at the local Bausch & Lomb facility by John Sheltra, plant manager; Richard Ford, facilities services manager; and Tom Whiteman, assembly supervisor.

Leroy "Bud" McCrobie, a mechanic/machinist in the Maintenance Department, was selected for May and Vesta Gank, a senior lens inspector, was selected for June.

McCrobie joined B&L in September 1973 as a module operator and has held various positions since that time, including set-up operator. He transferred to the Maintenance Department in 1980, where his duties include general maintenance, repair, and machining operations to support production and plant operations.

He and his wife, Thelma, reside in Oakland.

Ms. Gank began her employment with B&L in October 1978 as a module operator and was a hand operator and utility inspector before becoming a senior lens inspector in February of this year. Her duties include inspection of lens from assembly, re-inspection, lot sampling, and front repairs. She is a resident of Aurora, W.Va.

Correction Noted

It was incorrectly stated in last week's issue of The Republican that Harold E. Madigan, 59, Deer Park, was found guilty in Garrett County District Court of assault with intent to murder and a handgun violation, and that a charge of assault was not prosecuted.

Madigan was, in fact, found guilty of the assault charge, and the assault with intent to murder charge was not prosecuted.

Seventh-Day Adventists Aid Work In China

The Oakland Seventh-day Adventists learned this week that the international Adventist Development and Relief Agency (ADRA), which they help support, will soon begin work in the People's Republic of China.

ADRA has signed an agreement with the China International Center for Economic and Technical Exchange (CICETE) to begin development activities in poverty areas. While several U.S. based non-profit organizations are currently negotiating such agreements, ADRA is the first organization to actually sign an agreement with CICETE.

The agreement culminated a 12-day tour of areas in Eastern China and the county in which ADRA will be working. A rural county located in the Zhandong province southeast of Beijing, the Uishui county has over 1.3 million residents, many of whom are farmers whose yearly income is less than $400 per year.

ADRA administrators visited several villages in the area where ADRA will be working.

and observed first hand the needs of the residents. Paramount among those needs were potable water, community health education, and hospital equipment, as well as a great need for income generating activities. Proposals for projects within villages of Yishui county are now being prepared by community and government leaders.

ADRA is responding to the need for hospital equipment immediately, and a shipment of seven four-foot containers filled with hospital equipment donated by U.S. hospitals is already underway. This estimated value of equipment is $500,000. A grant of $250,000 from the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists will fund ADRA's initial efforts in China. It is expected that other funding sources will be developed as the project takes shape.

Hazardous Spills Meeting Planned In Annapolis

Senator John N. Bambackus has announced another meeting to discuss legislation to permit the recovery of costs associated with the clean-up of hazardous materials spills. The meeting will be held in room 406 of the Senate Office Building in Annapolis, beginning at 2 p.m. on July 7.

Bambackus explains that this will be another in an ongoing series of meetings devoted to working out an agreement to guide legislative action in 1988. The 1987 Senate Bill 616, put together by Bambackus and Walter Baker, chairman of the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee, passed the Senate by an overwhelming majority, but was killed in the House Judiciary Committee after intense lobbying by the chemical industry.

According to Bambackus, continued interest in this matter was expressed at the recent convention of the Allegany/Garrett County Firemen's Association. "I have pledged to resolve the issues that have prevented passage of this important legislation," stressed the senator. "At the July 7 meeting, I will work with representatives of the trucking industry, the Farm Bureau, the Maryland Petroleum Council, and others to address the obstacles that have been in our way," he said.

"It continues to be my position that the cost of cleaning up hazardous materials incidents should be borne by those responsible for the spill. When fault is attributable to a motor carrier or other party, that party should pay the bills. I am confident that we can work out a fair and equitable piece of legislation that protects everyone involved," Bambackus said.

July 4th Events Slated At Jennings Randolph Lake Park

There will also be a playground for the children, a three-quarter mile interpretive trail, horseshoe pits and newly-constructed basketball court.

Tours of the Intake Tower will be conducted on Sunday, July 5, from 1-4 p.m. The tours will originate at the West Virginia Overlook Shelter.

Persons desiring additional information may call 304-355-2346 or 301-359-3861.

Governor Notes $2.6 Million In Arts Grants

Governor William Donald Schaefer has announced that the Maryland State Arts Council, an agency of the Department of Economic and Community Development, has awarded $2.63 million in matching grants to arts organizations. Grants in the nine artistic categories will go to 159 organizations throughout the state. In addition, 23 county arts councils and Baltimore City will receive funds for local grantmaking and programming in their jurisdictions.

Garrett Community College was the beneficiary of $4,500 which, according to Dr. Stephen Herman, president of GCC, will be used to help support the first Garrett Lakes Arts Festival slated for this summer.

"The arts affect all Maryland citizens, both on a cultural and an economic level," stated Governor Schaefer. "We are grateful to the artists and the organizations for enriching their communities and making Maryland a better place to live."

According to James Backus, Executive Director of the Maryland State Arts Council, "Art has a powerful ability to touch and alter our lives, and it is through grants to arts organizations that the council reaches its large family of artists and citizens in every county of the state. Their talent, energy, and commitment are wonderful."

Arts Council grants to organizations are awarded on the basis of artistic merit, administrative ability, financial stability, service to the community and involvement of Maryland artists. Grantees are selected by a competitive process through which applications are reviewed by advisory panels of professionals in each artistic discipline. The grants range in size from $500 to $440,000.

Under the Individual Artist Program, 16 artists were selected from 450 applicants to receive fellowships of $5,000 each to assist them in their career development.

Founded in 1967, the Maryland State Arts Council is the official arts agency of the State of Maryland.

In addition to grantmaking, the council carries out numerous other programs designed to enrich the cultural life of the citizens of Maryland.

Scout Saved

Continued from Page A-1 because of our use of the buddy system and stressing to the boys to continually look out for each other that this young man was saved," Mrs. Eichorn said. She noted that the older scouts are at camp serving as assistant leaders so that there is adequate supervision of all of the camp activities.

"I was with another group of boys at the athletic field when it happened, so I really didn't know exactly what was going on," Mrs. Eichorn said, "but knew I couldn't leave my group to find out."

However, Marie Custer, district representative for the Scouting program, was on the beach at the time of the rescue and verified the actions of Eichorn, Lucas, and Getson. "They did an outstanding job and we are certainly proud of them," she said.

Approximately 75 Cub Scouts are attending the day camp.

ceremonies. "Other nominees not among the finalists were also winners — as are the environment and the American people — because land reclamation improves the quality of our environment."

Hodel said each of the companies demonstrated that it is not only possible but profitable to mine the coal and reclaim the land properly, despite differences in climate and geology. "Whether it is the Allegheny Mountains of Maryland, the northern plains of North Dakota, the Ohio Valley or the rugged terrain of Wyoming, these companies have shown how to achieve excellent land reclamation. It took solid technical know-how, but also a strong sense of pride, a sincere love of the land, and a pioneering spirit willing to take on challenges," said Hodel. "In addition to showing respect for the law, the land and the people, the winners share another key attribute — a sincere willingness to work closely with their state regulatory agencies," he added.

Buffalo Coal Company was nominated by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources' Bureau of Mines "for continuing overall excellence in reclamation and post-mining land use compatible with both the spirit and intent of the federal surface mining law prior to its enactment in 1977."

Buffalo has mined in Maryland since 1967. The Maryland Bureau of Mines, who presented the company with the state Surface Coal Mining Reclamation Award in 1986, said that the company "has consistently exceeded environmental performance standards in mining and reclamation and has demonstrated new and innovative techniques to improve the quality of mining and reclamation in Maryland."

Donald Cousins, president of Buffalo Coal Company, gave an example of the "new and innovative techniques" used on one surface mined area of Garrett County which helped the company earn mining's highest award.

The area he described is the company's "Pee Wee Job" located on Route 38 outside of Kitzmiller. The company was granted its initial permit to mine 251 acres there in February of 1981. The company removed coal from 109 acres, mining six different seams of coal. The rest of the property was involved in access roads, ponds, and slope control.

The property was revegetated according to the owner's wishes, with a number of acres planted for pasture. The ponds were left on the property, as were the access roads, at the owner's request. According to Cousins, one highlight of this particular reclamation project is that the company was able to restore an original spring on the property, from which now, again, a supply of good water flows.

The surface mine operation at the Pee Wee Job involved the elimination of an abandoned deep mine, which had caused a bad water drainage problem since the Freepoint seam of coal had been deep mined there years ago. Ironically, Cousins noted that this old abandoned deep mine was located on a steep slope greater than 20 degrees and was surface mined without problem and to the betterment of the environment by eliminating the bad water drainage from the old mine. What is ironic, Cousins says, is that surface mining slopes greater than 20 degrees is prohibited by Maryland law, except in cases like this where an abandoned mine is present. Maryland is the only state with such a restriction, and coal companies and legislators are continuing their attempt to prove that such a law should be changed.

"We always try to implement new technologies and new ideas," Cousins said. "Sometimes they work and sometimes they don't, but we're willing to try anything to make the property look as it did in its natural state." Cousins added that the company is very proud of its accomplishments, and that owner Carl DeSignore, who passed away in 1985, would have been proud of this accomplishment, too. "We accepted the award with a lot of pride," he said.

During the convention, which was the first since the merger of the Mining and Reclamation Council of America (MARC) and the National Coal Association, several companies were also selected for honorable mention including a West Virginia company, Hobet Mining.

Hobet Mining Company, nominated by the West Virginia Department of Energy, is following a 20-year plan for reclamation in mountainous areas, with emphasis on high-quality regrading and erosion control to restore the natural environment and topography of the land.

Deep Creek Yacht Club Still Thriving, Growing After 50 Years

by Rev. John A. Grant

This year the Deep Creek Yacht Club celebrates the 50th year of its founding. It is a larger club now, and possesses more property than when the original group was incorporated in 1937. However, its purpose to promote the sport of sailing on Deep Creek Lake remains the same.

There have been other clubs which have existed from time to time on Deep Creek Lake. They were usually formed by a small group for a specific purpose such as recreation, real-estate subdivisions, or convenience of boat storage.

One popular location for boat storage was Thayer's Barn, at Thayerville. Canoes were kept in the bottom of the barn, and a small club was once formed to pay rent to Gorman Thayer for the storage. Although the barn is now gone, the location still remains a popular spot for boating.

Much of the flavor of boating on Deep Creek Lake in those early days has been incorporated into some written material by Mr. John Schaidt. As one of the first members of the Yacht Club, and an early sailor on Deep Creek Lake, he writes the following:

"I started sailing on Deep Creek Lake in the summer of 1926. My companion was Dick Holben of Frostburg, and our craft was a canoe equipped with a sailing rig. We kept our boat in a large barn near the present Will O' the Wisp, and found the sport exciting, but dangerous, because of partly submerged stumps and logs floating sometimes just below the surface of the newly-filled lake. There were a few motor boats and fishermen, but we did not see another sail in the area."

At that time, canoes were equipped with lee boards to give them stability when a sail was used. As time went by during those early days on Deep Creek Lake, more and more canoes began to appear with lee boards and sails.

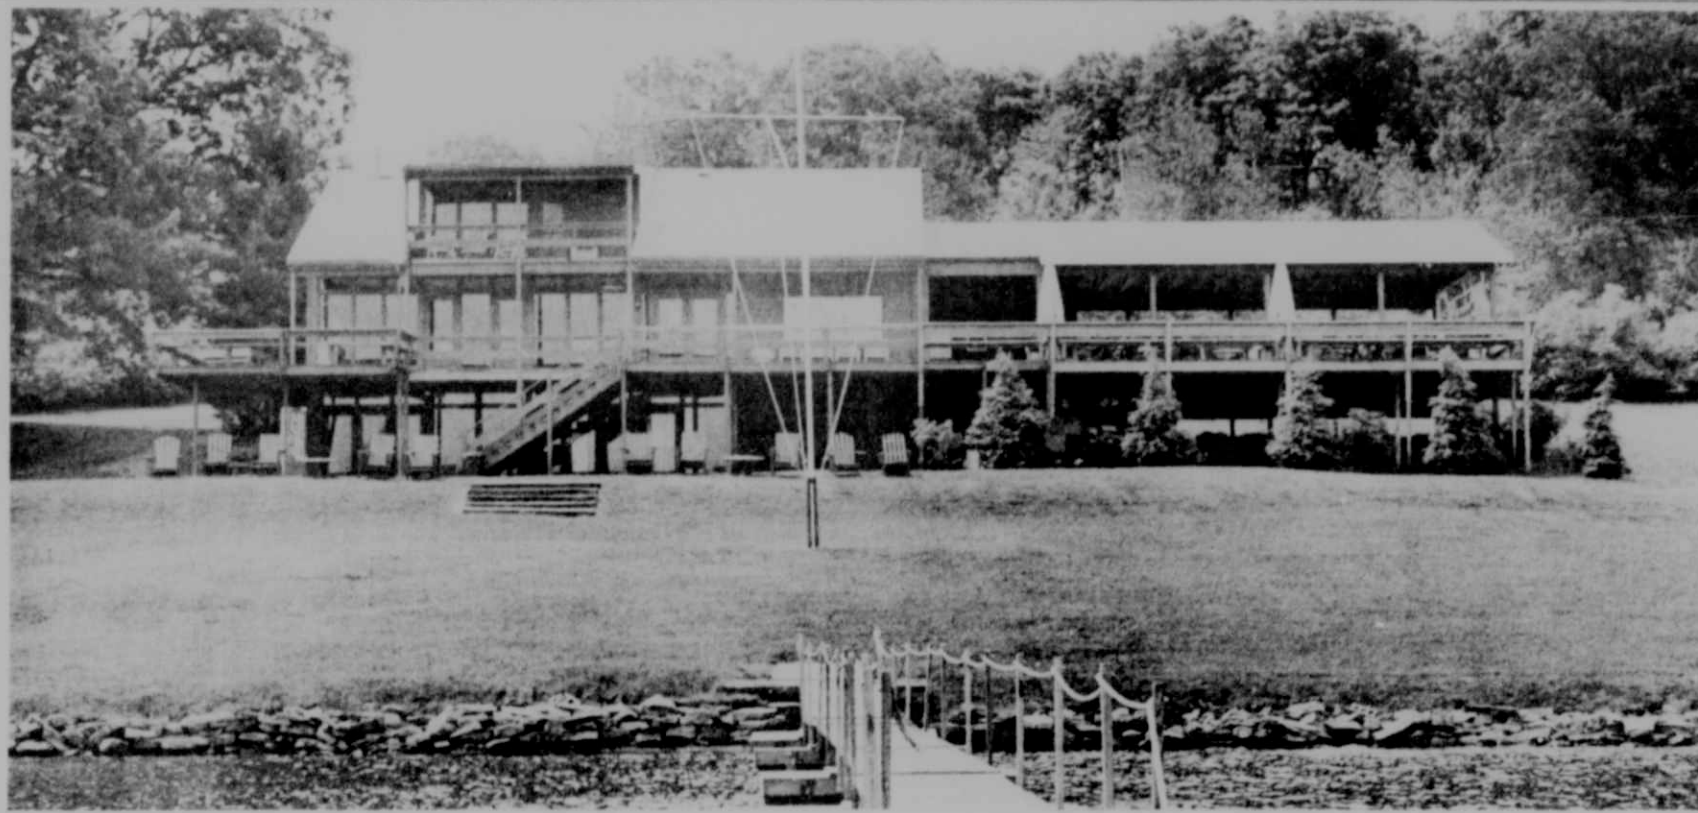

The first genuine sailboat on the Lake was owned by Mr. Carlos Mirick, father of Alice Mirick. They lived in a cottage known as Briar Patch on the Turkey Neck inlet of the Lake. Alice describes the Mirick boat and its origin as follows:

"... The lake was big and the land wild looking. My father designed an 18-foot, flat-bottomed, cat-rig sailboat... The sail was heavy canvas with two sets of reef points... loose footed at the boom. It had a center board, was five-foot beam, had floor slats, and was a steady craft. We named her 'Plover'."

"We learned to sail and would go from Glendale Bridge into each inlet and arm of the lake."

Alice also describes subsequent sail boats that began to appear on the upper end of the Lake.

"The Lake was becoming known, and soon there was the Holy Cross Camp with Camp Gary directly across from it."

Deep Creek Yacht Club — 1987

Deep Creek Yacht Club — 1968

We sailed over to greet the newcomers at Holy Cross... They were building a sailboat and soon we had races. The trophy was usually an apple or a piece of candy. The year was 1930 and more people had discovered the lake. Father sold land to Gordon Sprague from Washington. They built a sailboat on the same plan as ours, and we would race and chase all over the lake."

While the Turkey Neck group was learning the art of sailing, another group was doing the same in the Lake area between the two highway bridges. John Schaidt and his friends had moved ahead to sailing "class" boats. These were ones which had the same dimensions and sail area; the "one design" boats made racing more competitive since they were all the same. John Schaidt tells of the coming of these boats to Deep Creek Lake.

"In 1934, John Mordock arrived in Cumberland from Chicago, where he had been a member of a Yacht Club which was active in sailing on Lake Michigan. The first thing John asked was, 'Where is the nearest lake which is suitable for sailing?' From that day on we became a sailing group! Mordock shipped in a Bell Class Swallow, a 15½-foot keel boat and soon the group had a Snipe, Penguin, and a Cape Cod Mercury. The Will O' the Wisp became our yacht club, and we sailed off their dock every weekend. John Mordock was leader, and the group consisted of Tau Rowe, Westernport; Dick Holben, Frostburg; and Susan Farris, Nancy James, Jock Murrie, and John Schaidt of Cumberland."

The late Dr. Thurl Bullard was then owner of the Will O' the Wisp. In addition to other things, he was also an amateur artist of some skill. Although the sail boats on Sunday were somewhat of an obstacle to motor boats which operated from his boat dock, he must also have relished the beautiful picture they made moored there during the week. However, it was becoming more and more difficult to do really good sailing between the two bridges because of the variable winds caused by the steep hills in that area, and because of the increase in motor boat traffic in that part of Deep Creek Lake.

The move from between the bridges to the Turkey Neck section of the Lake was inaugurated by one man. This was the late Harry Muma, who was a combination of salt water sailor and real-estate salesman. He and his partner, Cy Bowers, had put together a tract of land on the Turkey Neck inlet. He proposed to bring together people who wanted to do sailing and also wanted to build cottages on the lake.

John Schaidt in his writing tells what happened on a Sunday afternoon while the group was still sailing from the boat dock at Will O' the Wisp.

"One Sunday afternoon we were approached by a short man wearing leather boots and a wide-brimmed hat. He said his name was Harry Muma, and that he and a partner, Cy Bowers, had just bought a piece of land south of the Glendale Bridge. He called it Turkey Neck and said if we would bring our group and sailboats down and sail off his property, that he would build us a Yacht Club."

"We each looked at one another in amazement, and Mordock said, 'Let's go... What have we got to lose?' I got in the car with Muma, while the sailboat fleet headed south under Glendale Bridge. After opening and closing several farm gates, Muma and I arrived at the crumbling foundation of a one-time farmhouse.

Soon we saw our sailboats passing the Holy Cross point and heading for Turkey Neck shore. We all gathered around the foundation; Muma turned to the group and said, 'This will be your Yacht Club.' Mordock asked Muma how long it would take him to build the clubhouse, and upon hearing that it would take at least a year and maybe longer, he agreed to buy a lot and build a cabin, which would be the first building on Turkey Neck to serve as a temporary Yacht Club."

"The following weekend the log cabin arrived on a truck from Sears-Roebuck and in two more weeks our gang had put it together, dug a well, put in a septic tank, cleared an entrance roadway, built a dock and were ready for sailing."

"Muma's building was completed and dedicated in the Spring of 1937 with our leader John B. Mordock serving as the first Commodore."

This was the beginning of the Turkey Neck Yacht Club. From 1937 to 1942, the Club was operated by the Muma family. Bunk space in the two dormitories upstairs in the club house was available for a nominal fee, and Mrs. Muma (Elsie) ran the kitchen and served meals in the dining room. The sailing-social activities associated with the club resulted in the sale of lots and the building of summer homes in the Turkey Neck development.

During this time, there was a gradual swing to one type of sailboat. This was the Snipe, and Henry K. Duke pressed for the chartering of the fleet of Snipes. The result was that Deep Creek Yacht Club became noticed in national sailing publications. Each week racing Charlotte and Alice, Lawrence Holt, Dr. Royce Hodges, Dr. Howard Tolson, Dr. Frank Wilson, along with the names of local residents.

Famous people also visited the Club and took part in its activities. Among them were Commander P.V.H. Weems, U.S. Navy retired, who was head of the famous Weems School of Navigation in Annapolis. Commander Weems was the inventor of a number of navigation instruments and an intimate friend and instructor of Col. Charles Lindbergh.

Following World War II, Dr. Frank Wilson extended an invitation to Albert Einstein to visit in the Turkey Neck area. The famous scientist also enjoyed sailing, and Harry Muma delighted people for years afterward in telling how Dr. Einstein would do his sailing. People would realize that he wasn't around, go searching for him, and find him in Harry Muma's little sailboat, "single handing" on the Turkey Neck inlet.

In the years that followed the War, the Club continued to grow in membership. The late Earl Zepp had come to Oakland, and he and Perry Smith purchased the Oakland Lumber Company. Between them, they gradually changed the concept of cottages on the lake in the Turkey Neck area. Most of them had been "summer cabins"; adequate, but limited in their use. Earl, who was enchanted with Garrett County, pushed the idea of "year-round" homes. His

Waterbeds Found To Be Useful For Premature Babies

MORGANTOWN, W.Va.—Research findings by a West Virginia University School of Nursing faculty member could affect the care of many premature infants.

The key ingredient? A waterbed.

In a clinical project she conducted while earning her doctorate in nursing at the University of Texas, Pamela Deiriggi found that premature babies on waterbeds experienced improved sleep, lower activity levels and lower heart rates, suggesting that over extended periods more energy would be available for growth or weight gain.

Growth requires energy, and weight gain is a "preemie's" primary need, she said.

On waterbeds these babies, "relax in a more natural environment, reducing activity costly in terms of their daily energy reserves," Dr. Deiriggi said. "Had they not been born early they would have been floating in utero."

Waterbeds are increasingly used for premature infants in U.S. hospitals, but most research on the subject has been done in the area of developmental psychology. Deiriggi's is the only nursing study and is one of the first to look at the usefulness of waterbeds in improving physiologic outcomes.

To make her comparisons she observed 22 babies for six days—three days on the waterbeds, designed to fit the incubators, and three days on standard mattresses.

The infants were at a neonatal center in Austin. They were past their medical problems and remained in the center's unit primarily to reach the required weight of five pounds before they could go home.

Parents loved the program because they could see their babies begin to thrive, added Deiriggi, who returned to WVU in January as assistant professor. The University of Texas System gave her an outstanding dissertation award during commencement ceremonies in May.

Garrett Legion Team Opens With Pair Of Defeats

The Garrett County American Legion team, formerly the Accident Legion team that won the Mountain District championship last season, is off to a rocky start this year, as the local squad dropped its first two contests this past week.

Garrett was edged by Frostburg Post 24 in the season opener for both teams last Thursday in Oakland, 8-6, and was then topped Monday by Victory Post 155 of Westernport, 11-7, on the winners' diamond.

Although the local hurlers staged a ninth inning comeback against Frostburg, it was not enough to overcome a five-run fifth inning that gave the visitors a 6-0 advantage.

Frostburg was on top 1-0 going into the fifth inning when Eric Slonaker led off with a walk, Brent McKenzie singled, and Mike Turner followed with a two-run single to make the score 3-0. Bases-loaded walks to Frank Duncan and Mike Boyd, followed by an RBI single by Bucky Tyler gave Frostburg the 6-0 margin.

STILL REELING IN THOSE WALLEYE out of Deep Creek Lake are Don Ringer, left, and Clarence Moats, who hooked these monsters this week in the Deep Creek Lake State Park area. The fish measured 29 and one-half and 27 inches. Moats caught a 31-inch walleye just a few weeks ago to set the Deep Creek Lake record. The luck and skill of the Ringer-Moats team was also evident this past weekend when they won the Potomac Bass Anglers' Bass Tournament, which carried a first prize of $1,000. The two pulled in a total of 11 pounds, two ounces of bass, easily defeating the second place total of seven pounds, 12 ounces. Ringer is president of the newly-organized Mt. Top Anglers.

Garrett recorded two runs in the bottom of the fifth, but Frostburg added two more in the top of the sixth on an RBI single by Steve Cutter and an unearned run by McKenzie.

Northern High standout Aaron Zumpano led off Garrett's rally in the ninth with a single and Steve Sites followed with a one-out walk. Rich Goad, of Southern High School, then rapped a pinch-hit single to load the bases and Scott Lohr, another Southern Ram, followed with a two-run RBI.

After a strikeout by McKenzie, Jamie Colaw, also of Southern, hit an infield grounder that was mishandled, allowing two more runs to score. With the tying run at second base, McKenzie forced the next batter to ground out to end the game.

Bob Hilderbrand, who pitched five innings and struck out eight batters, gained the win.

Garrett, who out-hit the winners 9-7, was led by Lohr, who hit a double and three singles, while J.R. Bosley smacked a solo homer in the seventh. Turner led Frostburg with two hits.

It was a four-run third inning by Victory Post 155 on Monday that made the difference in Garrett's second loss.

Coach Phil Caruso's squad took a 3-0 lead in the first inning on a three-run shot over the fence by J.R. Bosley, but Victory came back for two runs in the bottom of the first. Garrett went on top 5-2 in the top of the third, however Victory assumed a 6-5 lead with their four-run third. Garrett knotted the score in the fourth, but Victory put the game out of reach with two runs in the fourth and three more in the fifth.

John Smith rapped two singles, drove home two runs, and scored three times for Victory, while teammate Mark Liller singled twice and scored four runs. Troy Foster added a double.

Once again, the Garrett players out-hit their opponents, this time 9-8, as J.R. Bosley added a single to his homer, Zumpano finished with three singles, Bo Butler hit a solo homer, and Lohr added two singles.

Steve Sites was the losing pitcher, although he struck out nine batters in five innings. Chris Wilson gained the win on the mound for Victory, the team's first in two outings.

The match-up was originally slated to be a doubleheader, however the nightcap was rained out. Garrett is slated to travel to Donahue Field in Cumberland today to face Fort Cumberland in a 5 p.m. game.

HERRINGTON FISHING CONTEST — Officials at Herrington Manor State Park announced this week that a fishing contest, sponsored by the Park and A.D. Naylor Company, Oakland, is being held this summer at Herrington Manor Lake. To "sweeten the pot," two bass, each weighing over four pounds, were tagged by Department of Natural Resource personnel. The tagged fish, being held in the above photo by Ken Pavol, regional fish biologist, left, and Roger Riley, manager of Herrington Manor and Swallow Falls state parks, are worth $100 each. All fish entered in the contest must be caught with conventional fishing tackle. An overall winner will be determined at the end of the contest and will receive a trophy, while weekly winners will each receive a medalion. Grantsville Whips Lonaconing, 12-0, Hyndman, 10-8

Grantsville improved its season record to 7-2 this past week in the Bi-State Pony League, as the local hurlers rolled over Lonaconing Friday, 12-0, in Grantsville and then edged host Hyndman on Monday, 10-8.

Northern High standout Todd Wagner was the star in both contests, as he smacked two home runs, one a grand slam, and struck out 15 Lonaconing batters, and then recorded three hits and a relief win on the mound at Hyndman.

Wagner had a no-hitter going against Lonaconing until the seventh inning and then gave up only three hits. He rapped a solo homer in the fourth inning and hit his grand slam in the fifth to finish with five RBIs. Dave Yoder added a solo homer in the third frame for Grantsville.

The three Lonaconing hits were singles, all in the final inning, by Jim Lauder, Larry McKenzie and Tom Shockey. It was the fourth loss in eight outings for Lonaconing.

The game against Hyndman featured extra innings and a total of 30 hits, 18 by Grantsville and a dozen by the Pennsylvanians.

The score was tied 7-7 going into the ninth inning, after Hyndman battled back from a 7-0 deficit. An infield error and a single by Kevin Sines in the top of the ninth provided Grantsville's three runs for the win.

Hyndman attempted a comeback in the bottom of the ninth, but recorded only one run.

Sines and Dave Yoder also had three hits apiece for Grantsville, while Jamie Ringler and Glenn Rice recorded two hits each for Hyndman.

The loss dropped Hyndman to 2-7.

Yacht Club

designs were practical and within the economic reach of the average person who enjoyed sailing.

The result was a greater sense of permanence to the Deep Creek Yacht Club; members became residents instead of summer visitors.

Earl Zepp also introduced the wooden hull Thistle to members of the Club. Built from a kit, this larger sailboat could face stronger winds on Deep Creek Lake than could the smaller Snipes. However, although the Thistle was a beautiful sailboat, the day of wooden hulls was quickly passing. Fiberglass was coming into use, and fiberglass hull sailboats began to appear on the Lake.

As Harry Muma had changed the location of sailing on the Lake in 1937, so it was that two men influenced the present Club's appearance and sailing activity. The first of these was Mr. Arthur Nicholson from Pittsburgh, who gave the Club the stabilization it needed during its growing pains in the late 1960's. One group left the organization and began their own club on the Thousand Acres side of the Lake. Arthur Nicholson, along with other members of the Turkey Neck Club, rebuilt the old Muma clubhouse building, and set up a plan for the purchase of the property.

The second person to influence the club was Mr. Gordon "Sandy" Douglass, designer and builder of the Flying Scot. With the fiberglass hull, and larger size, the Flying Scot has changed the whole pattern of sailing on Deep Creek Lake. Not only is Sandy Douglass a skilled craftsman at boat building, he is also a national and international championship sailor. He opened a boat factory in Oakland where local Flying Scots were built; he was always available for advice on either boat maintenance or techniques of sailing.

The result of the popularity of the Flying Scot meant that more people wanted to join the Yacht Club. Soon the remodeled building was too small for all of the activities which were taking place there. In the early 1970's, a large veranda type structure was built onto the club building, which was again enlarged in the 1980's.

Now, as the Yacht Club celebrates its 50th year, it is a combination of things old and new. Many of the post-World War II members are still an active part of the club's organization. Yet, each year sees the addition of new and younger members who are enthusiastic about sailing and have "discovered" Garrett County. As in former days, many of the members are from the areas of Washington, Baltimore and Pittsburgh. They come from a variety of walks of life, yet they still adhere to the original purpose of the founding members... to promote sailing on Deep Creek Lake.

DON'T BE AFRAID TO TOUCH!

As a home buyer, you will probably see many homes before deciding which one to purchase. Since some of those homes are presently occupied, you may feel uncomfortable looking in cabinets or under area rugs. Here's some advice: Don't be!

Before you begin looking at homes, make a list of the things you will want to inspect in each home. Put down things like checking the water pressure in the shower, inspecting the attic, measuring closet space, or testing the oven. What you put on your list depends on the way you live. If you take good care of your car and plan to keep it in the garage, don't hesitate to measure the garage to be sure it fits.

Remember, the home you choose will become the home you live in. It is important that you satisfy yourself that the home fits your lifestyle, and that it "feels" just right before making the purchase.

Ask lots of questions. Again, make a list. Ask the same questions about each property, so you can compare the answers later. Find out about utility costs, the age of appliances, yearly taxes, and any other specifics you will need to know to make your decision.

By answering your questions, this procedure gives you peace of mind once you've found the right home. You won't find yourself getting "cold feet" since you'll be confident that you're well informed.

If you'd like to purchase a home, but feel out-of-touch with what's happening in real estate, give us a call today at 387-5303 or drop by our office at McHenry Plaza.

DECD, DET Officials Visit Western Maryland

State economic development officials and their staffs have been in Garrett and Allegany counties this week as part of a program to help generate job opportunities in Western Maryland, according to Dennis McGee, spokesman for the Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development.

DECD Deputy Secretary Mike Lofton is leading the group of 30 state representatives from both DECD and the Department of Employment Training. McGee said the departments often work together to draft programs and plans to assist new and expanding businesses in Maryland.

After touring Allegany county on Tuesday and Wednesday, the delegation came to Garrett County where they dined with local government officials at the Silver Tree Inn on Deep Creek Lake.

During the dinner, state and local officials discussed methods the state can use to improve the economic development prospects of Western Maryland.

They are expected to tour the area today and stops are planned at the county's three industrial parks.

"Our industrial development program is essentially a marketing effort," said DECD Secretary Randy Evans. "The more we know about Western Maryland's many assets, the better we are able to market those assets to our clients."

December 31, 1986, and $103,000 for the quarter ended March 31, 1987.

First United is a bank holding company located in Oakland and the parent company of First United National Bank & Trust. First United reported total assets of $250.4 million, deposits of $228.2 million, shareholders' equity of $20.5 million at March 31, 1987 and net income of $2,663,000 for the year ended December 31, 1986 and $666,000 for the quarter ended March 31, 1987.

Rabies Cases

human or animal exposure was reported in this case.

The most recent case was reported by George Porter, of the Old Crellin Road off of Route 39. He told health department official Edgar Harman that on Monday around noon he heard his dogs barking and saw they had a raccoon at bay. He shot the raccoon and took it to the health department. Positive test results came back to the health department on Tuesday.

Porter's dogs were up to date on their rabies shots, with only one dog having a possible exposure to the raccoon. That dog was given a booster shot and will be watched closely for 90 days.

A series of spring rabies clinics have been held this week by the health department, with the last one scheduled tonight from 5-6 at the Oakland Armory. Residents of the Oakland area (and other areas of the county) may still take advantage of this low-cost clinic to have their dogs and cats vaccinated. The cost of the vaccination at the clinic is $3 per animal. Dogs should be brought to the clinic on a leash and under the control of a responsible individual. Cats should be brought to the clinic in wire cages or tightly secured boxes. Sufficient air holes must be provided in the box to prevent smothering of the animal.

Timber Plans

experience moderate to severe infestation, and approximately 30,000 of those acres will be defoliated to the extent that much of the acreage will suffer from total mortality or weakened seriously by the refoliation process. This 30,000 acres represents 120 million board feet of sawlog lumber and 330,000 cords of pulpwood, for an estimated stumpage value of nearly $11,000,000. Twenty-five percent, or about $2,800,000, would be lost in direct county revenue, plus an estimated loss of $99,000,000 to the local economy in primary milling and pulp processes. When combined with the secondary value of this wood, the net loss would be over $285,000,000.

The statement went on to point out that the gypsy moth is "here to stay" and it is "physically and financially impossible" to spray all of the affected areas with chemicals. It suggested that spraying continue in those areas of highest value and that over-mature trees and trees of poor form be harvested so the remaining trees can develop large crowns and root systems, thus making them healthier, more resistant, and more likely to survive at least one defoliation. It was also suggested that selected stands that have been defoliated and are in poor condition should be harvested now, before the quality of the wood deteriorates.

GONE FISHIN' were seven male residents from Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home last week. The residents were transported to Broadford Lake by the Garrett County Agency on Aging. D & S Sport Shop donated the bait and Davidson's Army-Navy Store supplied new hats for the anxious anglers who reportedly caught quite a few fish. Volunteers assisting with the fishing excursion were: Randy and Ramona Perando, Peggy Chappel, Jeanette Sweitzer, Pat Helmich, Joanne Harsh and Don Ringer, president of the Mt. Top Anglers Association.

The first proposed timber sale for Fiscal Year 1988 is a 230-acre tract of Savage River State Forest near Keyers Ridge known as Puzzle Run; however progress is at a standstill because of some controversy, some of which was also discussed at the June 13 meeting. Opposition has been raised by the Maryland Conservation Council, a non-profit environmental organization, and members of the Maryland Heritage Program, which is an advisory council and an adjunct of the DNR itself.

Warren Groves' management plan at Puzzle Run calls for clearcutting approximately 43 acres and thinning 140 more acres. The area was severely damaged by an ice storm in 1984 and another in December of last year. In his plan, Groves estimates that already $15,000 of timber lying on the ground has been lost and unless harvesting begins within the next year or so, another $33,120 worth of blowdown timber will be lost.

Groves' proposal also notes that the timber stand is severely overstocked.

The proposal goes on to give strict, specific guidelines in how to proceed with the harvest to minimize the environmental impact on the area. The plan received an endorsement and additional input from local wildlife biologists, Al Bourgeois and Tom Mathews. Clay Smith, project leader with Timber Management Research of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, also endorsed the proposal, with some suggested revisions and strong endorsement was received from the Garrett County Forestry Board. The concerns raised by the Maryland Conservation Council and members of the Maryland Heritage Program concern the negative effects they say the harvesting will have on an area that "has rare and vanishing species of plants and animal life."

Neil Fitzpatrick, president of the Council, recommended in a letter to Donald E. MacLauchlan, director of the ducts Company in Oakland, and Ron Stemple, of Allegheny Wood Products, who are both registered professional foresters with the state of Maryland, believe that it is essential that the Puzzle Run harvest begin as proposed, once again pointing out that the timber on the ground in that area is continuing to deteriorate.

"This is good, sound forest management that is being proposed in this area," said Stemple, "and not only will it be of economic value to the area, but it will also improve and strengthen the ecology of that forest."

Forman, who also holds a bachelor of science degree in forestry, is also concerned that if the opposition successfully halts the Puzzle Run project, the entire five-year plan would be in jeopardy.

"If they (the Maryland Conservation Council and Heritage Program) get their foot in the door on this project, then there is no telling how much delay and loss there will be over the next five years," he said.

Forman also added, "Plus, the gypsy moth is not going to wait for anyone and it does not discriminate between weak and strong oak trees."

Forman and Stemple both urged local citizens to contact MacLauchlan's office, or Jim Roberts, state forester, to express their opinions about the Puzzle Run project. A decision on the proposal will be made by MacLauchlan's office within the next several days.

MacLauchlan's office is located in the Tawes State Office Building, Annapolis, MD 21401; telephone 974-3776.

Locals Plan To Attend Annual NEA Convention

Dolores Perry, president of the Allegany County Teachers Association; Marion Boettner, vice president of ACTA; Mary Nelson, past vice president; Ralph Marketta, former ACTA president; and Jim Raley, past president of The Garrett County Teachers Association and next year's vice president; will represent their local association membership at the annual meeting of the National Education Association in the Los Angeles Convention Center, June 30 to July 5.

"Invest in America: Support Public Education" will be the theme of the NEA's 125th annual meeting July 2-July 5, according to Thomas Shaffer, UNISERV representative for the state and national associations assigned to both local associations.

Mary Hatwood Futrell, NEA president, will preside over the 7,500 elected delegates to the association's top decision-making Representative Assembly that will deliberate for four days on teacher certification and evaluation, school discipline, student stress, AIDS education, early childhood development, adolescent pregnancy and parenting, school counseling, and drug and alcohol testing.

The annual session will explore the importance of supporting public education as an investment in America's future, as well as examine the teacher shortage, school finance, the dropout problem, and the challenge of restructuring public education. Shaffer noted. A comprehensive new profile of the American school teacher and a just completed Gallup poll on public education will be released at the NEA meeting.

Delegates will adopt NEA's federal legislative program, honor its 1987 Friend of Education recipient and hear a report on the association's grassroots involvement in the upcoming 1988 national elections. Delegates will also elect the NEA president, vice president, and two executive committee members.

Two major pre-convention meetings — one, The Instructional Issues Conference on June 29, and NEA's Joint Conference on Concerns of Minorities and Women, June 27 and 28, will kick off NEA's activities in Los Angeles. Marion Boettner and Mary Nelson of ACTA will attend these conferences. Open hearings on NEA's budget, its constitution and bylaws, rules, resolutions, legislation and candidates will take place July 1st.

A Few Openings Remain For Child Care Workshop

"We still have free child care for the next six people who pre-register for the Garrett County Health Department's free workshop for parents or toddlers," announced Lois Ford, coordinator for Child Health at the local health facility.

Ms. Ford said that "an exciting program" is lined up for Tuesday, July 14, and Wednesday, July 15, from 7 to 9 p.m., in the health department Assembly Room. Persons need only to call 334-8111 or 895-3111 to register. Participation is limited to 25 people.

"Too often we have programs in Garrett County that have minimal attendance and then lots of people contact us when they hear about the programs from their friends who participated. We encourage all who care for toddlers — parents, grandparents, and caregivers — to come and enjoy these two free evenings of help and information on the special needs of toddlers and how to meet them," said Elizabeth Rees Gilbert, coordinator of the workshop.

THE JAY JACKSON JAMBOREE will be featured at the Terra Alta Firemen's July 4th Celebration from 6-8 p.m. at the Firemen's Field. Pictured above is the band which backs up country-western singer, Jay Wamsley, shown left. Wamsley was born in Elkins, W. Va. and later moved to Central Pennsylvania where he started a country-western band, performing mostly on weekends at area clubs, country fairs and carnivals. He later moved to Nashville, Tenn. for four years where he performed with the Grand Ole Opry. When Wamsley moved back to Pennsylvania, his fans urged him to record an album. The album, "Smokey Mountain Memories," did well locally. He also lived in Florida for a time and performed in clubs there before moving back to his home. He has since given up a job as general manager with the 7-Up Bottling Company and is pursuing his musical career fulltime.

TA Civic Club Finalizing Fourth Of July Events

Members of the Terra Alta Civic Club are finalizing plans for the annual July 4th Celebration in Terra Alta. The oldest event in the State of West Virginia, the club will be using patriotic colors as their theme this year depicting the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution.

Chairing the queen's float is Sherry Fields with Sandy Teets directing the queen's coronation to be held on Thursday, July 2, 6 p.m. at the Terra Alta Town Park. Costume coordinator Dottie Williamson stated the court will be outfitted in red, white and blue, complementing the float.

Applications are still available for arts and craftsmen at the park, for the show to be held on July 2-4, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. with a registration fee of $10. Any person with any type of talent is urged to participate in this added event for the expansion of the festivities. Also needed are entertainers for the same dates to perform for the public with a variety of talent included in this group. Persons may contact Jeannie Kelley, 789-6717, who is chairman of these events for details.

Organizing the food and drink booth this year is Barbara Root. The booth, which is being operated with the Terra Alta Rotary Club, will be at the park.

More than 70 million decks of cards are sold each year in the U.S.

State Petroleum Council Blasts State Gas Study

A recent state-sponsored study of Maryland's retail gasoline marketing divorcement law is flawed and reaches conclusions unsupported by its own data, Michael D. McDonald, executive director, Maryland Petroleum Council, stated this week.

Maryland's retail gasoline marketing divorcement law, passed in 1974, prohibits oil companies from directly operating the service stations they also own.

A study of that law's impact, sponsored by Maryland's state Comptroller and Attorney General, claimed divorcement has reduced retail gasoline prices, resulting in savings for Maryland motorists. The impact study, released in March, was done by the consulting firm of Putnam, Hayes and Bartlett, Inc. (PHB).

Despite these claims it is clear from the data in the PHB study that Maryland motorists actually paid $300 million more for gasoline since the divorcement law was enacted, McDonald said, than they would have without the law. This contrary to the claim by the PHB study's authors that the state's motorists saved $117 million.

A new assessment of the data in the PHB study by the American Petroleum Institute, McDonald continued, indicates the PHB study never accounts for the fact that retail gasoline prices in Baltimore prior to the enactment of divorcement were lower than in the six comparison cities cited in the study. Omitting this price advantage in Baltimore from its comparison means the PHB study ignored a $216 million loss sustained by Maryland motorists because of retail divorcement, McDonald noted.

In addition, he said, the PHB study ignored another $90 million loss caused by motorists who previously preferred full-service at the pump, but switched to less expensive self-service after divorcement was enacted.

Previous independent studies of the Maryland experience consistently have found, McDonald explained, that after divorcement, Maryland dealers increased the spread between full-service and self-service retail prices. This caused the divorcement-induced consumer switch from full-service to self-service, resulting in a $90 million consumer loss.

When these two omissions in the PHB study are accounted for, McDonald said, the PHB comparison of pre-divorcement to post-divorcement costs in Baltimore and six other cities shows Baltimore motorists sustained a total loss of more than $300 million since divorcement became law.

If divorcement had indeed promoted competition, as the PHB study claimed, McDonald said, the impact would have been to raise prices in the short run but lower prices in the long run as competition increased. On the contrary, he pointed out, the PHB data shows that relative to retail gasoline prices elsewhere, Baltimore prices rose more in the second three-year period after divorcement than in the first.

The PHB study data — when properly interpreted — actually confirm the results of previous studies which found that gasoline retail marketing divorcement in Maryland has reduced competition and increased retail gasoline prices, McDonald concluded.

Fraternal Order Of Police Lodge Note Name Change

It was recently announced that the Fraternal Order of Police, Western Lodge No. 99, is changing its chapter name to Garrett County Lodge No. 99.

According to Guy Carola, president of the Garrett County chapter, the reason for the name change is to alleviate confusion over their location. Attorney for the lodge, Thomas Dabney, donated his time to draw up the charter changes, effective July 1, said Carola.

The organization provides legal service to members of the Sheriff's Department, Maryland Department of Natural Resources Police, Oakland City Police Department and the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office.

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH

'Milk's A Hit'

"Milk's A Hit" is the theme for the 1987 celebration of June Dairy Month in the Southeast.

As part of this month-long celebration, the dairy industry will open its doors to the public to educate them about the industry and make dairy farmers better known to those they serve.

June Dairy Month is the time set aside by federal, state, and local governments, and community leaders to recognize and pay tribute to the many contributions of the more than 200,000 dairy farm families in the United States.

As part of this salute, hundreds of local, state, and regional events are planned throughout the Southeast to honor the members of the dairy industry for providing consumers with an abundant supply of delicious and nutritious milk and milk products.

Milk's also a hit with baseball fans and players alike. As part of the June Dairy Month celebration and salute to dairy farmers, the Atlanta Braves and minor league baseball teams throughout the Southeast are hosting "Milk's A Hit" promotional nights at their ballparks.

Recognized as the single largest food promotion in the country, June Dairy Month provides an opportunity for nutritionists, food editors, and others concerned about the American diet to remind consumers of the good taste and nutritional value of milk and milk products.

- 2 cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 Tbsp. nutmeg
- 4-5 cups flour
- 1 cup milk
- baking powder

The original recipe called for:

This leaves a taste in your mouth, so I add baking powder instead. Add whatever your brand of baking powder calls for — each cup of flour.

Cream shortening and sugar; add eggs, blend until smooth. Add salt and nutmeg, cream until very light. Add flour and baking powder alternately with milk. Add enough flour to make a soft dough. Flour board generously, roll (gently) to about 1/4". Cut with cookie cutter. Bake at 400° for 10 minutes.

State Offering 7.5% And 8.5% Home Mortgages

Governor William Donald Schaefer announced this week that the state has made available 30-year fixed-rate mortgages at 7.5 and 8.5 percent to eligible limited-income homebuyers, beginning June 22.

"With interest rates going up again, people with limited incomes are finding it increasingly difficult to buy a home," said Schaefer. "I'm glad that the State of Maryland can offer such low interest rates to help people who otherwise could not afford to buy a home."

The mortgage money is offered statewide through the Mortgage Purchase Program, which is operated by the Community Development Administration, CDA, the state's housing finance agency, is a division of the Department of Economic and Community Development.

Borrowers with annual incomes of $20,000 or less will pay 7.5 percent interest. Those earning more than $20,000, but less than the program's income limits, will pay 8.5 percent interest.

To qualify for the low-interest mortgages, family income cannot be more than $33,000 a year. The income of an individual cannot be more than $28,000 a year. In most areas, a borrower must not have owned their own homes within the last three years. This requirement does not apply in Baltimore City, Hagerstown and Allegany, Caroline, Dorchester, Garrett, Kent and Somerset counties.

To obtain an MPP mortgage, borrowers should apply directly to a participating lending institution. They must have a signed sales contract on a qualifying home before applying for the loan. It would be advisable for borrowers to make their sales contract contingent on receiving financing through the Mortgage Purchase Program.

Maximum purchase prices have been increased again in certain areas, in order to better reflect housing costs. The maximum purchase prices for the Mortgage Purchase Program for Garrett County is $66,000.

Homebuyers in Western Maryland and the Eastern Shore who have difficulty finding a home priced below $66,000 or $60,000 may be interested in CDA's Homeownership Development Program, which provides low-interest mortgages for newly constructed homes. Under the HDP program, purchase prices can be as high as $77,000, depending on location.

Newly-constructed or existing single-family homes, including townhouses, detached or semidetached homes, are eligible for financing under the Mortgage Purchase Program. Condominiums acceptable to the mortgage insurer also are eligible. Modular homes qualify for financing if they carry the state seal of approval for code compliance.

Homebuyers must have established credit and a good credit rating. At the time the mortgage application is made, borrowers will be expected to pay fees for the credit report and appraisal. When the loan is settled, borrowers will pay points, closing costs, and pre-paid items, such as the first year's property taxes. In most cases, one point, or one percent of the loan, is charged to the borrower on CDA loans.

Since it began in 1980, the Mortgage Purchase Program has provided more than 9,600 mortgage loans to Maryland residents, for a total of more than $415 million.

For further information about the application process, persons should contact a participating lending institution. For a program brochure, they may contact CDA's Homeownership Programs office at (toll-free) 1-800-638-7781.

Mortgage Corporation, (contact John Moran at 339-3860); First Federal Savings Bank of Western Maryland (contact Richard Wheeler at 334-8656); Magnet Mortgages, Inc. Hearings Set For State Plan For Aging Services

Rosalie S. Abrams, director of the Maryland Office on Aging, has announced a series of hearings throughout the state on the Office's proposed fiscal year 1988 plan for aging programs and services.

The hearings offer an opportunity for senior citizens to present their views on such subjects as housing, long term care, senior centers, nutrition and Medicare, as well as on other issues regarding senior citizen programs and services, as provided primarily through local Area Agencies on Aging.

Comments received at the hearings will be considered in formulating the final plan to be approved by the Governor and the Federal Government.

"We urge senior citizens, their elected officials and members of the general public to attend these hearings," Mrs. Abrams said. "Fiscal Year 1988 will be a very important one for establishing priorities to meet the changing service needs of our State's fast-growing older population."

The hearing closest Garrett County will be this Friday, June 26, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Allegany County Area Agency on Aging, 19 Frederick Street, Auditorium, Cumberland.

Copies of the relevant materials may be obtained in advance of the hearings from local Area Agency on Aging offices, listed in the "Community Services" section of the telephone book.

'Colbys' actress rejoins 'Dynasty'

By Toni D'Amato

What's going to happen to Emma Samms now that "The Colbys" has been canceled? Where can I write to her? — B.B., Muscatine, Iowa

Emma Samms

Samms will rejoin the cast of "Dynasty" when the series moves into its eighth season in the fall. So will John James, who originated the role of Jeff Colby on "Dynasty." He left the series two seasons ago to star in "The Colbys." With the return of these characters, the producers say they hope to develop the younger generation on "Dynasty."

Send mail to Samms and other "Dynasty" cast members in care of the show at Box 60257, Los Angeles, CA 90060.

Members of my family would like to know who played Mr.

Lucky in the "Mr. Lucky" TV series, and when it was on the air. — R.H., Danville, Va.

The "Mr. Lucky" adventure series starred tall, dark and handsome John Vivyan in the title role. It aired from Oct. 1959 to Sept. 1960. Ross Martin portrayed Vivyan's assistant. Andiamo. But the popularity of the series was actually matched by the popularity of its music. The "Mr. Lucky" theme song by Henry Mancini led to two hit albums — "The Music from Mr. Lucky" and "Mr. Lucky Goes Latin."

Before the TV show, "Mr. Lucky" was a 1943 film which starred Cary Grant in the title role. It also featured Laraine Day, Charles Bickford, Gladys Cooper and Alan Carney.

After seeing the 1986 movie "Fright Night," I thought that the man who played the vampire looked very much like Harry Hamlin of "L.A. Law." Are the actors related? — R.C., Independence, Va.

Chris Sarandon played the vampire in the movie you mentioned. He starred opposite Roddy McDowall. Sarandon is no relation to Harry Hamlin of the TV show "L.A. Law."

'GH' star appeared in a classic film

By Kimberly Redmond

My friend disagrees with me that Anna Lee, who portrays Lila Quartermaine on "General Hospital," appeared in the movie "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?" Can you settle this for us? — P.F., Sugarland, Texas

Ed Fry

You're right, P.F., Lee did indeed appear in the well-remembered Bette Davis/Joan Crawford film, which also starred Victor Buono.

Why don't the "Another World" writers develop the character of police officer Adam Cory (played by Ed Fry) to his fullest? He is usually reduced to saying stereotyped lines like "I go by the book" and "Tell us the facts." — L.V., Altoona, Pa.

While Adam Cory has been working on the serial-killer case, he has been given more constructive things to do and better dialogue. As is usual with daytime soap-opera cops, the character has been left to fall by the wayside at times. Since the "AW" writers are the only ones who really know the answers to your questions, you can write to them c/o "Another World," NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, NY 10021.

Can you tell me if Jed Allan, who portrays C.C. Capwell on "Santa Barbara," was raised in an American military community in Germany? He reminds me of the son of my old boss. — W.J., Greensburg, Pa.

Allan was born and raised in the Bronx, New York.

New job for Glenn Close; Michael Douglas fits in

CABLE LOG

Magnuson and Lauper are in cable specials

By Connie Passalacqua

This week, HBO and Cinemax offer up two talents who have their roots in New York's downtown scene. There's Ann Magnuson, a performance artist and actress ("Making Mr. Right"), who is featured in this month's "Cinemax Comedy Experiment," called "Ann Magnuson's Vandomonium" (June 28). And for Cyndi Lauper, it's a full-blown on-location concert, "Cyndi Lauper in Paris" (HBO, June 28).

the way, she meets up with some bizarre characters — all played by Magnuson.

The special is produced by Broadcast Arts, the production company that did the first year of "Pee-wee's Playhouse." (In an in-joke, Sweet Pea bawls out someone who mistakenly calls her "Pee-wee.")

Whoever the real Magnuson is, she's fresh and pithy. It's by no means a misnomer to call "Vandomonium" a grown-up "Pee-wee's Playhouse," which, unlike the children's show, makes perfect sense.

Lauper, as always, knows exactly who she is. None of this "Bonne-jore Par-ee" stuff as a greeting to her foreign audience. It's Cyndi from Queens who belts out "Hello Par-iss." The performance, taped on March 11 at the Le Zenith theater, was Lauper's last stop on a world tour. Nonetheless, Lauper is exuberant, almost exhausting the audience with her non-stop energy. Because she has only released two albums ("Girls Just Wanna Have Fun" and "True Colors") over the last four years, all her songs are joyfully familiar.

Mid-performance, in the fashion capital of the world, Cyndi yanks off her black plastic miniskirt and sings four songs in — could it be my mother's old girld? — metal garters, satin stomach panel and all. Zut alors! You really have to know who you are to do that.

Ann Magnuson

Magnuson's special serves up a smorgasbord of her many wacky characters. Ostensibly, the program centers on the journey of a biker chick named Sweet Pea to a wet T-shirt contest; she heard she could win free tickets to a concert of her fave heavy metal group, Vulcan Death Grip. Along

BEHIND THE SCENES

The producing duo behind Eddie Murphy

By Frank Lovece

Where does an 800-pound gorilla sleep? Anywhere it wants — except near Eddie Murphy. Or so you would think. Given that his last two films — "The Golden Child" and the current "Beverly Hills Cop II" — are among the highest-grossing comedies ever, making Murphy one of the most powerful figures in Hollywood.

back and enjoy them. The same is true of the movies they've produced, which include "Top Gun." Both of them claim that their movies strive for a kind of charm, not realism. Simpson, for instance, says of the enemy fighter jet in "Top Gun" that, "It wasn't the Russians. It was a Darth Vader-like black image with a nondescript star. It wasn't a real enemy, just a symbol." Right. And John Wayne movies never had Nazis.

With that in mind, the duo's description of the processes behind "Beverly Hills Cop II" must not be analyzed too carefully. "Axel Foley was designed to be the center of a series," says Bruckheimer, "with Eddie taking him to different milieus where he would be the outsider." One of those places, reportedly, was London. The producers say no.

That was the press's doing," says Bruckheimer. "It came out of a photo of Eddie with a bobby" (a British policeman.) Yet in a published interview after "Beverly Hills Cop" came out, Simpson plainly said, "We're planning a sequel. We're taking him to London."

Simpson asserts that he and his partner are ready to make more Axel Foley movies. But they'll take place elsewhere. "If there are any more," says Simpson, "they will occur outside Beverly Hills." In the meantime, Hollywood's power duo are keeping Beverly Hills alive with the sound of money.

Don Simpson, Eddie Murphy

Don Simpson says that's not the whole story. As coproducer, with partner Jerry Bruckheimer, of Murphy's two "Beverly Hills Cop" films, he may be said to have an insight or two. "Eddie is very smart," says Simpson, "and very funny. People ask if the 800-pound gorilla is Eddie. Nah. He's about 150. That's what's great about him."

Simpson and Bruckheimer are so charming you just sit

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Television celebrates the 4th

By Evan Levine

Television is no wallflower when it comes to seizing a good opportunity. This week it will be promoting Independence Day — and itself — with shows designed to raise patriotic spirit.

Robert Urich

ABC, the network that aired the festivities surrounding the refurbishing of the Statue of Liberty last summer, has the most lavish holiday tribute again this year. On Saturday, July 4, the network presents "A Star Spangled Celebration," co-hosted by Oprah Winfrey and Robert Urich. The three-hour "entertainment magazine" originates from St. Louis, the site of the V.P. Fair, the largest annual Independence Day event in the country. Barbara Bush, the vice-president's wife, will be there. And so will a 500-member St. Louis choir, Ben Vereen, Suzanne Somers, Tony Bennett and the Rockettes. A national sing-along is also promised. And in a novel twist, ABC will use the special to promote the fight against illiteracy through Project Literacy U.S., a nationwide campaign designed to combat adult illiteracy. Let us find it difficult to find a connection between Suzanne Somers, July 4th and illiteracy, remember that it's the spirit of the thing that counts.

PBS salutes the holiday

Oprah Winfrey co-hosts ABC's "A Star-Spangled Celebration," a celebrity-studded tribute to Independence Day. It airs Saturday, July 4.

with three specials this week. On Wednesday, July 1, "The Making of Liberty," a one-hour documentary on the restoration of the Statue of Liberty, will be rebroadcast. On Saturday, July 4, the Boston Pops Fourth with John Williams and the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra. Rousing holiday favorites, like Sousa's "Stars and Stripes" and Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" will no doubt be featured. Following that presentation, flutist Jean-Pierre Rampal will perform with the National Symphony Orchestra at the U.S. Capitol, in "A Capitol Fourth." (Check local listings for all programs.)

Also this week — NBC airs the prestigious tennis matches from Wimbledon as part of its daytime lineup on July 4th. Oprah Winfrey makes another appearance as the host of the "14th Annual Daytime Emmy Awards" Tuesday, July 30, on ABC. And in the true American spirit of recycling, CBS rebroadcasts part one of "Space," the miniseries starring James Garner, Susan Anspach and Blair Brown. It's based on James Michener's best seller about the U.S. space effort, July 4 and the final frontier — nothing could be more patriotic.
